CANTO I.

Argument.

The Poet ascends with Beatrice towards the first heaven ; and is, by her, resolved of certain doubts which arise in his mind.

His glory, by whose might all things are mov'd,
Pierces the universe,^a and in one part
Sheds more resplendence, elsewhere less. In heav'n,
That largeliest of his light partakes, was I,
Witness of things, which, to relate again,
Surpasseth power of him who comes from thence ;
For that, so near approaching it's desire,
Our intellect is to such depth absorb'd,
That memory cannot follow. Nathless all,
That in my thoughts I of that sacred realm
Could store, shall now^b be matter of my song.

Benign Appollo !^c this last labour aid ;
And make me such a vessel of thy worth,
As thy own laurel claims, of me belov'd.
Thus far^d hath one of steep Parnassus' brows

Suffic'd me ; henceforth, there is need of both
 For my remaining enterprize. Do thou^e
 Enter into my bosom, and there breathe
 So, as when Marsyas^f by thy hand was dragg'd Forth from his limbs, unsheathe'd. O power divine !
 If thou to me of thine impart so much,
 That of that happy realm the shadow'd form
 Trac'd in my thoughts I may set forth to view ;
 Thou shalt behold me of thy favour'd tree
 Come to the foot, and crown myself with leaves
 For to that honour thou_g and my high theme
 Will fit me. If but seldom, mighty Sire !
 To grace his triumph, gathers thence a wreath
 Cæsar, or bard,^g (more shame for human wills Deprav'd) joy to the Delphic god must spring
 From the Peneian foliage, when one breast
 Is with such thirst inspir'd. From a small spark^h
 Great flame hath risen : after me, perchance,
 Others with better voice may pray, and gain,
 From the Cyrrhæan city, answer kind.

Through divers passages, the world's bright lamp

Rises to mortals ; but, through thatⁱ which joins Four circles with the threefold cross, in best
 Course, and in happiest constellation^j set,
 He comes ; and, to the worldly wax, best gives
 It's temper and impression. Morning there,^k
 Here eve was well nigh by such passage made ;
 And whiteness had o'erspread that hemisphere,
 Blackness the other part ; when to the left^l
 I saw Beatrice turn'd, and on the sun

Gazing, as never eagle fix'd his ken.
 As from the first a second beamⁱⁿ is wont
 To issue, and reflected upwards rise,
 E'en as a pilgrim bent on his return ;
 So of her act, that through the eyesight pass'd
 Into my fancy, mine was form'd : and straight,
 Beyond our mortal wont, I fix'd mine eyes
 Upon the sun. Much is allow'd us there,
 That here exceeds our pow'r ; thanks to the place
 Made^u for the dwelling of the human kind.

I suffer'd it not long ; and yet so long,
 That I beheld it bick'ring sparks around,
 As iron that comes boiling from the fire.^o
 And suddenly upon the day appear'd^p
 A day new-ris'n ; as he, who hath the power,
 Had with another sun bedeck'd the sky.

Her eyes fast fix'd on the eternal wheels,^q
 Beatrice stood unmov'd ; and I with ken
 Fix'd upon her, from upward gaze remov'd,
 At her aspect, such inwardly became
 As Glaucus,^r when he tasted of the herb
 That made him peer among the ocean gods :
 Words may not tell of that transhuman change ;
 And therefore let the example serve, though weak,
 For those whom grace hath better proof in store.

If^s I were only what thou didst create,
 Then newly, Love ! by whom the heav'n is rul'd ;
 Thou know'st, who by thy light didst bear me up.
 Whenas the wheel which thou dost ever guide,
 Desired Spirit ! with it's harmony,^t
 Temper'd of thee and measur'd, charm'd mine ear ;

Then seem'd to me so much of heav'n^u to blaze
 With the sun's flame, that rain or flood ne'er made
 A lake so broad. The newness of the sound,
 And that great light, inflam'd me with desire,
 Keener than e'er was felt, to know their cause.

Whence she, who saw me, clearly as myself,
 To calm my troubled mind, before I ask'd,
 Open'd her lips, and gracious thus began :
 "With false imagination thou thyself
 Mak'st dull ; so that thou seest not the thing,
 Which thou hadst seen, had that been shaken off.
 Thou art not on the earth as thou believ'st ;
 For lightning, scap'd from it's own proper place,
 Ne'er ran, as thou hast hither now return'd."

Although devested of my first-rais'd doubt
 By those brief words accompanied with smiles,
 Yet in new doubt was I entangled more,
 And said : "Already satisfied, I rest
 From admiration deep ; but now admire
 How I above those lighter bodies rise."

Whence, after ut'rance of a piteous sigh,
 She tow'rds me bent her eyes, with such a look,
 As on her frenzied child a mother casts ;
 Then thus began : "Among themselves all things
 Have order ; and from hence the form, which makes
 The universe resemble God. In this
 The higher creatures see the printed steps
 Of that eternal worth, which is the end
 Whither the line is drawn.^w All natures lean,
 In this their order, diversly ; some more,
 Some less approaching to their primal source.

Thus they to different havens are mov'd on Through the vast sea of being, and each one
 With instinct giv'n, that bears it in it's course :
 This to the lunar sphere directs the fire ;
 This moves the hearts of mortal animals ;
 This the brute earth together knits, and binds.
 Nor only creatures, void of intellect,
 Are aim'd at by this bow ; but even those,
 That have intelligence and love, are pierc'd.
 That Providence, who so well orders all,
 With her own light makes ever calm the heaven,^x
 In which the substance, that hath greatest speed,^y
 Is turn'd : and thither now, as to our seat
 Predestin'd, we are carried by the force
 Of that strong cord, that never looses dart
 But at fair aim and glad. Yet is it true,
 That as, oft-times, but ill accords the form
 To the design of art, through sluggishness^z
 Of unreplying matter ; so this course^{aa}
 Is sometimes quitted by the creature, who Hath power, directed thus, to bend elsewhere ;
 As from a cloud the fire is seen to fall,
 From it's original impulse warp'd, to earth,
 By vitiou~~s~~ fondness. Thou no more admire
 Thy soaring, (if I rightly deem,) than lapse
 Of torrent downwards from a mountain's height.
 There would^{ab} in thee for wonder be more cause,
 If, free of hind'rance, thou hadst stay'd below,
 As living fire unmov'd upon the earth."

So said, she turn'd toward the heav'n her face.

CANTO II.

Argument.

Dante and his celestial guide enter the moon. The cause of the spots or shadows, which appear in that body, is explained to him.

ALL ye, who in small bark^a have following sail'd,
Eager to listen, on the advent'rous track
Of my proud keel, that singing cuts it's way,
Backward return with speed, and your own shores
Revisit; nor put out to open sea,
Where losing me, perchance ye may remain
Bewilder'd in deep maze. The way I pass,
Ne'er yet was run: Minerva breathes the gale;
Apollo guides me; and another Nine,
To my rapt sight, the arctic beams reveal.
Ye other few, who have outstretch'd the neck
Timely for food of angels, on which here
They live, yet never know satiety;
Through the deep brine ye fearless may put out
Your vessel; marking well the furrow broad
Before you in the wave, that on both sides
Equal returns. Those, glorious, who pass'd o'er
To Colchos, wonder'd not as ye will do,
When they saw Jason following the plough.

The increase perpetual thirst,^b that draws
Toward the realm of God's own form, bore us
Swift almost as the heaven ye behold.

Beatrice upward gaz'd, and I on her ;
And in such space as on the notch a dart
Is plac'd, then loosen'd flies, I saw myself
Arriv'd, where wond'rous thing engag'd my sight.
Whence she, to whom no care of mine was hid,
Turning to me, with aspect glad as fair,
Bespeak me : " Gratefully direct thy mind
To God, through whom to this first star^c we come."

Meseem'd as if a cloud^d had cover'd us,
Translucent, solid, firm, and polish'd bright,
Like adamant, which the sun's beam had smit.
Within itself the ever-during pearl
Receiv'd us ; as the wave a ray of light
Receives, and rests unbroken. If I then
Was of corporeal frame, and it transcend
Our weaker thought, how one dimension thus Another could endure, which needs must be
If body enter body ; how much more
Must the desire inflame us to behold
That essence, which discovers by what means
God and our nature join'd ! There will be seen That, which we hold through faith ; not shown by proof,

But in itself intelligibly plain,
E'en as the truth^d that man at first believes.

I answer'd : " Lady ! I with thoughts devout,
Such as I best can frame, give thanks to him,
Who hath remov'd me from the mortal world.

But tell, I pray thee, whence the gloomy spots
 Upon this body, which below on earth
 Give rise to talk of Cain^e in fabling quaint?"

She somewhat smil'd, then spake: "If mortals err
 In their opinion, when the key of sense
 Unlocks not, surely wonder's weapon keen
 Ought not to pierce thee; since thou find'st, the wings
 Of reason to pursue the senses' flight
 Are short. But what thy own thought is, declare."

Then I: "What various here above appears,
 Is caus'd, I deem, by bodies dense or rare."^f

She then resum'd: "Thou certainly wilt see
 In falsehood thy belief o'erwhelm'd, if well
 Thou listen to the arguments which I Shall bring to face it. The eighth sphere displays
 Numberless lights,^g the which, in kind and size,
 May be remark'd of different aspects:
 If rare or dense of that were cause alone,
 One single virtue then would be in all;
 Alike distributed, or more, or less.
 Different virtues needs must be the fruits
 Of formal principles; and these, save one,^h
 Will by thy reasoning be destroy'd. Beside,
 If rarity were of that dusk the cause,
 Which thou inquirest, either in some part
 That planet must throughout be void, nor fed
 With it's own matter; or, as bodies share
 Their fat and leanness, in like manner this Must in it's volume change the leaves.ⁱ The first,
 If it were true, had through the sun's eclipse
 Been manifested, by transparency

Of light, as through aught rare beside effus'd.
But this is not. Therefore remains to see
The other cause: and, if the other fall,
Erroneous so must prove what seem'd to thee.
If not from side to side this rarity
Pass through, there needs must be a limit, whence
It's contrary no farther lets it pass.
And hence the beam, that from without proceeds,
Must be pour'd back; as colour comes, through glass
Reflected, which behind it lead conceals.
Now wilt thou say, that there of murkier hue,
Than, in the other part, the fay is shown,
By being thence refracted farther back.
From this perplexity will free thee soon
Experience, if thereof thou trial make,
The fountain whence your arts derive their streams.
Three mirrors shalt thou take, and two remove
From thee alike; and more remote the third,
Betwixt the former pair, shall meet thine eyes;
Then turn'd toward them, cause behind thy back
A light to stand, that on the three shall shine,
And thus reflected come to thee from all.
Though that, beheld most distant, do not stretch
A space so ample, yet in brightness thou
Wilt own it equaling the rest. But now,
As under snow the ground, if the warm ray
Smites it, remains dismantled of the hue
And cold, that cover'd it before; so thee,
Dismantled in thy mind, I will inform
With light so lively, that the tremulous beam
Shall quiver where it falls. Within the heaven,

Where peace divine inhabits, circles round
 A body, in whose virtue lies the being
 Of all that it contains. The following heaven,
 That hath so many lights, this being divides,
 Through different essences, from it distinct,
 And yet contain'd within it. The other orbs
 Their separate distinctions variously Dispose, for their own seed and produce apt.
 Thus do these organs of the world proceed,
 As thou beholdest now, from step to step ;
 Their influences from above deriving,
 And thence transmitting downwards. Mark me well ;
 How through this passage to the truth I ford,
 The truth thou lov'st ; that thou henceforth, alone,
 May'st know to keep the shallows, safe, untold.

“ The virtue' and motion of the sacred orbs,
 As mallet by the workman's hand, must needs
 By blessed movers^k be inspir'd. This heaven,^l
 Made beauteous by so many luminaries,
 From the deep spirit,^m that moves it's circling sphere,
 It's image takes and impress as a seal :
 And as the soul, that dwells within your dust,
 Through members different, yet together form'd,
 In different pow'rs resolves itself ; e'en so
 The intellectual efficacy' unfolds
 It's goodness multiplied throughout the stars ;
 On it's own unity revolving still.
 Different virtue compact different
 Makes with the precious body it enlivens,
 With which it knits, as life in you is knit.
 From it's original nature full of joy,

The virtue mingledⁿ through the body shines,
As joy through pupil of the living eye.
From hence proceeds that which from light to light
Seems different, and not from dense or rare.
This is the formal cause, that generates,
Proportion'd to it's power, the dusk or clear."

CANTO III.

Argument.

In the moon Dante meets with Piccarda, the sister of Forese, who tells him that this planet is allotted to those, who, after having made profession of chastity and a religious life, had been compelled to violate their vows; and she then points out to him the spirit of the Empress Costanza.

THAT sun,^a which erst with love my bosom warm'd,
 Had of fair truth unveil'd the sweet aspect,
 By proof of right, and of the false reproof;
 And I, to own myself convinc'd and free
 Of doubt, as much as needed, rais'd my head
 Erect for speech. But soon a sight appear'd,
 Which, so intent to mark it, held me fix'd,
 That of confession I no longer thought.

As through translucent and smooth glass, or wave
 Clear and unmov'd, and flowing not so deep
 As that it's bed is dark, the shape returns
 So faint of our impictur'd lineaments,
 That, on white forehead set, a pearl as strong
 Comes to the eye; such saw I many a face,
 All stretch'd to speak: from whence I straight conceiv'd
 Delusion^b opposite to that, which rais'd,

Between the man and fountain, amorous flame.

Sudden, as I perceiv'd them; deeming these Reflected semblances, to see of whom
They were, I turn'd mine eyes, and nothing saw ;
Then turn'd them back, directed on the light
Of my sweet guide, who, smiling, shot forth beams
From her celestial eyes. " Wonder not thou,"
She cry'd, " at this my smiling, when I see
Thy childish judgment ; since not yet on truth
It rests the foot, but, as it still is wont,
Makes thee fall back in unsound vacancy.
True substances are these, which thou behold'st,
~~Higher~~ through failure of their vow exil'd.
But speak thou with them ; listen, and believe,
That the true light, which fills them with desire,
Permits not from it's beams their feet to stray."

Straight to the shadow, which for converse seem'd

Most earnest, I address'd me ; and began,
As one by over-eagerness perplex'd :
" O spirit, born for joy ! who in the rays
Of life eternal, of that sweetness know'st
The flavour, which, not tasted, passes far
All apprehension ; me it well would please,
If thou wouldest tell me of thy name, and this Your station here." Whence she, with kindness prompt,

And eyes glist'ring with smiles : " Our charity,
To any wish by justice introduc'd,
Bars not the door ; no more than she above,
Who would have all her court be like herself.

I was a virgin sister in the earth :
 And if thy mind observe me well, this form,
 With such addition grac'd of loveliness,
 Will not conceal me long ; but thou wilt know
 Piccarda, in the tardiest sphere thus plac'd,
 Here 'mid these other blessed also blest.
 Our hearts, whose high affections burn alone
 With pleasure from the Holy Spirit conceiv'd,
 Admitted to his order, dwell in joy.
 And this condition, which appears so low,
 Is for this cause assign'd us, that our vows
 Were, in some part, neglected and made void."

Whence I to her replied : " Something divin~~o~~
 Beams in your countenances wond'rous fair ;
 From former knowledge quite transmuting you.
 Therefore to recollect was I so slow.
 But what thou sayst hath to my memory
 Given now such aid, that to retrace your forms
 Is easier. Yet inform me, ye, who here
 Are happy ; long ye for a higher place,
 More to behold, and more in love to dwell ? "

She with those other spirits gently smil'd ;
 Then answer'd with such gladness, that she seem'd
 With love's first flame to glow : " Brother ! our will
 Is, in composure, settled by the power
 Of charity, who makes us will alone
 What we possess, and nought beyond desire :
 If we should wish to be exalted more,
 Then must our wishes jar with the high will
 Of him, who sets us here ; which in these orbs
 Thou wilt confess not possible, if here

To be in charity must needs befall,
 And if her nature well thou contemplate.
 Rather it is inherent in this state
 Of blessedness, to keep ourselves within
 The divine will, by which our wills with his
 Are one: So that as we, from step to step,
 Are plac'd throughout this kingdom, pleases all,
 Even as our King, who in us plants his will;
 And in his will is our tranquillity:
 It is the mighty ocean, whither tends Whatever it creates and nature makes."

Then saw I clearly how each spot in heav'n
 In Paradise, though with like gracious dew
 The supreme virtue show'r ~~not~~ over all.

But as it chances, if one sort of food
 Hath satiated, and of another still
 The appetite remains, that this is ask'd,
 And thanks for that return'd; even so did I,
 In word and motion, bent from her to learn
 What web it was,^d through which she had not drawn
 The shuttle to its point. She thus began:
 "Exalted worth and perfectness of life
 The lady^e higher up inshrine in heaven,
 By whose pure laws upon your nether earth
 The robe and veil they wear; to that intent,
 That even till death they may keep watch, or sleep,
 With their great bridegroom, who accepts each vow,
 Which to his gracious pleasure love conforms.
 I from the world, to follow her, when young
 Escap'd; and, in her vesture mantling me,
 Made promise of the way her sect enjoins.

Thereafter men, for ill than good more apt,
Forth snatch'd me from the pleasant cloister's pale.
God knows^f how, after that, my life was fram'd.
This other splendid shape, which thou beholdst
At my right side, burning with all the light
Of this our orb, what of myself I tell
May to herself apply. From her, like me
A sister, with like violence were torn
The saintly folds, that shaded her fair brows.
E'en when she to the world again was brought
In spite of her own will and better wont,
Yet not for that the bosom's inward veil
Did she renounce. This is the luminary
Of mighty Constance,^g who from that loud blast,
Which blew the second^h over Suabia's realm,
That power produc'd, which was the third and last."

She ceas'd from further talk, and then began
"Ave Maria" singing; and with that song
Vanish'd, as heavy substance through deep wave.

Mine eye, that, far as it was capable,
Pursu'd her, when in dimness she was lost,
Turn'd to the mark where greater want impell'd,
And bent on Beatrice all it's gaze.
But she, as lightning, beam'd upon my looks;
So that the sight sustain'd it not at first.
Whence I to question her became less prompt.

CANTO IV.

Argument.

While they still continue in the moon, Beatrice removes certain doubts, which Dante had conceived respecting the place assigned to the blessed, and respecting the will absolute or conditional. He inquires whether it is possible to make satisfaction for a vow broken.

BETWEEN two kinds of food,^a both equally Remote and tempting, first a man might die Of hunger, ere he one could freely choose. E'en so would stand a lamb between the maw Of two fierce wolves, in dread of both alike : E'en so between two deer^b a dog would stand. Wherefore, if I was silent, fault nor praise I to myself impute ; by equal doubts Held in suspense ; since of necessity It happen'd. Silent was I, yet desire Was painted in my looks ; and thus I spake My wish more earnestly than language could.

As Daniel,^c when the haughty king he freed From ire, that spurr'd him on to deeds unjust And violent ; so did Beatrice then.

" Well I discern," she thus her words address'd, " How thou art drawn by each of these desires ;^d

So that thy anxious thought is in itself
Bound up and stifled, nor breathes freely forth.
Thou arguest: if the good intent remain;
What reason that another's violence
Should stint the measure of my fair desert?

“Cause too thou findst for doubt, in that it seems,
That spirits to the stars, as Plato^e deem'd, Return. These are the questions which thy will Urge equally; and therefore I, the first,
Of that^f will treat which hath the more of gall.^g
Of seraphim^h he who is most ensky'd,
Moses and Samuel, and either John,
Choose which thou wilt, nor even Mary's self,
Have not in any other heav'n their seats,
Than have those spirits which so late thou saw'st;
Nor more or fewer years exist; but all
Make the first circleⁱ beauteous, diversly
Partaking of sweet life, as more or less
Afflation of eternal bliss pervades them.
Here were they shown thee, not that fate assigns
This for their sphere, but for a sign to thee
Of that celestial furthest from the height.
Thus needs, that ye may apprehend, we speak:
Since from things sensible alone ye learn
That, which, digested rightly, after turns
To intellectual. For no other cause
The scripture, condescending graciously
To your perception, hands and feet^j to God
Attributes, nor so means: and holy church
Doth represent with human countenance
Gabriel, and Michäel, and him who made

Tobias whole.^k Unlike what here thou seest,
 The judgment of Timæus,^l who affirms
 Each soul restor'd to it's particular star ;
 Believing it to have been taken thence,
 When nature gave it to inform her mold :
 Yet to appearance his intention is
 Not what his words declare : and so to shun
 Derision, haply thus he hath disguis'd
 His true opinion.^m If his meaning be,
 That to the influencing of these orbs revert
 The honour and the blame in human acts,
 Perchance he doth not wholly miss the truth.
 This principle, not understood aright,
 Erewhile perverted well nigh all the world ;
 So that it fell to fabled names of Jove,
 And Mercury, and Mars. That other doubt,
 Which moves thee, is less harmful ; for it brings
 No peril of removing thee from me.

“ That, to the eye of man,ⁿ our justice seems Unjust, is argument for faith, and not
 For heretic declension. But, to the end
 This truth^o may stand more clearly in your view,
 I will content thee even to thy wish.

“ If violence be, when that which suffers, nought
 Consents to that which forceth, not for this These spirits stood exculpate. For the will,
 That wills not, still survives unquench'd, and doth,
 As nature doth in fire, though violence
 Wrest it a thousand times ; for, if it yield
 Or more or less, so far it follows force.
 And thus did these, when they had power to seek

The hallow'd place again. In them, had will
Been perfect, such as once upon the bars
Held Laurence^p firm, or wrought in Scævola^q
To his own hand remorseless ; to the path,
Whence they were drawn, their steps had hasten'd back,

When liberty return'd : but in too few,
Resolve, so steadfast, dwells. And by these words
If duly weigh'd, that argument is void,
Which oft might have perplex'd thee still. But now
Another question thwarts thee, which, to solve,
Might try thy patience without better aid.
I have, no doubt, instill'd into thy mind,
That blessed spirit may not lie ; since near
The source of primal truth it dwells for aye :
And thou might'st after of Piccarda learn
That Constance held affection to the veil ;
So that she seems to contradict me here.
Not seldom, brother, it hath chanc'd for men
To do what they had gladly left undone ;
Yet, to shun peril, they have done amiss :
E'en as Alcæon,^r at his father's^s suit
Slew his own mother ;^t so made pitiless,
Not to lose pity. On this point bethink thee,
That force and will are blended in such wise
As not to make the' offence excusable.
Absolute will agrees not to the wrong ;
But inasmuch as there is fear of woe
From non-compliance, it agrees. Of will,^u
Thus absolute, Piccarda spake, and I
Of the' other ; so that both have truly said."

Such was the flow of that pure rill, that well'd
 From forth the fountain of all truth ; and such
 The rest, that to my wand'ring thoughts I found.

“O thou, of primal love the prime delight,
 Goddess !” I straight reply'd, “whose lively words
 Still shed new heat and vigour through my soul ;
 Affection fails me to requite thy grace
 With equal sum of gratitude : be his
 To recompense, who sees and can reward thee.
 Well I discern, that by that truth^v alone
 Enlighten'd, beyond which no truth may roam,
 Our mind can satisfy her thirst to know :
 Therein she resteth, e'en as in his lair
 The wild beast, soon as she hath reach'd that bound.
 And she hath power to reach it ; else desire
 Were given to no end. And thence doth doubt
 Spring, like a shoot, around the stock of truth ;
 And it is nature which, from height to height,
 On to the summit prompts us. This invites,
 This doth assure me, Lady ! rev'rently
 To ask thee of another truth, that yet
 Is dark to me. I fain would know, if man
 By other works well-done may so supply
 The failure of his vows, that in your scale
 They lack not weight.” I spake ; and on me straight Beatrice look'd, with eyes that shot forth sparks
 Of love celestial, in such copious stream, •
 That, virtue sinking in me overpower'd,
 I turn'd ; and downward bent, confus'd, my sight.

CANTO V.

Argument.

The question proposed in the last Canto is answered. Dante ascends with Beatrice to the planet Mercury, which is the second heaven ; and here he finds a multitude of spirits, one of whom offers to satisfy him of any thing he may desire to know from them.

“ If beyond earthly wont,^a the flame of love
Illume me, so that I o'ercome thy power
Of vision, marvel not : but learn the cause
In that perfection of the sight, which, soon
As apprehending, hasteneth on to reach
The good it apprehends. I well discern,
How in thine intellect already shines
The light eternal, which to view alone
Ne'er fails to kindle love ; and if aught else
Your love seduces, 't is but that it shows
Some ill-mark'd vestige of that primal beam.

“ This would'st thou know : if failure of the vow
By other service may be so supplied,
As from self-question to assure the soul.”

Thus she her words, not heedless of^a my wish,
Began ; and thus, as one who breaks not off
Discourse, continued in her saintly strain.
“ Supreme of gifts,^b which God, creating, gave

Of his free bounty, sign most evident
 Of goodness, and in his account most priz'd,
 Was liberty of will ; the boop, wherewith
 All intellectual creatures, and them sole,
 He hath endow'd. Hence now thou mayst infer
 Of what high worth the vow, which so is fram'd,
 That when man offers, God well-pleas'd accepts :
 For in the compact between God and him,
 This treasure, such as I describe it to thee,
 He makes the victim ; and of his own act.
 What compensation therefore may he find ?
 If that, whereof thou hast oblation made,
 By issing well thou think'st to consecrate,
 Thou would'st of theft^c do charitable deed.
 Thus I resolve thee of the greater point.

“ But forasmuch as holy church, herein
 Dispensing, seems to contradict the truth
 I have discover'd to thee, yet behoves
 Thou rest a little longer at the board,
 Ere the crude aliment which thou hast ta'en,
 Digested fitly, to nutrition turn.
 Open thy mind to what I now unfold ;
 And give it inward keeping. Knowledge comes
 Of learning well retain'd, unfruitful else.

“ This sacrifice, in essence, of two things^d
 Consisteth : one is that, whereof 't is made ;
 The covenant, the other. For the last,
 It ne'er is cancel'd, if not kept : and hence
 I spake, erewhile, so strictly of it's force.
 For this it was enjoin'd the Israelites,^e.

Though leave were giv'n them, as thou know'st, to change

The offering, still to offer. The' other part,
The matter and the substance of the vow,
May well be such, as that, without offence,
It may for other substance be exchang'd.
But, at his own discretion, none may shift
The burden on his shoulders ; unreleas'd
By either key,^f the yellow and the white.
Nor deem of any change, as less than vain,
If the last bond^g be not within the new
Included, as the quatre in the six.
No satisfaction therefore can be paid
For what so precious in the balance weighs,
That all in counterpoise must kick the beam.
Take then no vow at random : ta'en, with faith
Preserve it ; yet not bent, as Jephthah once,
Blindly to execute a rash resolve,
Whom better it had suited to exclaim,
'I have done ill,' than to redeem his pledge
By doing worse : or, not unlike to him
In folly, that great leader of the Greeks ;
Whence, on the altar, Iphigenia mourn'd
Her virgin beauty, and hath since made mourn
Both wise and simple, even all, who hear
Of so fell sacrifice. Be ye more staid,
O Christians ! not, like feather, by each wind
Removeable ; nor think to cleanse yourselves
In every water. Either testament,
The old and new, is your's : and for your guide,
The shepherd of the church. Let this suffice

To save you. When by evil lust entic'd,
 Remember ye be men, not senseless beasts ;
 Nor let the Jew, who dwelleth in your streets,
 Hold you in mock'ry. Be not, as the lamb,
 That, fickle wanton, leaves it's mother's milk,
 To dally with itself in idle play."

Such were the words that Beatrice spake :
 These ended, to that region,^h where the world
 Is liveliest, full of fond desire she turn'd.

Though mainly prompt new question to propose,
 Her silence and chang'd look did keep me dumb.
 And as the arrow, ere the cord is still,
 Leapeth unto it's mark ; so on we sped
 Into the second realm. There I beheld
 The dame, so joyous, enter, that the orb
 Grew brighter at her smiles ; and, if the star
 Were mov'd to gladness, what then was my cheer,
 Whom nature hath made apt for every change !

As in a quiet and clear lake the fish,
 If aught approach them from without, do draw
 Towards it, deeming it their food ; so drew
 Full more than thousand splendours towards us ;
 And in each one was heard : " Lo ! one arriv'd
 To multiply our loves !" and as each came,
 The shadow, streaming forth effulgence new,
 Witness'd augmented joy. Here, reader ! think,
 If thou didst miss the sequel of my tale,
 To know the rest how sorely thou wouldest crave ;
 And thou shalt see what vehement desire
 Possess'd me, soon as these had met my view,
 To know their state. " O born in happy hour !

Thou, to whom grace vouchsafes, or ere thy close
Of fleshly warfare, to behold the thrones
Of that eternal triumph ; know, to us
The light communicated, which through heaven
Expatiates without bound. Therefore, if aught
Thou of our beams wouldest borrow for thine aid, Spare not ; and, of our radiance, take thy fill."

Thus of those piteous spirits one bespake me ;
And Beatrice next : " Say on ; and trust
As unto gods."—" How in the light supreme Thou harbour'st, and from thence the virtue bring'st,
That, sparkling in thine eyes, denotes thy joy,
I mark : but, who thou art, am still to seek ;
Or wherefore, worthy spirit ! for thy lot
This sphereⁱ assign'd, that oft from mortal ken
Is veil'd by other's beams." I said ; and turn'd Toward the lustre, that with greeting kind Erewhile had hail'd me. Forthwith, brighter far
Than erst, it wax'd : and, as himself the sun
Hides through excess of light, when his warm gaze^k
Hath on the mantle of thick vapours prey'd ;
Within its proper ray the saintly shape
Was, through increase of gladness, thus conceal'd ;
And, shrouded so in splendour, answer'd me,
E'en as the tenour of my song declares.

CANTO VI.

Argument.

The spirit, who had offered to satisfy the inquiries of Dante, declares himself to be the Emperor Justinian; and after speaking of his own actions, recounts the victories, before him, obtained under the Roman Eagle. He then informs our Poet that the soul of Romeo the pilgrim is in the same star.

“ AFTER that Constantine the eagle turn’d^a
 Against the motions of the heav’n, that roll’d
 Consenting with it’s course, when he of yore,
 Lavinia’s spouse, was leader of the flight ;
 A hundred years twice told and more,^b his seat
 At Europe’s extreme point,^c the bird of Jove
 Held, near the mountains, whence he issued first ;
 There under shadow of his sacred plumes
 Swaying the world, till through successive hands.
 To mine he came devolv’d. Cæsar I was ;
 And am Justinian ; destin’d by the will
 Of that prime love, whose influence I feel,
 From vain excess to clear the’ incumber’d jaws.^d
 Or ere that work engag’d me, I did hold
 In Christ one nature only ;^e with such faith
 Contented. But the blessed Agapete,^f
 Who was chief shepherd, he with warning voice

To the true faith recall'd me. I believ'd
 His words: and what he taught, now plainly see,
 As thou in every contradiction seest
 The true and false oppos'd. Soon as my feet
 Were to the church reclaim'd, to my great task;
 By inspiration of God's grace impell'd,
 I gave me wholly; and consign'd mine arms
 To Belisarius, with whom heav'n's right hand
 Was link'd in such conjointment, 't was a sign
 That I should rest. To thy first question thus
 I shape mine answer, which were ended here,
 But that its tendency doth prompt perforce
 To some addition; that thou well mayst mark,
 What reason on each side they have to plead,
 By whom that holiest banner is withheld,
 Both who pretend it's power^g and who oppose.^h

“ Beginning from that hour, when Pallas diedⁱ
 To give it rule, behold the valorous deeds
 Have made it worthy reverence. Not unknown^k
 To thee, how for three hundred years and more
 It dwelt in Alba, up to those fell lists
 Where, for it's sake, were met the rival three:^j
 Nor aught unknown to thee, which it achiev'd
 Down^m from the Sabines' wrong to Lucrece' woe;
 With it's sev'n kings conqu'ring the nations round:
 Nor all it wrought, by Roman worthies borne
 'Gainst Brennus and the' Epirot prince,ⁿ and hosts
 Of single chiefs, or states in league combin'd
 Of social warfare: hence, Torquatus stern,
 And Quintius^o nam'd of his neglected locks,
 The Decii, and the Fabii hence acquir'd

Their fame, which I with duteous zeal embalm.^p
 By it the pride of Arab hordes^q was quell'd,
 When they, led on by Hannibal, o'erpass'd
 The Alpine rocks, whence glide thy currents, Po !
 Beneath it's guidance, in their prime of days
 Scipio and Pompey triumph'd ; and that hill,^r
 Under whose summit's thou didst see the light,
 Rued it's stern bearing. After, near the hour,^t
 When heav'n was minded that o'er all the world
 His own deep calm should brood, to Cæsar's hand
 Did Rome consign it ; and what then it wrought^u
 From Var unto the Rhine, saw Isere's flood,
 Saw Loire and Seine, and every vale, that fills
 The torrent Rhone. What after that it wrought,
 When from Ravenna it came forth, and leap'd
 The Rubicon, was of so bold a flight,
 That tongue nor pen may follow it. Tow'rds Spain
 It wheel'd it's bands, then tow'rd Dyrrachium smote,
 And on Pharsalia, with so fierce a plunge,
 E'en the warm Nile was conscious to the pang ;
 It's native shores Antandros, and the streams
 Of Simois revisited, and there
 Where Hector lies ; then ill for Ptolemy
 His pennons shook again ; lightening thence fell
 On Juba ; and the next, upon your west,
 At sound of the Pompeian trump, return'd.

“ What following, and in it's next bearer's gripe,^v
 It wrought, is now by Cassius and Brutus
 Bark'd of^w in hell ; and by Perugia's sons,
 And Modena's, was mourn'd. Hence weepeth still

Sad Cleopatra, who, pursued by it,
 Took from the adder black and sudden death.
 With him it ran e'en to the Red Sea coast ;
 With him compos'd the world to such a peace,
 That of his temple Janus barr'd the door.

“ But all the mighty standard yet had wrought,
 And was appointed to perform thereafter,
 Throughout the mortal kingdom which it sway'd,
 Falls in appearance dwindle'd and obscur'd,
 If one with steady eye and perfect thought
 On the third Cæsar^x look ; for to his hands,
 The living Justice, in whose breath I move,
 Committed glory, e'en into his hands,
 To execute the vengeance of it's wrath.

“ Hear now, and wonder at, what next I tell.
 After with Titus it was sent to wreak
 Vengeance for vengeance^y of the ancient sin.
 And, when the Lombard tooth, with fang impure,
 Did gore the bosom of the holy church,
 Under it's wings, victorious, Charlemagne^z
 Sped to her rescue. Judge then for thyself
 Of those, whom I erewhile accus'd to thee,
 What they are, and how grievous their offending,
 Who are the cause of all your ills. The one
 Against the universal ensign rears
 The yellow lilies ;^{aa} and with partial aim,
 That, to himself, the other arrogates :
 So that 't is hard to see which more offends.
 Be your's, ye Ghibellines,^{ab} to veil your arts
 Beneath another standard : ill is this

Follo'w'd of him, who severs it and justice :
 And let not with his Guelphs the new-crown'd
 Charles^{ac}

Assail it ; but those talons hold in dread,
 Which from a lion of more lofty port
 Have rent the casing. Many a time ere now
 The sons have for the sire's transgression wail'd :
 Nor let him trust the fond belief, that heav'n
 Will truck it's armour for his lillied shield.

“ This little star is furnish'd with good spirits,
 Whose mortal lives were busied to that end,
 That honour and renown might wait on them :
 And, when desires^{ad} thus err in their intention,
 True love must needs ascend with slacker beam.
 But it is part of our delight, to measure
 Our wages with the merit ; and admire
 The close proportion. Hence doth heav'nly justice
 Temper so evenly affection in us,
 It ne'er can warp to any wrongfulness.
 Of diverse voices is sweet music made :
 So in our life the different degrees
 Render sweet harmony among these wheels.

“ Within the pearl, that now encloseth us,
 Shines Romeo's light,^{ae} whose goodly deed and fair
 Met ill acceptance. But the Provençals,
 That were his foes, have little cause for mirth.
 Ill shapes that man his course, who makes his wrong
 Of other's worth. Four daughters^{af} were there born
 To Raymond Berenger ;^{ag} and every one
 Became a queen : and this for him did Romeo,

Though of mean state and from a foreign land.
Yet envious tongues incited him to ask
A reckoning of that just one, who return'd
Twelve fold to him for ten. Aged and poor
He parted thence : and if the world did know
The heart he had, begging his life by morsels,
'Twould deem the praise, it yields him, scantily dealt."

CANTO VII.

Argument.

In consequence of what had been said by Justinian, who together with the other spirits have now disappeared, some doubts arise in the mind of Dante respecting the human redemption. These difficulties are fully explained by Beatrice.

“Hosanna Sancta Deus Sabaoth
 Superillustrans claritate tuâ Felices ignes horum malahoth!”^a
 Thus chanting saw I turn that substance bright,^b
 With fourfold lustre to it’s orb again,
 Revolving ; and the rest, unto their dance,
 With it, mov’d also ; and, like swiftest sparks,
 In sudden distance from my sight were veil’d.

Me doubt possess’d ; and “Speak,” it whisper’d me,
 “Speak, speak unto thy lady ; that she quench
 Thy thirst with drops of sweetness.” Yet blank awe,
 Which lords it o’er me, even at the sound
 Of Beatrice’s name, did bow me down
 As one in slumber held. Not long that mood
 Beatrice suffer’d : she, with such a smile,
 As might have made one blest amid the flames,^c
 Beaming upon me, thus her words began :

“Thou in thy thought art pond’ring (as I deem,
And what I deem is truth) how just revenge
Could be with justice punish’d : from which doubt
I soon will free thee ; so thou mark my words ;
For they of weighty matter shall possess thee.

“Enduring not the bridle on his will,
That man, who was unborn,^d himself condemn’d ;
And, in himself, all, who since him have liv’d,
His offspring : whence, below, the human kind
Lay sick in grievous error many an age ;
Until it pleas’d the Word of God to come
Amongst them down, to his own person joining
The nature from it’s Maker far estrang’d,
By the mere act of his eternal love.
Contemplate here the wonder I unfold.
The nature with it’s maker thus conjoin’d,
Created first was blameless, pure, and good ;
But, through itself alone, was driven forth
From Paradise, because it had eschew’d,
The way of truth and life, to evil turn’d.
Ne’er then was penalty so just as that Inflicted by the cross, if thou regard
The nature in assumption doom’d ; ne’er wrong
So great, in reference to him, who took
Such nature on him, and endur’d the doom.
So different effects^e flow’d from one act :
For by one death God and the Jews were pleas’d ;
And heav’n was open’d, though the earth did quake.
Count it not hard henceforth, when thou dost hear
That a just vengeance^f was, by righteous court,
Justly reveng’d. But yet I see thy mind,

By thought on thought arising, sore perplex'd ;
 And, with how vehement desire, it asks
 Solution of the maze. What I have heard,
 Is plain, thou say'st: but wherefore God this way
 For our redemption chose, eludes my search.

“ Brother ! no eye of man not perfected,
 Nor fully ripen'd in the flame of love,
 May fathom this decree. It is a mark,
 In sooth, much aim'd at, and but little kenn'd :
 And I will therefore show thee why such way
 Was worthiest. The celestial love, “ that spurns
 All envying in it's bounty, in itself
 With such effulgence blazeth, as sends forth
 All beauteous things eternal. What distilsh
 Immediate thence, no end of being knows ;
 Bearing its seal immutably impress'd.
 Whatever thence immediate falls, is free,
 Free wholly, uncontrollable by power
 Of each thing new : by such conformity
 More grateful to it's author, whose bright beams, Though all partake their shining, yet in those
 Are liveliest, which resemble him the most.
 These tokens of pre-eminenceⁱ on man
 Largely bestow'd, if any of them fail,
 He needs must forfeit his nobility,
 No longer stainless: Sin alone is that,
 Which doth disfranchise him, and make unlike
 To the chief good; for that it's light in him
 Is darken'd. And to dignity thus lost
 Is no return ; unless, where guilt makes void,

He for ill pleasure pay with equal pain.
Your nature, which entirely in it's seed
Transgress'd, from these distinctions fell, no less Than from it's state in Paradise ; nor means Found of recovery (search all methods out
As strictly as thou may) save one of these,
The only fords were left through which to wade :
Either, that God had of his courtesy
Releas'd him merely ; or else, man himself
For his own folly by himself aton'd.

“ Fix now thine eye, intently as thou canst,
On the' everlasting counsel ; and explore,
Instructed by my words, the dread abyss.

“ Man in himself had ever lack'd the means
Of satisfaction, for he could not stoop
Obeying, in humility so low,
As high, he, disobeying, thought to soar :
And, for this reason, he had vainly tried,
Out of his own sufficiency, to pay
The rigid satisfaction. Then behov'd
That God should by his own ways lead him back
Unto the life, from whence he fell, restor'd :
By both his ways, I mean, or one alone.
But since the deed is ever priz'd the more,
The more the doer's good intent appears ;
Goodness celestial, whose broad signature
Is on the universe, of all it's ways
To raise ye up, was fain to leave out none.
Nor aught so vast or so magnificent,
Either for him who gave or who receiv'd,

Between the last night and the primal day,
 Was or can be. For God more bounty show'd,
 Giving himself to make man capable
 Of his return to life, than had the terms
 Been mere and unconditional release.
 And for his justice, every method else
 Were all too scant, had not the Son of God
 Humbled himself to put on mortal flesh.

“ Now, to content thee fully, I revert;
 And further in some part^k unfold my speech,
 That thou mayst see it clearly as myself.

“ I see, thou sayst, the air, the fire I see,
 The earth and water, and all things of them
 Compounded, to corruption turn, and soon
 Dissolve. Yet these were also things create.
 Because, if what were told me, had been true,
 They from corruption had been therefore free.

“ The angels, O my brother! and this clime
 Wherein thou art, impassible and pure,
 I call created, even as they are
 In their whole being. But the elements,
 Which thou hast nam'd, and what of them is made,
 Are by created virtue' inform'd: create,
 Their substance; and create, the' informing virtue
 In these bright stars, that round them circling move.
 The soul of every*brute and of each plant,
 The ray and motion of the sacred lights,
 Draw^l from complexion with meet power endued.
 But this our life the' eternal good inspires
 Immediate, and enamours of itself;

So that our wishes rest for ever here.

“ And hence thou mayst by inference conclude
Our resurrection certain,” if thy mind
Consider how the human flesh was fram’d,
When both our parents at the first were made.”

CANTO VIII.

Argument.

The Poet ascends with Beatrice to the third heaven, which is the planet Venus; and here finds the soul of Charles Martel, king of Hungary, who had been Dante's friend on earth, and who now, after speaking of the realms to which he was heir, unfolds the cause why children differ in disposition from their parents.

THE world^a was, in it's day of peril dark,
 Wont to believe the dotage of fond love,
 From the fair Cyprian deity, who rolls
 In her third epicycle,^b shed on men
 By stream of potent radiance: therefore they
 Of elder time, in their old error blind,
 Not her alone with sacrifice ador'd
 And invocation, but like honours paid
 To Cupid and Dione, deem'd of them
 Her mother, and her son, him whom they feign'd
 To sit in Dido's bosom:^c and from her,
 Whom I have sung preluding, borrow'd they
 The appellation of that star, which views
 Now obvious,^d and now averse, the sun.

I was not ware that I was wafted up
 Into it's orb; but the new loveliness,
 That grac'd my lady, gave me ample proof

That we had enter'd there. And as in flame
 A sparkle is distinct, or voice in voice
 Discern'd, when one it's even tenour keeps,
 The other comes and goes ; so in that light
 I other luminaries saw, that cours'd
 In circling motion, rapid more or less,
 As their^e eternal vision each impels.

Never was blast from vapour charg'd with cold,
 Whether invisible to eye or no,^f
 Descended with such speed, it had not seem'd
 To linger in dull tardiness, compar'd
 To those celestial lights, that tow'rds us came,
 Leaving the circuit of their joyous ring,
 Conducted by the lofty seraphim.
 And after them, who in the van appear'd,
 Such an Hosanna sounded, as hath left
 Desire, ne'er since extinct in me, to hear
 Renew'd the strain. Then, parting from the rest,
 One near us drew, and sole began : " We all
 Are ready at thy pleasure, well dispos'd
 To do thee gentle service. We are they,
 To whom thou in the world erewhile didst sing ;
 'O ye ! whose intellectual ministry^g
 Moves the third heaven : ' and in one orb we roll,
 One motion, one impulse, with those who rule
 Prinedoms in heaven ;^h yet are of love so full,
 That to please thee 't will be as sweet to rest."

After mine eyes had with meek reverence
 Sought the celestial guide, and were by her
 Assur'd, they turn'd again unto the light,
 Who had so largely promis'd ; and with voice

That bare the lively pressure of my zeal,
 "Tell who ye are," I cried. Forthwith it grew
 In size and splendour, through augmented joy:
 And thus it answer'd: "A short date, below,
 The world possess'd me. Had the time been more,ⁱ
 Much evil, that will come, had never chanc'd.
 My gladness hides thee from me, which doth shine
 Around, and shroud me, as an animal
 In it's own silk enswath'd. Thou lov'dst me well,^j
 And hadst good cause; for had my sojourning
 Been longer on the earth, the love I bare thee
 Had put forth more than blossoms. The left bank,^k
 That Rhone, when he hath mix'd with Sorga, laves,
 In me it's lord expected, and that horn
 Of fair Ausonia,^l with it's boroughs old,
 Bari, and Croton, and Gaeta pil'd,
 From where the Trento disembogues his waves,
 With Verde mingled, to the salt sea-flood.
 Already on my temples beam'd the crown,
 Which gave me sov'reignty over the land^m
 By Danube wash'd, whenas he strays beyond
 The limits of his German shores. The realm,
 Where, on the gulf by stormy Eurus lash'd,
 Betwixt Pelorus and Pachynian heights,
 'The beautiful Trinacriaⁿ lies in gloom,
 (Not through Typhœus,^o but the vap'ry cloud Bituminous upstream'd,) that too did look
 To have it's sceptre wielded by a race
 Of monarchs, sprung through me from Charles and Rodolph;^p
 Had not ill-lording,^q which doth spirit up

The people ever, in Palermo rais'd
 The shout of 'death,' re-echo'd loud and long.
 Had but my brother's foresight kenn'd as much,
 He had been warier, that the greedy want
 Of Catalonia might not work his bale.
 And truly need there is, that he forecast,
 Or other for him, lest more freight be laid
 On his already over-laden bark.
 Nature in him, from bounty fall'n to thrift,
 Would ask the guard of braver arms, than such
 As only care to have their coffers fill'd."

" My liege ! it doth enhance the joy thy words
 Infuse into me, mighty as it is,
 To think my gladness manifest to thee,
 As to myself, who own it, when thou lookst
 Into the source and limit of all good,
 There, where thou markest that which thou dost speak,
 Thence priz'd of me the more. Glad thou hast made me :
 Now make intelligent, clearing the doubt
 Thy speech hath rais'd in me ; for much I muse,
 How bitter can spring up,^s when sweet is sown."

I thus inquiring ; he forthwith replied :
 " If I have power to show one truth, soon that Shall face thee, which thy questioning declares
 Behind thee now conceal'd. The Good,^t that guides
 And blessed makes this realm which thou dost mount,
 Ordains it's providence to be the virtue
 In these great bodies : nor the natures only
 The all-perfect mind provides for, but with them

*That which preserves them too; for nought, that lies Within the range of that unerring bow,
 But is as level with the destin'd aim,
 As ever mark to arrow's point oppos'd.
 Were it not thus, these heavens, thou dost visit,
 Would their effect so work, it would not be
 Art, but destruction; and this may not chance,
 If the' intellectual powers, that move these stars,
 Fail not, and who, first faulty made them, fail.
 Wilt thou this truth more clearly evidenc'd?"*

To whom I thus: "It is enough: no fear,
 I see, lest nature in her part should tire."

He straight rejoin'd: "Say, were it worse for man,
 If he liv'd not in fellowship on earth?"

"Yea," answer'd I; "nor here a reason needs."
 "And may that be, if different estates
 Grow not of different duties in your life?
 Consult your teacher,^u and he tells you 'no'."

Thus did he come, deducing to this point,
 And then concluded: "For this cause behoves,
 The roots, from whence your operations come,
 Must differ. Therfore one is Solon born;
 Another, Xerxes; and Melchisedec
 A third; and he a fourth, whose airy voyage
 Cost him his son.^v In her circuitous course,
 Nature, that is the seal to mortal wax,
 Doth well her art, but no distinction owns
 'Twixt one or other household. Hence befalls
 That Esau is so wide of Jacob:^w hence
 Quirinus^x of so base a father springs,

He dates from Mars his lineage. Were it not
That providence celestial overrul'd,
Nature, in generation, must the path
Trac'd by the generator still pursue
Unswervingly. Thus place I in thy sight
That, which was late behind thee. But, in sign
Of more affection for thee, 't is my will Thou wear this corollary. Nature ever,
Finding discordant fortune, like all seed
Out of it's proper climate, thrives but ill.
And were the world below content to mark
And work on the foundation nature lays,
It would not lack supply of excellence.
But ye perversely to religion strain
Him, who was born to gird on him the sword,
And of the fluent phraseman make your king:
Therefore your steps have wander'd from the paths."

CANTO IX.

Argument.

The next spirit, who converses with our Poet in the planet Venus, is the amorous Cunizza. To her succeeds Folco, or Folques, the Provençal bard, who declares that the soul of Rahab the harlot is there also ; and then, blaming the Pope for his neglect of the holy land, prognosticates some reverse to the papal power.

AFTER solution of my doubt, thy Charles,
O fair Clemenza,^a of the treachery^b spake,^{*}
That must befall his seed : but, “Tell it not,”
Said he, “and let the destin’d years come round.”
Nor may I tell thee more, save that the meed
Of sorrow well-deserv’d shall quit your wrongs.

And now the visage of that saintly light^c
Was to the sun, that fills it, turn’d again,
As to the good, whose plenitude of bliss
Sufficeth all. O ye misguided souls !
Infatuate, who from such a good estrange
Your hearts, and bend your gaze on vanity,
Alas for you !—And lo ! toward me, next,
Another of those splendid forms approach’d,
That, by its outward bright’ning, testified
The will it had to pleasure me. The eyes
Of Beatrice, resting, as before,
Firmly upon me, manifested forth

Approval of my wish. "And O," I cried,
 "Blest spirit! quickly be my will perform'd;
 And prove thou to me,^d that my inmost thoughts
 I can reflect on thee. Thereat the light,
 That yet was new to me, from the recess,
 Where it before was singing, thus began,
 As one who joys in kindness: "In that part^e
 Of the deprav'd Italian land, which lies
 Between Rialto and the fountain springs
 Of Brenta and of Piava, there doth rise,
 But to no lofty eminence, a hill,
 From whence erewhile a firebrand did descend,
 That sorely shent the region. From one root
 I and it sprang; my name on earth Cunizza:^f
 And ~~he~~ I glitter, for that by it's light
 This star o'ercame me. Yet I nought repine,^g
 Nor grudge myself the cause of this my lot:
 Which haply vulgar hearts can scarce conceive.

This^h jewel, that is next me in our heaven,
 Lustrous and costly, great renown hath left,
 And not to perish, ere these hundred years
 Five timesⁱ absolve their round. Consider thou,
 If to excel be worthy man's endeavour,
 When such life may attend the first.^j Yet they Care not for this, the crowd^k that now are girt
 By Adice and Tagliamento, still .
 Impenitent, though scourg'd. The hour is near^l
 When for their stubbornness, at Padua's marsh
 The water shall be chang'd, that laves Vicenza.
 And where Cagnano meets with Sile, one^m
 Lords it, and bears his head aloft, for whom

The webⁿ is now a-warping. Feltro^o too
 Shall sorrow for it's godless shepherd's fault,
 Of so deep stain, that never, for the like,
 Was Malta's^p bar unclos'd. Too large should be
 The skillet^q that would hold Ferrara's blood,
 And wearied he, who ounce by ounce would weigh it,
 The which this priest,^r in show of party-zeal,
 Courteous will give; nor will the gift ill suit
 The country's custom. We descry^s above
 Mirrors, ye call them thrones, from which to us
 Reflected shine the judgments of our God:
 Whence these our sayings we avouch for good."

She ended; and appear'd on other thoughts
 Intent, re-ent'ring on the wheel she late
 Had left. That other joyance^t meanwhile mix'd
 A thing to marvel at,^u in splendour glowing,
 Like choicest ruby^v stricken by the sun.
 For, in that upper clime, effulgence^w comes
 Of gladness, as here laughter: and below,
 As the mind saddens, murkier grows the shade.

"God seeth all: and in him is thy sight,"
 Said I, "blest spirit! Therefore will of his Cannot to thee be dark. Why then delays
 Thy voice to satisfy my wish untold;
 That voice, which joins the inexpressive song,
 Pastime of heav'n, the which those ardours sing,
 That cowl them with six shadowing wings^x outspread?
 I would not wait thy asking, wert thou known
 To me, as throughly I to thee am known."

He, forthwith answ'ring, thus his words began:
 "The valley' of waters,^y widest next to that"

Which doth the earth engarland, shapes it's course,
Between discordant shores,^{aa} against the sun
Inward so far, it makes meridian^{ab} there,
Where was before the' horizon. Of that vale
Dwelt I upon the shore, 'twixt Ebro's stream
And Macra's,^{ac} that divides with passage brief
Genoan bounds from Tuscan. East and west
Are nearly one to Begga^{ad} and my land
Whose haven^{ae} erst was with it's own blood warm.
Who knew my name, were wont to call me Folco :
And I did bear impression of this heav'n,^{af}
That now bears mine : for not with fiercer flame
Glow'd Belus' daughter,^{ag} injuring alike
Sichæus and Creusa, than did I,
Long as it suited the unripen'd down
That fledg'd my cheek ; nor she of Rhodope,^{ah}
That was beguiled of Demophoon ;
Nor Jove's son,^{ai} when the charms of Iole
Were shrin'd within his heart. And yet there bides
No sorrowful repentance here, but mirth,
Not for the fault, (that doth not come to mind,)
But for the virtue, whose o'erruling sway
And providence have wrought thus quaintly. Here
The skill is look'd into, that fashioneth
With such effectual working,^{aj} and the good
Discern'd, accruing to the lower world^{ak}
From this above. But fully to content
Thy wishes all that in this sphere have birth,
Demands my further parle. Inquire thou wouldst,
Who of this light^{al} is denizen, that here
Beside me sparkles, as the sun-beam doth

On the clear wave. Know then, the soul of Rahabst
Is in that gladsome harbour ; to our tribe
United, and the foremost rank assign'd.
She to this heav'n,sm at which the shadow ends
Of your sublunar world, was taken up,
First, in Christ's triumph, of all souls redeem'd :
For well behov'd, that, in some part of heav'n,
She should remain a trophy, to declare
The mighty conquest won with either palm ;^{sn}
For that she favour'd first the high exploit
Of Joshua on the holy land, whereof
The Pope^{so} reck's little now. Thy city, plant
Of him,^{sp} that on his Maker turn'd the back,
And of whose envying so much woe hath sprung,
Engenders and expands the cursed flower,^{sq}
That hath made wander both the sheep and lambs,
Turning the shepherd to a wolf. For this,
The gospel and great teachers laid aside,
The decretals,^{ar} as their stuft margins show,
Are the sole study. Pope and Cardinals,
Intent on these, ne'er journey but in thought
To Nazareth, where Gabriel op'd his wings.
Yet it may chance, ere long, the Vatican,^{as}
And other most selected parts of Rome,
That were the grave of Peter's soldiery,
Shall be deliver'd from the' adul'trous bond."

CANTO X.

Argument.

Their next ascent carries them into the sun, which is the fourth heaven. Here they are encompassed with a wreath of blessed spirits, twelve in number. Thomas Aquinas, who is one of these, declares the names and endowments of the rest.

LOOKING into his first-born with the love,
Which breathes from both eternal, the first Might Ineffable, wherever eye or mind
Can roam, hath in such order all dispos'd,
As none may see and fail to' enjoy. Raise, then,
O reader! to the lofty wheels, with me,
Thy ken directed to the point,^a whereat
One motion strikes on the' other. There begin
Thy wonder of the mighty Architect,
Who loves his work so inwardly, his eye
Doth ever watch it. See, how thence oblique^b
Brancheth the circle, where the planets roll
To pour their wished influence on the world;
Whose^c path not bending thus, in heav'n above^c
Much virtue would be lost, and here on earth
All power well nigh extinct: or, from direct
Were it's departure distant more or less,
I' the' universal order, great defect
Must, both in heav'n and here beneath, ensue.

Now rest thee, reader ! on thy bench, and muse
 Anticipative of the feast to come ;
 So shall delight make thee not feel thy toil.
 Lo ! I have set before thee ; for thyself
 Feed now : the matter I indite, henceforth Demands entire my thought. Join'd with the part,^d
 Which late we told of, the great minister^e
 Of nature, that upon the world imprints
 The virtue of the heaven, and doles out
 Time for us with his beam, went circling on Along the spires,^f where^g each hour sooner comes ;
 And I was with him, weetless of ascent,
 But as a man,^h that weets his thought, ere thinking.

For Beatrice, she who passeth on
 So suddenly from good to better, time
 Counts not the act, oh then how great must needs
 Have been her brightness ! What there was i' th' sun,
 (Where I had enter'd,) not through change of hue,
 But light transparent—did I summon up
 Genius, art, practise—I might not so speak,
 It should be e'er imagin'd : yet believ'd
 It may be, and the sight be justly crav'd.
 And if our fantasy fail of such height,
 What marvel, since no eye above the sun
 Hath ever travel'd ? Such are they dwell here,
 Fourth familyⁱ of the Omnipotent Sire,
 Who of his spirit and of his offspring^j shows ;
 And holds them still enraptur'd with the view.
 And thus to me Beatrice : “ Thank, oh thank
 The Sun of angels, him, who by his grace
 To this perceptible hath lifted thee.”

Never was heart in such devotion bound,
And with complacency so absolute
Dispos'd to render up itself to God,
As mine was at those words : and so entire
The love for Him, that held me, it eclips'd
Beatrice in oblivion. Nought displeas'd
Was she, but smil'd thereat so joyously,
That of her laughing eyes the radiance brake
And scatter'd my collected mind abroad.

Then saw I a bright band, in liveliness
Surpassing, who themselves did make the crown,
And us their centre : yet more sweet in voice,
Than, in their visage, beaming. Cinctur'd thus,
Sometime Latona's daughter we behold,
When the impregnate air retains the thread
That weaves her zone. In the celestial court,
Whence I return, are many jewels found,
So dear and beautiful, they cannot brook
Transporting from that realm : and of these lights
Such was the song.^k Who doth not prune his wing
To soar up thither, let him^l look from thence
For tidings from the dumb. When, singing thus,
Those burning suns had circled round us thrice,
As nearest stars around the fixed pole ;
Then seem'd they like to ladies, from the dance
Not ceasing, but suspense, in silent pause,
List'ning, till they have caught the strain anew :
Suspended so they stood : and, from within,
Thus heard I one, who spake : " Since with it's beam
The grace, whence true love lighteth first his flame,
That after doth increase by loving, shines

So multiplied in thee, it leads thee up
 Along this ladder, down whose hallow'd steps
 None e'er descend, and mount them not again ;
 Who from his phial should refuse thee wine
 To slake thy thirst, no less constrained^m were,
 Than water flowing not unto the sea.
 Thou fain wouldest hear, what plants are these, that bloom

In the bright garland, which, admiring, girds
 This fair dame round, who strengthens thee for heav'n.
 I, then,ⁿ was of the lambs, that Dominic
 Leads, for his saintly flock, along the way
 Where well they thrive, not swoln with vanity.
 He, nearest on my right hand, brother was,
 And master to me : Albert of Cologne^o
 Is this ; and, of Aquinum, Thomas^p I.
 If thou of all the rest wouldest be assur'd,
 Let thine eye, waiting on the words I speak,
 In circuit journey round the blessed wreath.
 That next resplendence issues from the smile
 Of Gratian,^q who to either forum^r lènt
 Such help, as favour wins in Paradise.
 The other, nearest, who adorns our quire,
 Was Peter,^s he that with the widow gave^t
 To holy church his treasure. The fifth light,^u
 Goodliest of all, is by such love inspir'd,
 That all your world craves tidings of it's doom :^v
 Within, there is the lofty light, endow'd
 With sapience so profound, if truth be truth,
 That with a ken of such wide amplitude
 No second hath arisen. Next behold

That taper's radiance,^w to whose view was shown,
Cleariest, the nature and the ministry
Angelical, while yet in flesh it dwelt.
In the other little light serenely smiles
That pleader^x for the christian temples, he,
Who did provide Augustin of his lore.
Now, if thy mind's eye pass from light to light,
Upon my praises following, of the eighth^y
Thy thirst is next. The saintly soul, that shows
The world's deceitfulness, to all who hear him,
Is, with the sight of all the good that is,
Blest there. The limbs, whence it was driven, lie Down in Cieldauro;^z and from martyrdom
And exile came it here. Lo! further on,
Where flames the' ardurous spirit of Isidore;^{aa}
Of Bede;^{ab} and Richard,^{ac} more than man, erewhile,
In deep discernment. Lastly this, from whom Thy look on me reverteth, was the beam
Of one, whose spirit, on high musings bent,
Rebuk'd the ling'ring tardiness of death.
It is the eternal light of Sigebert,^{ad}
Who 'scap'd not envy, when of truth he argued,
Reading in the straw-litter'd street."^{ae} Forthwith,
As clock, that calleth up the spouse of God^{af}
To win her bridegroom's love at matin's hour,
Each part of other fitly drawn and urg'd,
Sends out a tinkling sound, of note so sweet,
Affection springs in well-disposed breast;
Thus saw I move the glorious wheel; thus heard
Voice answ'ring voice, so musical and soft,
It can be known~~the~~ where day endless shines.

CANTO XI.

Argument.

Thomas Aquinas enters at large into the life and character of St. Francis ; and then solves one of two difficulties, which he perceived to have risen in Dante's mind from what he had heard in the last Canto.

O FOND anxiety of mortal men !^a
How vain and inconclusive arguments
Are those, which make thee beat thy wings below.
For statutes one, and one for aphorisms^b
Was hunting ; this the priesthood follow'd ; that,
By force or sophistry, aspir'd to rule ;
To rob, another ; and another sought,
By civil business, wealth ; one, moiling, lay
Tangled in net of sensual delight ;
And one to wistless indolence resign'd ;
What time from all these empty things escap'd,
With Beatrice, I thus gloriously
Was rais'd aloft, and made the guest of heav'n.

They of the circle to that point, each one,
Where erst it was, had turn'd ; and steady glow'd,
As candle in his socket. Then within
The lustre,^c that erewhile bespake me, smiling
With merer gladness, heard I begin.

“ E'en as his beam illumes me, so I look Into the' eternal light, and clearly mark Thy thoughts, from whence they rise. Thou art in doubt,
 And wouldest, that I should bolt my words afresh
 In such plain open phrase, as may be smooth
 To thy perception, where I told thee late
 That 'well they thrive ;' ^d and that 'no second such'
 Hath risen,' which no small distinction needs.

“ The providence, that governeth the world,
 In depth of counsel by created ken
 Unfathomable, to the end that she,^f
 Who with loud cries was 'spous'd in precious blood,
 Might keep her footing tow'rds her well-belov'd,^g
 Safe in herself and constant unto him,
 Hath two ordain'd, who should on either hand
 In chief escort her : one,^h seraphic all
 In fervency ; for wisdom upon earth,
 The other,ⁱ splendour of cherubic light.
 I but of one will tell : he tells of both,
 Who one commendeth, which of them soe'er
 Be taken : for their deeds were to one end.

“ Between Tupino,^j and the wave that falls
 From blest Ubaldo's chosen hill, there hangs
 Rich slope of mountain high, whence heat and cold^k
 Are wasted through Perugia's eastern gate :
 And Novera with Gualdo, in it's rear,
 Mourn for their heavy yoke.^l Upon that side,
 Where it doth break it's steepness most, arose
 A sun upon the world, as duly this
 From Ganges doth : therefore let none, who speak

Of that place, say Ascesi ; for it's name
 Were lamely so deliver'd ; but the East,^m
 To call things rightly, be it henceforth styl'd.
 He was not yet much distant from his rising,
 When his good influence 'gan to bless the earth.
 A dame, to whom none openeth pleasure's gate
 More than to death, was, 'gainst his father's will,ⁿ
 His stripling choice : and he did make her his,
 Before the spiritual court,^o by nuptial bonds,
 And in his father's sight : from day to day,
 Then lov'd her more devoutly. She, bereav'd
 Of her first husband,^p slighted and obscure,
 Thousand and hundred years and more, remain'd
 Without a single suitor, till he came.
 Nor aught avail'd, that, with Amyclas,^q she
 Was found unmov'd at rumour of his voice,
 Who shook the world : nor aught her constant boldness
 Whereby with Christ she mounted on the cross,
 When Mary stay'd beneath. But not to deal
 Thus closely with thee longer, take at large
 The lovers' titles—Poverty and Francis.
 Their concord and glad looks, wonder and love,
 And sweet regard gave birth to holy thoughts,
 So much, that venerable Bernard^r first
 Did bare his feet, and, in pursuit of peace
 So heavenly, ran, yet deem'd his footing slow.
 O hidden riches ! O prolific good !
 Egidius^s bares him next, and next Sylvester,^t
 And follow, both, the bridegroom ; so the bride
 Can please them. Thenceforth goes he on his way,

The father and the master, with his spouse,
And with that family, whom now the cord^u
Girt humbly : nor did abjectness of heart
Weigh down his eye-lids, for that he was son
Of Pietro Bernardone,^v and by men
In wond'rous sort despis'd. But royally
His hard intention he to Innocent^w
Set forth ; and, from him, first receiv'd the seal
On his religion. Then, when numerous flock'd
The tribe of lowly ones, that trac'd his steps,
Whose marvellous life deservedly were sung
In heights empyreal ; through Honorius^x hand
A second crown, to deck their Guardian's virtues,
Was by the' eternal Spirit inwreath'd : and when He had, through thirst of martyrdom, stood up
In the proud Soldan's presence,^y and there preach'd
Christ and his followers, but found the race
Unripen'd for conversion ; back once more
He hasted, (not to intermit his toil,)
And reap'd Ausonian lands. On the hard rock,^z
'Twixt Arno and the Tyber, he from Christ
Took the last signet,^{aa} which his limbs two years
Did carry. Then, the season come that he,
Who to such good had destin'd him, was pleas'd
To advance him to the meed, which he had earn'd
By his self-humbling ; to his brotherhood,
As their just heritage, he gave in charge
His dearest lady ;^{ab} and enjoin'd their love
And faith to her ; and, from her bosom, will'd
His goodly spirit should move forth, returning To it's appointed kingdom ; nor would have

His body^{ac} laid upon another bier,

“ Think now of one, who were a fit colleague
To keep the bark of Peter, in deep sea,
Helm'd to right point ; and such our Patriarch^{ad} was.
Therefore who follow him as he enjoins,
Thou mayst be certain, take good lading in.
But hunger of new viands tempts his flock ;^{ae}
So that they needs into strange pastures wide
Must spread them : and the more remote from him
The stragglers wander, so much more they come Home, to the sheep-fold, destitute of milk.
There are of them, in truth, who fear their harm,
And to the shepherd cleave ; but these so few,
A little stuff may furnish out their cloaks.

“ Now, if my words be clear ; if thou have ta'en
Good heed ; if that, which I have told, recal
To mind ; thy wish may be in part fulfill'd :
For thou wilt see the plant from whence they split ;^{af}
And he shall see, who girds him, what that means,^{ag}
‘ That well they thrive, not swoln with vanity.’ ”

CANTO XII.

Argument.

A second circle of glorified souls encompasses the first. Buona-ventura, who is one of them, celebrates the praises of Saint Dominic, and informs Dante who the other eleven are, that are in this second circle or garland.

SOON as it's final word the blessed flame^a
 Had rais'd for utterance, straight the holy mill^b
 Began to wheel ; nor yet had once revolv'd,
 Or ere another, circling, compass'd it,
 Motion to motion, song to song, conjoining ;
 Song, that as much our muses doth excel,
 Our Syrens with their tuneful pipes, as ray
 Of primal splendour doth it's faint reflex.

As when, if Juno bid her handmaid forth,
 Two arches parallel, and trick'd alike,
 Span the thin cloud, the outer taking birth
 From that within (in manner of that voice^c)
 Whom love did melt away, as sun the mist,)
 And they who gaze, presageful call to mind
 The compact, made with Noah, of the world
 No more to be o'erflow'd ; about us thus,
 Of sempiternal roses, bending, wreath'd
 Those garlands twain ; and to the innermost

E'en thus the' external answer'd. When the footing,
And other great festivity, of song,
And radiance, light with light accordant, each
Jocund and blythe, had at their pleasure still'd, (E'en as the eyes, by quick volition mov'd,
Are shut and rais'd together,) from the heart
Of one^d amongst the new lights^e mov'd a voice,
That made me seem^f like needle to the star,
In turning to it's whereabout;^g and thus Began : " The love,^h that makes me beautiful, Prompts me to tell of the' other guide, for whom Such good of mine is spoken. Where one is,
The other worthily should also be ;
That as their warfare was alike, alike
Should be their glory. Slow, and full of doubt,
And with thin ranks, after it's banner mov'd
The army' of Christ, (which it so dearly cost
To reappoint,) when it's imperial Head,
Who reigneth ever, for the drooping host
Did make provision, thorough grace alone,
And not through it's deserving. As thou heard'st,ⁱ
Two champions to the succour of his spouse
He sent, who by their deeds and words might join
Again his scatter'd people. In that clime^j
Where springs the pleasant west-wind to unfold
The fresh leaves, with which Europe sees herself
New-garmented ; nor from those billows^k far,
Beyond whose chiding, after weary course,
The sun doth sometimes^l hide him ; safe abides
The happy Callaroga,^m under guard
Of the great shield, wherein the lion lies

Subjected and supreme. And there was born
The loving minion of the Christian faith,^u
The hallow'd wrestler, gentle^o to his own,
And to his enemies terrible. So replete
His soul with lively virtue, that when first Created, even in the mother's womb,^p
It prophesied. When, at the sacred font,
The spousals were complete 'twixt faith and him,
Where pledge of mutual safety ~~was~~ exchang'd,
The dame,^q who was his surety, in her sleep
Beheld the wond'rous fruit, that was from him
And from his heirs to issue. And that such
He might be construed, as indeed he was,
She was inspir'd to name him of his owner,
Whose he was wholly ; and so call'd him Dominic.
And I speak of him, as the labourer,
Whom Christ in his own garden chose to be
His help-mate. Messenger he seem'd, and friend
Fast-knit to Christ ; and the first love he show'd,
Was after the first counsel^r that Christ gave.
Many a time^s his nurse, at entering, found
That he had ris'n in silence, and was prostrate,
As who should say, ' My errand was for this.'
O happy father ! Felix^t rightly nam'd.
O favour'd mother ! rightly nam'd Joanna ;
If that do mean, as men interpret it.^u
Not for the world's sake, for which now they toil
Upon Ostiense^v and Taddeo's^w lore,
But for the real manna, soon he grew
Mighty in learning ; and did set himself
To go about the vineyard, that soon turns

To wan and wither'd, if not tended, well :
 And from the see,^x (whose bounty to the just
 And needy is gone by, not through it's fault,
 But his who fills it basely,) he besought,
 No dispensation^y for commuted wrong,
 Nor the first vacant fortune,^z nor the tenths
 That to God's paupers rightly appertain,
 But, 'gainst an erring and degenerate world,
 License to fight, in favour of that seed^{aa}
 From which the twice twelve cions gird thee round.
 Then, with sage doctrine and good will to help,
 Forth on his great apostleship he far'd,
 Like torrent bursting from a lofty vein ;
 And, dashing 'gainst the stocks of heresy,
 Smote fiercest, where resistance was most stout.
 Thence many rivulets have since been turn'd,
 Over the garden catholic to lead
 Their living waters, and have fed it's plants.

“ If such, one wheel^{ab} of that two-yoked car,
 Wherein the holy church defended her,
 And rode triumphant through the civil broil ;
 Thou canst not doubt it's fellow's excellence,
 Which Thomas,^{ac} ere my coming, hath declar'd
 So courteously unto thee. But the track,^{ad}
 Which it's smooth fellies made, is now deserted :
 That, mouldy mother is, where late were lees.
 His family, that wont to trace his path,
 Turn backward, and invert their steps ; ere long
 To rue the gathering in of their ill crop,
 When the rejected tares^{ae} in vain shall ask Admittance to the barn. I question not^{af}

But he, who search'd our volume, leaf by leaf,
Might still find page with this inscription on't,
'I am as I was wont.' Yet such were not
From Acquasparta nor Casale, whence,
Of those who come to meddle with the text,
One stretches and another cramps it's rule.
Bonaventura's life in me behold,
From Bagnoregio ; one, who, in discharge
Of my great offices, still laid aside
All sinister aim. Illuminato here,
And Agostino^{ag} join me : two they were,
Among the first of those barefooted meek ones,
Who sought God's friendship in the cord : with them
Hugues of Saint Victor ;^{ah} Pietro Mangiadore ;^{ai}
And he of Spain^{aj} in his twelve volumes shining ;
Nathan the prophet ; Metropolitan Chrysostom ;^{ak} and Anselmo ;^{al} and, who deign'd
To put his hand to the first art, Donatus.^{am}
Raban^{an} is here : and at my side there shines
Calabria's abbot, Joachim,^{ao} endow'd
With soul prophetic. The bright courtesy
Of friar Thomas, and his goodly lore,
Have mov'd me to the blazon of a peer^{ap}
So worthy ; and with me have mov'd this throng."

CANTO XIII.

Argument.

Thomas Aquinas resumes his speech. He solves the other of those doubts which he discerned in the mind of Dante, and warns him earnestly against assenting to any proposition without having duly examined it.

LET him,^a who would concive what now I saw,
Imagine, (and retain the image firm
As mountain rock, the whilst he hears me speak,)
Of stars, fifteen, from midst the' ethereal host
Selected, that, with lively ray serene,
O'ercome the massiest air: thereto imagine
The wain, that, in the bosom of our sky,
Spins ever on it's axle night and day,
With the bright summit of that horn, which swells
Due from the pole, round which the first wheel rolls,
To' have rang'd themselves in fashion of two signs
In heaven, such as Ariadne made,
When death's chill seiz'd her; and that one of them
Did compass in the other's beam; and both
In such sort whirl around, that each should tend
With opposite motion: and, conceiving thus,
Of that true constellation, and the dance

Twofold, that circled me, he shall attain
 As 't were the shadow ; for things there as much Surpass our usage, as the swiftest heav'n
 Is swifter than the Chiana.^b There was sung
 No Bacchus, and no Io Pæan, but Three Persons in the Godhead, and in one Person that nature and the human join'd.

The song fulfill'd it's measure ; and to us
 Those saintly lights attended, happier made
 At each new minist'ring. Then silence brake,
 Amid the' accordant sons of Deity,
 That luminary,^c in which the wond'rous life
 Of the meek man of God^d was told to me ;
 And thus it spake : "One ear^e o' the' harvest
 thresh'd,
 And it's grain safely stor'd, sweet charity
 Invites me with the other to like toil.

"Thou know'st, that in the bosom,^f whence the rib
 Was ta'en to fashion that fair check, whose taste
 All the world pays for ; and in that, which pierc'd
 By the keen lance, both after and before
 Such satisfaction offer'd, as outweighs
 Each evil in the scale ; whate'er of light
 To human nature is allow'd, must all
 Have by his virtue been infus'd, who form'd
 Both one and other : and thou thence admir'st
 In that I told thee, of beatitudes,
 A second there is none to his enclos'd
 In the fifth radiance. Open now thine eyes
 To what I answer thee ; and thou shalt see

Thy deeming and my saying meet in truth,
 As centre in the round. That^g which dies not,
 And that which can die, are but each the beam
 Of that idea, which our Sovereign Sire
 Engendereth loving; for that lively light,^h
 Which passeth from his splendour, not disjoin'd
 From him, nor from his love triune with them,ⁱ
 Doth, through his bounty, congregate itself,
 Mirror'd, as 't were, in new existences,^j
 Itself unalterable, and ever one.

“ Descending hence unto the lowest powers,^k
 It's energy so sinks, at last it makes
 But brief contingencies; for so I name
 Things generated, which the heav'nly orbs
 Moving, with seed or without seed, produce.
 Their wax, and that which molds it,^l differ much:
 And thence with lustre, more or less, it shows
 The' ideal stamp imprest: so that one tree,
 According to his kind, hath better fruit,
 And worse: and, at your birth, ye, mortal men,
 Are in your talents various. Were the wax Molded with nice exactness, and the heav'n^m
 In it's disposing influence supreme,
 The brightness of the sealⁿ should be complete:
 But nature renders it imperfect ever;
 Resembling thus the artist, in her work,
 Whose faltering hand is faithless to his skill.
 Therefore,^o if fervent love dispose, and mark
 The lustrous image of the primal virtue,
 There all perfection is vouchsaf'd; and such
 The clay^p was made, accomplish'd with each gift,

That life can teem with ; such the burden fill'd
 The virgin's bosom : so that I commend
 The judgment, that the human nature ne'er
 Was, or can be, such as in them it was.

“ Did I advance no further than this point ;
 ‘ How then had he no peer ? ’ thou might'st reply.
 But, that what now appears not, may appear Right plainly, ponder, who he was, and what
 (When he was bidden ‘ Ask,’) the motive, sway'd
 To his requesting. I have spoken thus,
 That thou mayst see, he was a king, who ask'd^a
 For wisdom, to the end he might be king
 Sufficient : not, the number^r to search out
 Of the celestial movers ; or to know,
 If necessary^s with contingent e'er
 Have made necessity ; or whether that
 Be granted, that first motion^t is ; or if,
 Of the mid circle,^u can by art be made
 Triangle, with it's corner blunt or sharp.

“ Whence, noting that, which I have 'said, and this,

Thou kingly prudence and that ken^v mayst learn,
 At which the dart of my intention aims.
 And, marking clearly, that I told thee, ‘ Risen,’
 Thou shalt discern it only hath respect
 To kings, of whom are many, and the good
 Are rare. With this distinction take my words ;
 And they may well consist with that which thou
 Of the first human father dost believe,
 And of our well-beloved. And let this Henceforth be lead unto thy feet, to make

Thee slow in motion, as a weary man,
 Both to the 'yea' and to the 'nay' thou seest not.
 For he among the fools is down full low,
 Whose affirmation, or denial, is Without distinction, in each case alike
 Since it besals, that in most instances
 Current opinion leans to false: and then
 Affection bends the judgment to her ply.

"Much more than vainly doth he loose from shore,

Since he returns not such as he set forth,
 Who fishes for the truth and wanteth skill.
 And open proofs of this unto the world
 Have been afforded in Parmenides, Melissus, Bryso,^w and the crowd beside,
 Who journey'd on, and knew not whither: so did
 Sabellius, Arius,^x and the other fools,
 Who, like to scymitars,^y reflected back
 The scripture-image by distortion marr'd.

"Let not the people be too swift to judge;
 As one who reckons on the blades in field,
 Or e'er the crop be ripe. For I have seen
 The thorn frown rudely all the winter long,
 And after bear the rose upon it's top;
 And bark, that all her way across the sea
 Ran straight and speedy, perish at the last E'en in the haven's mouth. Seeing one steal,
 Another bring his offering to the priest,
 Let not^z Dame Birtha and Sir Martin^{aa} thence
 Into heav'n's counsels deem that they can pry:
 For one of these may rise, the other fall."

CANTO XIV.

Argument.

Solomon, who is one of the spirits in the inner circle, declares what the appearance of the blest will be after the resurrection of the body. Beatrice and Dante are translated into the fifth heaven, which is that of Mars; and here behold the souls of those, who had died fighting for the true faith, ranged in the sign of a cross, athwart which the spirits move to the sound of a melodious hymn.

FROM centre to the circle, and so back
From circle to the centre, water moves
In the round chalice, even as the blow
Impels it, inwardly, or from without.
Such was the image^a glanc'd into my mind,
As the great spirit of Aquinum ceas'd ;
And Beatrice, after him, her words
Resum'd alternate : “ Need there is (though yet
He tells it to you not in words, nor e'en
In thought) that he should fathom to it's depth
Another mystery. Tell him, if the light, Wherewith your substance blooms, shall stay with you
Eternally, as now ; and, if it doth,
How, when^b ye shall regain your visible forms,

The sight may without harm endure the change,
 That also tell." As those, who in a ring
 Tread the light measure, in their fitful mirth
 Raise loud the voice, and spring with gladder bound;
 Thus, at the hearing of that pious suit,
 The saintly circles, in their tourneying
 And wond'rous note, attested new delight.

Whoso laments, that we must doff this garb
 Of frail mortality, thenceforth to live
 Immortally above; he hath not seen
 The sweet refreshing of that heav'nly shower.^c

Him,^d who lives ever, and for ever reigns
 In mystic union of the Three in One,
 Unbounded, bounding all, each spirit thrice
 Sang, with such melody, as, but to hear,
 For highest merit were an ample meed.
 And from the lesser orb the goodliest light,^e
 With gentle voice and mild, such as perhaps
 The angel's once to Mary, thus replied:
 "Long as the joy of Paradise shall last,
 Our love shall shine around that raiment, bright
 As fervent; fervent as, in vision, blest;
 And that as far, in blessedness, exceeding,
 As it hath grace, beyond it's virtue, great.
 Our shape, regarmented with glorious weeds
 Of saintly flesh,^f must, being thus entire,
 Show yet more gracious. Therefore shall increase
 Whate'er, of light, gratuitous imparts
 The Supreme Good; light, ministering aid,
 The better to disclose his glory: whence,
 The vision needs increasing, must increase

The fervour, which it kindles ; and that too
 The ray, that comes from it. But as the gleed
 Which gives out flame, yet in it's whiteness shines
 More lively than that, and so preserves
 It's proper semblance ; thus this circling sphere
 Of splendour shall to view less radiant seem,
 Then shall our fleshly robe, which yonder earth
 Now covers. Nor will such excess of light
 O'erpower us, in corporeal organs made
 Firm, and susceptible of all delight."

So ready and so cordial an "Amen"
 Followed from either choir, as plainly spoke
 Desire of their dead bodies ; yet perchance
 Not for themselves, but for their kindred dear,
 Mothers and sires, and those whom best they lov'd,
 Ere they were made imperishable flame.

And lo ! forthwith there rose up round about
 A lustre, over that already there ;
 Of equal clearness, like the brightening up
 Of the horizon. As at evening hour
 Of twilight, new appearances through heav'n
 Peer with faint glimmer, doubtfully descried ;
 So, there, new substances, methought, began
 To rise in view beyond the other twain,
 And wheeling, sweep their ampler circuit wide.

O genuine glitter of eternal Beam !
 With what a sudden whiteness did it flow,
 O'erpowering vision in me. But so fair,
 So passing lovely, Beatrice show'd,
 Mind cannot follow it, nor words express
 Her infinite sweetness. Thence mine eyes regain'd

Power to look up ; and I beheld myself,
 Sole with my lady, to more lofty bliss^f
 Translated : for the star, with warmer smile
 Impurpled, well denoted our ascent.

With all the heart, and with that tongue which speaks

The same in all, an holocaust I made
 To God, befitting the new grace vouchsaf'd.
 And from my bosom had not yet upstream'd
 The fuming of that incense, when I knew
 The rite accepted. With such mighty sheen
 And mantling crimson, in two listed rays
 The splendours shot before me, that I cried,
 "God of SabaOTH ! that dost prank them thus !"

As leads the galaxy from pole to pole,
 Distinguish'd into greater lights and less,
 It's pathway,^g which the wisest fail to spell ;
 So thickly studded, in the depth of Mars,
 Those rays describ'd the venerable sign,^h
 That quadrants in the round conjoining frame.

Here memory mocks the toil of genius. Christ
 Beam'd on that cross ; and pattern fails me now.
 But whoso takes his cross, and follows Christ,
 Will pardon me for that I leave untold,
 When in the flecker'd dawning he shall spy
 The glitterance of Christ. From horn to horn,
 And 'twen the summit and the base, did move
 Lights, scintillating, as they met and pass'd.
 Thus oft are seen with ever-changeful glance,
 Straight or athwart, now rapid and now slow,
 The atomies of bodies,ⁱ long or short,

To move along the sunbeam, whose slant line
Checkers the shadow interpos'd by art
Against the noontide heat. And as the chime
Of thinstrel music, dulcimer, and harp
With many strings, a pleasant dinning makes
To him, who heareth not distinct the note ;
So from the lights, which there appear'd to me,
Gather'd along the cross a melody,
That, indistinctly heard, with ravishment
Possess'd me. Yet I mark'd it was a hymn
Of lofty praises ; for there came to me
"Arise," and "Conquer," as to one who hears
And comprehends not. Me such ecstacy
O'ercame, that never, till that hour, was thing
That held me in so sweet imprisonment.

Perhaps my saying over bold appears,
Accounting less the pleasure of those eyes,
Whereon to look fulfilleth all desire.
But he, who is aware those living seals
Of every beauty work with quicker force,
The higher they are risen ; and that there
I had not turn'd me to them ; he may well
Excuse me that, whereof in my excuse
I do accuse me, and may own my truth ;
That holy pleasure here not yet reveal'd,^k
Which grows in transport as we mount aloof.

CANTO XV.

Argument.

The spirit of Cacciaguida, our Poet's ancestor, glides rapidly to the foot of the cross ; tells who he is ; and speaks of the simplicity of the Florentines in his days, since then much corrupted.

TRUE love, that ever shows itself as clear
In kindness, as loose appetite in wrong,
Silenc'd that lyre harmonious, and still'd
The sacred chords, that are by heav'n's right hand
Unwound and tighten'd. How to righteous prayers Should they not hearken, who, to give me will
For praying, in accordance thus were mute ?
He hath in sooth good cause for endless grief,
Who, for the love of thing that lasteth not,
Despoils himself for ever of that love.

As oft along the still and pure serene,
At nightfall, glides a sudden trail of fire,
Attracting with involuntary heed
The eye to follow it, erewhile at rest ;
And seems some star that shifted place in heav'n,^a
Only that, whence it kindles, none is lost,
And it is soon extinct : thus from the horn,
That on the dexter of the cross extends,
Down to it's foot, one luminary ran

From mid the cluster shone there ; yet no gem
Dropp'd from it's foil : and through the beamy list,
Like flame in alabaster, glow'd it's course.

So forward stretch'd him (if of credence aught
Our greater muse^b may claim) the pious ghost
Of old Anchises, in the' Elysian bower,
When he perceiv'd his son. “ O thou, my blood !
O most exceeding grace divine ! to whom,
As now to thee, hath twice the heav'nly gate
Been e'er unclos'd ? ” So spake the light : whence I
Turn'd me toward him ; then unto my dame
My sight directed : and on either side
Amazement waited me ; for in her eyes
Was lighted such a smile, I thought that mine
Had div'd unto the bottom of my grace
And of my bliss in Paradise. Forthwith,
To hearing and to sight grateful alike,
The spirit to his proem added things
I understood not, so profound he spake :
Yet not of choice, but through necessity,
Mysterious ; for his high conception soar'd
Beyond the mark of mortals. When the flight
Of holy transport had so spent it's rage,
That nearer to the level of our thought
The speech descended ; the first sounds I heard
Were, “ Blest be thou, Triunal Deity !
That hast such favour in my seed vouchsaf'd.”
Then follow'd : “ No unpleasant thirst, though long,^c
Which took me reading in the sacred book,
Whose leaves or white or dusky never change,
Thou hast allay'd, my son ! within this light,

From whence my voice thou hear'st: more thanks to her,

Who, for such lofty mounting, has with plumes
Begirt thee. Thou dost deem thy thoughts to me
From Him transmitted, who is first of all,
E'en as all numbers ray from unity;
And therefore dost not ask me who I am,
Or why to thee more joyous I appear,
Than any other in this gladsome throng.
The truth is as thou deem'st; for in this life
Both less and greater in that mirror look,
In which thy thoughts, or ere thou think'st, are shown.
But, that the love, which keeps me wakeful ever,
Urging with sacred thirst of sweet desire,
May be contented fully; let thy voice,
Fearless, and frank, and jocund, utter forth
Thy will distinctly, utter forth the wish,
Whereto my ready answer stands decreed."

I turn'd me to Beatrice; and she heard
Ere I had spoken, smiling an assent,
That to my will gave wings; and I began:
"To each among your tribe,^d what time ye kenn'd
The nature, in whom nought unequal dwells,
Wisdom and love were in one measure dealt;
For that they are so equal in the sun,
From whence ye drew your radiance and your heat,
As makes all likeness scant. But will and means,
In mortals, for the cause ye well discern,
With unlike wings are fledg'd. A mortal, I Experience inequality like this;
And therefore give no thanks, but in the heart,

For thy paternal greeting. This howe'er
 I pray thee, living topaz ! that ingemm'st
 This precious jewel ; let me hear thy name."

" I am thy root,^e O leaf ! whom to expect Even, hath pleas'd me." Thus the prompt reply Prefacing, next it added : " He, of whom^f
 Thy kindred appellation comes, and who,
 These hundred years and more, on it's first ledge
 Hath circuited the mountain, was my son,
 And thy great-grandsire. Well befits, his long Endurance should be shorten'd by thy deeds.

" Florence,^g within her ancient limit-mark,
 Which calls her still^h to matin prayers and noon,
 Was chaste and sober, and abode in peace.
 She had no armlets and no head-tires then ;
 No purfled dames ; no zone, that caught the eye
 More than the person did. Time was not yet,
 Whenⁱ at his daughter's birth the sire grew pale,
 For fear the age and dowry should exceed,
 On each side, just proportion. House was none
 Void^j of its family : nor yet had come
 Sardanapalus,^k to exhibit feats
 Of chamber prowess. Montemalo^l yet
 O'er our suburban turret^m rose ; as much
 To be surpast in fall, as in its rising.
 I saw Bellincion Bertiⁿ walk abroad
 In leathern girdle, and a clasp of bone ;
 And, with no artful colouring on her cheeks,
 His lady leave the glass. The sons I saw
 Of Nerli, and of Vecchio^o, well content
 With unrob'd jerkin ; and their good dames handling

The spindle and the flax : O happy they !
 Each^P sure of burial in her native land,
 And none left desolate a-bed for France.
 One wak'd to tend the cradle, hushing it
 With sounds that lull'd the parent's infancy :
 Another, with her maidens, drawing off
 The tresses from the distaff, lectur'd them
 Old tales of Troy, and Fesole, and Rome.
 A Salterello and Cianghella^u we Had held as strange a marvel, as ye would
 A Cincinnatus or Cornelia now.

“ In such compos'd and seemly fellowship,
 Such faithful and such fair equality,
 In so sweet household, Mary^r at my birth
 Bestow'd me, call'd on with loud cries ; and there,
 In your old baptistery, I was made Christian at once and Cacciaguida ; as were,
 My brethren Eliseo and Moronto.

“ From Valdipado^s came to me my spouse ;
 And hence thy surname grew. I follow'd then
 The Emperor Conrad :^t and his knighthood he Did gird on me ; in such good part he took My valiant service. After him I went
 To testify against that evil law,
 Whose people,^u by the shepherd's fault, possess
 Your right, usurping. There, by that foul crew
 Was I releas'd from the deceitful world
 Whose base affection many a spirit soils ;
 And from the martyrdom came to this peace.”

CANTO XVI.

Argument.

Cacciaguida relates the time of his birth ; and, describing the extent of Florence when he lived there, recounts the names of the chief families who then inhabited it. It's degeneracy, and subsequent disgrace, he attributes to the introduction of families from the neighbouring country and villages, and to their mixture with the primitive citizens.

O SLIGHT Respect of man's nobility !
 I never shall account it marvellous,
 That our infirm affection here below.
 Thou mov'st to boasting ; when I could not choose,
 E'en in that region of unwarp'd desire,
 In heav'n itself, but make my vaunt in thee.
 Yet cloak thou art soon shorten'd ; for that Time,
 Unless thou be ek'd out from day to day,
 Goes round thee with his shears. Resuming then,
 With greeting^a such as Rome was first to bear,
 But since hath disaccustom'd, I began :
 And Beatrice,^b that a little space
 Was sever'd, smil'd ; reminding me of her,
 Whose cough embolden'd (as the story holds)
 To first offence the doubting Guenever.^c
 " You are my sire," said I : " you give me heart

Freely to speak my thought: above myself
 You raise me. Through so many streams with joy
 My soul is fill'd, that gladness wells from it;
 So that it bears the mighty tide, and bursts not.
 Say then, my honour'd stem! what ancestors
 Were those you sprang from, and what years were mark'd

In your first childhood? Tell me of the fold,^d
 That hath Saint John for guardian, what was then It's state, and who in it were highest seated?"

As embers, at the breathing of the wind,
 Their flame enliven; so that light I saw
 Shine at my blandishments; and, as it grew
 More fair to look on, so with voice more sweet,
 Yet not in this our modern phrase, forthwith
 It answer'd: "From the day,^e when it was said
 'Hail Virgin!' to the throes by which my mother,
 Who now is sainted, lighten'd her of me
 Whom she was heavy with, this fire had come
 Five hundred times and fourscore, to relume
 It's radiance underneath the burning foot
 Of it's own lion. They, of whom I sprang,
 And I, had there our birth-place, where the last^f
 Partition of our city first is reach'd
 By him that runs her annual game. Thus much Suffice of my forefathers: who they were,
 And whence they hither came, more honourable
 It is to pass in silence than to tell.
 All those, who at that time were there, betwixt
 Mars^g and the Baptist, fit to carry arms,
 Were but the fifth, of them this day alive.

But then the citizen's blood, that now is mix'd
From Campi and Certaldo and Fighine,^h
Ran purely through the last mechanic's veins.
O how much better were it, that these peopleⁱ
Were neighbours to you ; and that at Galluzzo
And at Trespiano ye should have your bound'ry ;
Than to have them within, and bear the stench
Of Aguglione's hind, and Signa's, ^j him,
That hath his eye already keen for bart'ring.^k
Had not the people,^l which of all the world
Degenerates most, been stepdame unto Cæsar,
But, as a mother to her son been kind,
Such one, as hath become a Florentine,
And trades and traffics, had been turn'd adrift
To Sinifonte,^m where his grandsire ply'd
The beggar's craft : the Conti were possess'd
Of Montemurloⁿ still : the Cerchi still
Were in Acone's parish : nor had haply
From Valdigrieve pass'd the Buondelmonti.
The city's malady hath ever source
In the confusion of it's persons, as
The body's, in variety of food :
And the blind bull^o falls with a steeper plunge,
Than the blind lamb : and oftentimes one sword
Doth more and better execution,
Than five. Mark Luni ; Urbisaglia^p mark ;
How they are gone ; and after them how go Chiusi and Sinigaglia :^q and 't will seem
No longer new, or strange to thee, to hear
That families fail, when cities have their end.
All things that appertain to' ye, like yourselves,

Are mortal : but mortality in some
 Ye mark not ; they endure so long, and you Pass by so suddenly. And as the moon^r
 Doth, by the rolling of her heav'ly sphere,
 Hide and reveal the strand unceasingly ;
 So fortune deals with Florence. Hence admire not
 At what of them I tell thee, whose renown
 Time covers, the first Florentines. I saw
 The Ughi,^s Catilini, and Filippi,
 The Alberichi, Greci, and Ormanni,
 Now in their wane, illustrious citizens ;
 And great as ancient, of Sannella him,
 With him of Arca saw, and Soldanieri,
 And Ardinghi', and Bostichi. At the poop,^t
 That now is laden with new felony
 So cumb'rous it may spedily sink the bark,
 The Ravignani sat, of whom is sprung
 The County Guido, and whoso hath since
 His title from the fam'd Bellincion ta'en.
 Fair governance was yet an art well priz'd
 By him of Pressa : Galigaio show'd
 The gilded hilt and pommel,^u in his house :
 The column, cloth'd with verrey,^v still was seen
 Unshaken : the Sacchetti still were great,
 Giouchi, Sifanti, Galli, and Barucci,
 With them^w who blush to hear the bushel nam'd.
 Of the Calfucci still the branchy trunk
 Was in it's strength : and, to the curule chairs,
 Sizii and Arrigucci yet were drawn.
 How mighty them^x I saw, whom, since, their pride
 Hath undone ! And in all her goodly deeds

Florence was, by the bullets of bright gold,^y
 O'erflourish'd. Such the sires of those,^z who now,
 As surely as your church is vacant, flock
 Into her consistory, and at leisure
 There stall them and grow fat. The' o'erweening brood,^{aa}

That plays the dragon after him that flees,
 But unto such as turn and show the tooth,
 Ay or the purse, is gentle as a lamb,
 Was on it's rise, but yet so slight esteem'd,
 That Ubertino of Donati grudg'd
 His father-in-law should yoke him to it's tribe.

Already Caponsacco^{ab} had descended
 Into the mart from Fesole: and Giuda
 And Infangato^{ac} were good citizens.

A thing incredible I tell, though true :^{ad}
 The gateway,^{ae} nam'd from those of Pera, led Into the narrow circuit of your walls.

Each one, who bears the slightly quarterings
 Of the great Baron^{af} (he whose name and worth
 The festival of Thomas still revives,)

His knighthood and his privilege retain'd;
 Albeit one,^{ag} who borders them with gold,
 This day is mingled with the common herd.

In Borgo yet the Gualterotti dwelt,
 And Importuni :^{ah} well for it's repose,
 Had it still lack'd of newer neighbourhood.^{ai}
 The house,^{aj} from whence your tears have had their spring,

Through the just anger, that hath murder'd ye
 And put a period to your gladsome days,

Was honour'd ; it, and those consorted with it.
O Buondelmonti ! what ill counseling
Prevail'd on thee to break the plighted bond ?
Many, who now are weeping, would rejoice,
Had God to Ema^{ak} giv'n thee, the first time
Thou near our city cam'st. But so was doom'd : Florence ! on that maim'd stone^{al} which guards the bridge,
The victim, when thy peace departed, fell.

“ With these and others like to them, I saw
Florence in such assur'd tranquillity,
She had no cause at which to grieve : with these Saw her so glorious and so just, that ne'er
The lily^{am} from the lance had hung reverse,
Or through division been with vermeil dyed.”

CANTO XVII.

Argument.

Cacciaguida predicts to our Poet his exile and the calamities he had to suffer; and, lastly, exhorts him to the present poem.

Such as the youth,^a who came to Clymene,
 To certify himself of that reproach
 Which had been fasten'd on him, (he whose end Still makes the fathers chary to their sons,) E'en such was I; nor unobserv'd was such
 Of Beatrice, and that saintly lamp,^b
 Who had erewhile for me his station mov'd;
 When thus my lady: "Give thy wish free vent,
 That it may issue, bearing true report
 Of the mind's impress: not that aught thy words
 May to our knowledge add, but to the end
 That thou mayst use thyself to own thy thirst,^c
 And men may mingle for thee when they hear."

"O plant, from whence I spring! rever'd and lov'd!

Who soar'st so high a pitch, that thou as clear,^d
 As earthly thought determines two abtuse
 In one triangle not contain'd, so clear
 Dost see contingencies, ere in themselves

Existent, looking at the point^e whereto
 All times are present ; I, the whilst I scal'd
 With Virgil the soul purifying mount,^f
 And visited the nether world^g of woe,
 Touching my future destiny have heard
 Words grievous, though I feel me on all sides
 Well squar'd^h to fortune's blows. Therefore my will
 Were satisfied to know the lot awaits me.
 The arrow,ⁱ seen beforehand, slacks it's flight."

So said I to the brightness, which erewhile
 To me had spoken ; and my will declar'd,
 As Beatrice will'd, explicitly.
 Nor with oracular response obscure,
 Such as, or e'er the Lamb of God was slain,
 Beguil'd the credulous nations ; but, in terms
 Precise, and unambiguous lore, replied
 The spirit of paternal love, enshrin'd,
 Yet in his smile apparent ; and thus spake :
 " Contingency,^j whose verge extendeth not
 Beyond the tablet of your mortal mould,
 Is all depictur'd in the' eternal sight ;
 But hence deriveth not necessity,^k
 More than the tall ship, hurried down the flood,
 Is driven by the eye that looks on it.
 From thence,^l as to the ear sweet harmony
 From organ comes, so comes before mine eye
 The time prepar'd for thee. Such as driv'n out
 From Athens, by his cruel stepdame's^m wiles,
 Hippolytus departed ; such must thou
 Depart from Florence. This they wish, and this Contrive, and will ere long effectuate, there,ⁿ

Where gainful merchandize is made of Christ
 Throughout the livelong day. The common cry,^o
 Will, as 't is ever wont, affix the blame
 Unto the party injur'd: but the truth
 Shall, in the vengeance it dispenseth, find
 A faithful witness. Thou shalt leave each thing^p
 Belov'd most dearly: this is the first shaft
 Shot from the bow of exile. Thou shalt prove
 How salt the savour is of other's bread;
 How hard the passage, to descend and climb
 By other's stairs. But that shall gall thee most,
 Will be the worthless and vile company,
 With whom thou must be thrown into these straits.
 For all ungrateful, impious all, and mad,
 Shall turn 'gainst thee: but in a little while,
 Their's,^q and not thine, shall be the crimson'd brow.
 Their course shall so evince their brutishness,
 To' have ta'en thy stand apart shall well become thee.

“First refuge thou must find, first place of rest,
 In the great Lombard's^r courtesy, who bears,
 Upon the ladder perch'd, the sacred bird.
 He shall behold thee with such kind regard,
 That 'twixt ye two, the contrary to that Which 'fals 'twixt other men, the granting shall Forerun the asking. With him shalt thou see
 That mortal,^s who was at his birth imprest
 So strongly from this star, that of his deeds
 The nations shall take note. His unripe age
 Yet holds him from observance; for these wheels
 Only nine years have compast him about.
 But, ere the Gascon^t practise on great Harry,^u

Sparkles of virtue shall shoot forth in him,
 In equal scorn^v of labours and of gold.
 His bounty shall be spread abroad so widely,
 As not to let the tongues, e'en of his foes,
 Be idle in it's praise. Look thou to him,
 And his beneficence : for he shall cause
 Reversal of their lot to many people ;
 Rich men and beggars interchanging fortunes.
 And thou shalt bear this written in thy soul,
 Of him, but tell it not : " and things he told
 Incredible to those who witness them ;
 Then added : " So interpret thou, my son,
 What hath been told thee.—Lo ! the ambushment
 That a few circling seasons hide for thee.
 Yet envy not thy neighbours : time extends Thy span beyond their treason's chastisement."

Soon as the saintly spirit, by silence, mark'd,
 Completion of that web, which I had stretch'd,
 Before it, warp'd for weaving ; I began,
 As one, who in perplexity desires
 Counsel of other, wise, benign and friendly :
 " My father ! well I mark how time spurs on Toward me, ready to inflict the blow,
 Which falls most heavily on him who most Abandoneth himself. Therefore 't is good
 I should forecast, that, driven from the place^w
 Most dear to me, I may not lose myself^x
 All other by my song. Down through the world
 Of infinite mourning ; and along the mount,
 From whose fair height my lady's eyes did lift me ;
 And, after, through this heav'n, from light to light ;

Have I learnt that, which if I tell again,
It may with many wofully disrelish :
And, if I am a timid friend to truth,
I fear my life may perish among those,
To whom these days shall be of ancient date."

The brightness, where enclos'd the treasure^y smil'd,
Which I had found there, first shone glisteringly,
Like to a golden mirror in the sun ;
Next answer'd : " Conscience, dimm'd or by it's own
Or other's shame, will feel thy saying sharp.
Thou, notwithstanding, all deceit remov'd,
See the whole vision be made manifest.
And let them wince, who have their withers wrung.
What though, when tasted first, thy voice shall prove Unwelcome ; on digestion, it will turn
To vital nourishment. The cry thou raisest,"
Shall, as the wind doth, smite the proudest summits ;
Which is of honour no light argument.
For this, there only have been shown to thee,
Throughout these orbs, the mountain, and the deep,
Spirits, whom fame hath note of. For the mind
Of him, who hears, is loth to acquiesce
And fix it's faith, unless the instance brought Be palpable, and proof apparent urge."

CANTO XVIII.

Argument.

Dante sees the souls of many renowned warriors and crusaders in the planet Mars; and then ascends with Beatrice to Jupiter, the sixth heaven, in which he finds the souls of those who had administered justice rightly in the world, so disposed, as to form the figure of an eagle. The Canto concludes with an invective against the avarice of the clergy, and especially of the pope.

Now^a in his word, sole, ruminating, joy'd
That blessed spirit: and I fed on mine,
Temp'ring the sweet with bitter.^b She meanwhile,
Who led me unto God, admonish'd: " Muse
On other thoughts: bethink thee, that near Him
I dwell, who recompenseth every wrong."

At the sweet sounds of comfort straight I turn'd;
And, in the saintly eyes what love was seen,
I leave in silence here: nor through distrust
Of my words only, but that to such bliss
The mind remounts not without aid. Thus much
Yet may I speak; that, as I gaz'd on her,
Affection found no room for other wish.
While the' everlasting pleasure, that did full

On Beatrice shine, with second view
 From her fair countenance my gladden'd soul
 Contented ; vanquishing me with a beam
 Of her soft smile, she spake : " Turn thee, and list.
 These eyes are not thy only Paradise."

As here, we sometimes in the looks may see
 The' affection mark'd, when that it's sway hath ta'en
 The spirit wholly ; thus the hallow'd light,^c
 To whom I turn'd, flashing, bewray'd it's will
 To talk yet further with me, and began :
 "On this fifth lodgment of the tree,^d whose life
 Is from it's top, whose fruit is ever fair
 And leaf unwith'ring, blessed spirits abide,
 That were below, ere they arriv'd in heav'n,
 So mighty in renown, as every muse
 Might grace her triumph with them. On the horns
 Look, therefore, of the cross : he, whom I name,
 Shall there enact, as doth in summer cloud
 It's nimble fire." Along the cross I saw,
 At the repeated name of Joshua,
 A splendour gliding ; nor, the word was said,
 Ere it was done : then, at the naming, saw,
 Of the great Maccabee,^e another move
 With whirling speed ; and gladness was the scourge
 Unto that top. The next for Charlemagne^f
 And for the peer Orlando, two my^ggaze
 Pursued, intently, as the eye pursues
 A falcon flying. Last, along the cross,
 William, and Renard,^g and Duke Godfrey^h drew
 My ken, and Robert Guiscard.ⁱ And the soul,
 Who spake with me, among the other lights

Did move away, and mix ; and with the quire
Of heav'nly songsters prov'd his tuneful skill.

To Beatrice on my right I bent,
Looking for intimation, or by word
Or act, what next behov'd ; and did descry
Such mere effulgence in her eyes, such joy,
It past all former wont. And, as by sense
Of new delight, the man, who perseveres
In good deeds, doth perceive, from day to day,
His virtue growing ; I e'en thus perceiv'd,
Of my ascent, together with the heav'n,
The circuit widen'd ; noting the increase
Of beauty in that wonder. Like the change
In a brief moment on some maiden's cheek,
Which, from it's fairness, doth discharge the weight
Of pudency, that stain'd it ; such in her,
And to mine eyes so sudden was the change,
Through silvery^j whiteness of that temperate star,
Whose sixth orb now enfolded us. I saw,
Within that Jovial cresset, the clear sparks
Of love, that reign'd there, fashion to my view
Our language. And as birds, from river banks
Arisen, now in round, now lengthen'd troop,
Array them in their flight, greeting, as seems,
Their new-found pastures ; so, within the lights,
The saintly creatures flying, sang ; and made
Now D, now I, now L, figur'd i' the air.
First, singing, to their notes they mov'd ; then, one Becoming of these signs, a little while
Did rest them, and were mute. O nymph divine,
Of Pegasean race ! who souls, which thou

Inspir'st, mak'st glorious and long-liv'd, as they Cities and realms by thee ; thou with thyself
Inform me ; that I may set forth the shapes,
As fancy doth present them : be thy power
Display'd in this brief song. The characters,¹
Vocal and consonant, were five-fold seven.
In order, each, as they appear'd, I mark'd.
Diligite Justitiam, the first,
Both verb and noun all blazon'd ; and the' extreme,
Qui judicatis terram. In the M
Of the fifth word they held their station ;
Making the star seem silver streak'd with gold.
And on the summit of the M, I saw
Descending other lights, that rested there,
Singing, methinks, their bliss and primal good.
Then, as at shaking of a lighted brand,
Sparkles innumerable on all sides
Rise scatter'd, source of augury to the' unwise ;^m
Thus more than thousand twinkling lustres hence
Seem'd reascending ; and a higher pitch
Some mounting, and some less, e'en as the sun,
Which kindleth them, decreed. And when each one
Had settled in his place ; the head and neck
Then saw I of an eagle, livelily
Grav'd in that streaky fire. Who painteth there,ⁿ Hath none to guide Him : of Himself he guides :
And every line and texture of the nest
Doth own from Him the virtue fashions it.
The other bright beatitude,^o that seem'd
Erewhile, with lillied crowning, well content
To over-canopy the M, mov'd forth,

Following gently the impress of the bird.

Sweet star ! what glorious and thick-studded gems

Declar'd to me our justice on the earth
To be the effluence of that heav'n, which thou,
Thyself a costly jewel, dost inlay.
Therefore I pray the Sovran Mind, from whom
Thy motion and thy virtue are begun,
That He would look from whence the fog doth rise,
To vitiate thy beam ; so that once more^P
He may put forth his hand 'gainst such, as drive
Their traffic in that sanctuary, whose walls
With miracles and martyrdoms were built.

Ye host of heaven, whose glory I survey !
O beg ye grace for those, that are, on earth,
All after ill example gone astray.
War once had for it's instrument the sword :
But now 't is made, taking the bread away,
Which the good Father locks from none.—And thou,
That writest but to cancel,^r think, that they,
Who for the vineyard, which thou wastest, died,
Peter and Paul, live yet, and mark thy doings.
Thou hast good cause to cry, “ My heart so cleaves
To him,^s that liv'd in solitude remote,
And for a dance^t was dragg'd to martyrdom,
I wist not of the fisherman nor Paul.”

CANTO XIX.

Argument.

The eagle speaks as with one voice proceeding from a multitude of spirits, that compose it; and declares the cause for which it is exalted to that state of glory. It then solves a doubt, which our Poet had entertained, respecting the possibility of salvation without belief in Christ; exposes the inefficacy of a mere profession of such belief; and prophesies the evil appearance that many Christian potentates will make at the day of judgment.

BEFORE my sight appear'd, with open wings,
The beauteous image; in fruition sweet,
Gladdening the thronged spirits. Each did seem
A little ruby, whereon so intense
The sun-beam glow'd, that to mine eyes it came
In clear refraction. And that, which next
Befals me to portray, voice hath not utter'd,
Nor hath ink written,^a nor in fantasy
Was e'er conceiv'd. For I beheld and heard
The beak discourse; and, what intention form'd
Of many, singly as of one express,
Beginning: “ For that I was just and piteous,
I am exalted to this height of glory,
The which no wish exceeds: and there on earth
Have I my memory left, e'en by the bad

Commended, while they leave it's course untrod."

Thus is one heat from many embers felt ;
 As in that image many were the loves,
 And one the voice, that issued from them all :
 Whence I addrest them : " O perennial flowers
 Of gladness everlasting ! that exhale
 In single breath your odours manifold ;
 Breathe now : and let the hunger be appeas'd,
 That with great craving long hath held my soul,
 Finding no food on earth. This well I know ;
 That if there be in heav'n a realm, that shows
 In faithful mirror the celestial Justice,
 Your's without veil reflects it. Ye discern
 The heed, wherewith I do prepare myself
 To hearken ; ye, the doubt, that urges me
 With such inveterate craving." Straight I saw,
 Like to a falcon^b issuing from the hood,
 That rears his head, and claps him with his wings,
 His beauty and his eagerness bewraying ;
 So saw I move that stately sign, with praise
 Of grace divine inwoven, and high song
 Of inexpressive joy. " He," it began,
 " Who turn'd his compass^c on the world's extreme,
 And in that space so variously hath wrought,
 Both openly' and in secret ; in such wise
 Could not, through all the universe, display
 Impression of his glory, that the Word^d
 Of his omniscience should not still remain
 In infinite excess. In proof whereof,
 He first through pride supplanted, who was sum
 Of each created being, waited not

For light celestial ; and abortive fell.
Whence needs each lesser nature is but scant
Receptacle unto that Good, which knows
No limit, measur'd by itself alone.
Therefore your sight, of the' omnipresent Mind
A single beam, it's origin must own
Surpassing far it's utmost potency.
The ken, your world is gifted with, descends
In the' everlasting Justice as low down,
As eye doth in the sea ; which, though it mark
The bottom from the shore, in the wide main Discerns it not ; and ne'ertheless it is ;
But hidden through it's deepness. Light is none,
Save that which cometh from the pure serene
Of ne'er disturbed ether : for the rest,
'Tis darkness all ; or shadow of the flesh,
Or else it's poison. Here confess reveal'd
That covert, which hath hidden from thy search
The living justice, of the which thou mad'st
Such frequent question ; for thou saidst—' A man
Is born on Indus' banks, and none is there
Who speaks of Christ, nor who doth read nor write
And all his inclinations and his acts,
As far as human reason sees, are good ;
And he offendeth not in word or deed :
But unhaptiz'd he dies, and void of faith.
Where is the justice that condemns him ? where
His blame, if he believeth not ?'—What then,
And who art thou, that on the stool wouldest sit
To judge at distance of a thousand miles
With the short-sighted vision of a span ?

To him,^e who subtilizes thus with me,
There would assuredly be room for doubt
Even to wonder, did not the safe word
Of scripture hold supreme authority.

“ O animals of clay ! O spirits gross !
The primal will,^f that in itself is good,
Hath from itself, the chief Good, ne'er been mov'd.
Justice consists in consonance with it,
Derivable by no created good,
Whose very cause depends upon it's beam.”

As on her nest the stork, that turns about
Unto her young, whom lately she hath fed,
Whiles they with upward eyes do look on her ;
So lifted I my gaze ; and, bending so,
The ever-blessed' image wav'd it's wings,
Lab'ring with such deep counsel. Wheeling round
It warbled, and did say : “ As are my notes
To thee, who understand'st them not ; such is
The' eternal judgment unto mortal ken.”

Then still abiding in that ensign rang'd,
Wherewith the Romans over-aw'd the world,
Those burning splendours of the Holy Spirit
Took up the strain ; and thus it spake again :
“ None ever hath ascended to this realm,
Who hath not a believer been in Christ,
Either before or after the blest limbs
Were nail'd upon the wood. But lo ! of those Who call 'Christ, Christ,'^g there shall be many found,
In judgment, further off from him by far,
Than such to whom his name was never known.
Christians like these the Æthiop^h shall condemn :

When that the two assemblages shall part ;
One rich eternally, the other poor.

“ What may the Persians say unto your kings,
When they shall see that volume,ⁱ in the which
All their dispraise is written, spread to view ?
There amidst Albert’s^j works shall that be read,
Which will give speedy motion to the pen,
When Prague^k shall mourn her desolated realm.
There shall be read the woe, that he^l doth work
With his adulterate money on the Seine,
Who by the tusk will perish : there be read
The thirsting pride, that maketh fool alike
The English and Scot,^m impatient of their bound.
There shall be seen the Spaniard’s luxury ;ⁿ
The delicate living there, of the Boheian,^o
Who still to worth has been a willing stranger.
The halter of Jerusalem^p shall see
A unit for his virtue ; for his vices,
No less a mark than million. He,^q who guards
The isle of fire by old Anchises honor’d,
Shall find his avarice there and cowardice ;
And better to denote his littleness,
The writing must be letters maim’d, that speak
Much in a narrow space. All there shall know
His uncle^r and his brother’s^s filthy doings,
Who so renown’d a nation and two^t crowns
Have bastardiz’d.^t And they, of Portugal^u
And Norway,^v there shall be expos’d, with him
Of Ratza,^w who hath counterfeited ill
The coin of Venice. O blest Hungary !^x
If thou no longer patiently abid’st

Thy ill-entreating : and, O blest Navarre !
If with thy mountainous girdle^z thou wouldest arm thee.

In earnest of that day, e'en now are heard
Wailings and groans in Famagosta's streets
And Nicosia's,^{aa} grudging at their beast,
Who keepeth even footing with the rest."^{ab}

CANTO XX.

Argument.

The eagle celebrates the praise of certain kings, whose glorified spirits form the eye of the bird. In the pupil is David; and, in the circle round it, Trajan, Hezekiah, Constantine, William II. of Sicily, and Ripheus. It explains to our Poet, how the souls of those whom he supposed to have had no means of believing in Christ, came to be in heaven; and concludes with an admonition against presuming to fathom the counsels of God.

WHEN, disappearing from our hemisphere,
 The world's enlightener vanishes, and day
 On all sides wasteth; suddenly the sky,
 Erewhile irradiate only with his beam,
 Is yet again unfolded, putting forth
 Innumerable lights wherein one shines.^a
 Of such vicissitude in heaven I thought;
 As the great sign,^b that marshaleth the world
 And the world's leaders, in the blessed beak
 Was silent: for that all those living lights,
 Waxing in splendour, burst forth into songs,
 Such as from memory glide and fall away.

Sweet Love, that dost apparel thee in smiles!
 How lustrous was thy semblance in those sparkles,
 Which merely are from holy thoughts inspir'd.

After^c the precious and bright beaming stones,

That did ingem the sixth light, ceas'd the chiming
 Of their angelic bells ; methought I heard
 The murmuring of a river, that doth fall
 From rock to rock transpicuous, making known
 The richness of his spring-head : and as sound
 Of cittern, at the fret-board, or of pipe,
 Is, at the wind-hole, modulate and tun'd ;
 Thus up the neck, as it were hollow, rose
 That murmuring of the eagle ; and forthwith
 Voice there assum'd ; and thence along the beak
 Issued in form of words, such as my heart
 Did look for, on whose tables I inscrib'd them.

“ The part^d in me, that sees and bears the sun
 In mortal eagles,” it began, “ must now
 Be noted stedfastly : for, of the fires,
 That figure me, those, glittering in mine eye,
 Are chief of all the greatest. This, that shines
 Midmost for pupil, was the same who^e sang
 The Holy Spirit’s song, and bare about
 The ark from town to town : now doth he know
 The merit of his soul-impassion’d strains
 By their well-fitted guerdon. Of the five,
 That make the circle of the vision, he,^f
 Who to the beak is nearest, comforted
 The widow for her son : now doth he know,
 How dear it costeth not to follow Christ ;
 Both from experience of this pleasant life,
 And of it’s opposite. He next,^g who follows
 In the circumference, for the over arch,
 By true repenting slack’d the pace of death :
 Now knoweth he, that the decrees of heav’n^h

Alter not, when, through pious prayer below,
 To-day's is made to-morrow's destiny.
 The other following,ⁱ with the laws and me,
 To yield the shepherd room, pass'd o'er^j to Greece ;
 From good intent, producing evil fruit :
 Now knoweth he, how all the ill, deriv'd
 From his well doing, doth not harm him aught ;
 Though it have brought destruction on the world.
 That, which thou seest in the under bow,
 Was William,^k whom that land bewails, which weeps
 For Charles and Frederick living : now he knows,
 How well is lov'd in heav'n the righteous king ;
 Which he betokens by his radiant seeming.
 Who, in the erring world beneath, would deem
 That Trojan Ripheus,^l in this round, was set,
 Fifth of the saintly splendours ? now he knows Enough of that, which the world cannot see ;
 The grace divine : albeit e'en his sight
 Reach not it's utmost depth." Like to the lark,
 That warbling in the air expatiates long,
 Then, trilling out his last sweet melody,
 Drops, satiate with the sweetness ; such appear'd
 That image, stamp'd by the' everlasting pleasure,
 Which fashions, as they are, all things that be.

I, though my doubting were as manifest,
 As is through glass^m the hue that mantles it,
 In silence waited not ; for to my lips
 " What things are these ?" involuntary rush'd,
 And forc'd a passage out : whereat I mark'd
 A sudden lightening and new revelry.
 The eye was kindled ; and the blessed sign,

No more to keep me wond'ring and suspense,
 Replied : " I see that thou believ'st these things,
 Because I tell them, but discern'st not how ;
 So that thy knowledge waits not on thy faith :
 As one, who knows the name of thing by rote,
 But is a stranger to it's properties,
 Till other's tongue reveal them. Fervent love,
 And lively hope, with violence assail
 The kingdom of the heav'ns, and overcome
 The will of the Most High ; not in such sort
 As man prevails o'er man : but conquers it,
 Because 't is willing to be conquer'd ; still,
 Though conquer'd, by it's mercy, conquering.

" Those, in the eye who live the first and fifth,
 Cause thee to marvel, in that thou behold'st
 The region of the angels deck'd with them.
 They quitted not their bodies, as thou deem'st,
 Gentiles, but Christians ; in firm rooted faith,
 This, ^o of the feet in future to be pierc'd,
 That, ^o of feet nail'd already to the cross.
 One from the barrier of the dark abyss,
 Where never any with good will returns,
 Came back unto his bones. Of lively hope
 Such was the meed ; of lively hope, that wing'd
 The prayers^p sent up to God for his release,
 And put power into them to bend His will.
 The glorious Spirit, of whom I speak to thee,
 A little while returning to the flesh,
 Believ'd in him, who had the means to help ;
 And, in believing, nourish'd such a flame
 Of holy love, that at the second death

He was made sharer in our gamesome mirth.
 The other, through the riches of that grace,
 Which from so deep a fountain doth distil,
 As never eye created saw it's rising,
 Plac'd all his love below on just and right :
 Wherefore, of grace, God op'd in him the eye
 To the redemption of mankind to come ;
 Wherein believing, he endur'd no more
 The filth of Paganism, and for their ways
 Rebuk'd the stubborn nations. The three nymphs,^q
 Whom at the right wheel thou beheldst advancing,
 Were sponsors for him, more than thousand years
 Before baptizing. O how far remov'd, Predestination ! is thy root from such
 As see not the First Cause entire : and ye,
 O mortal men ! be wary how ye judge :
 For we, who see our Maker, know not yet
 The number of the chosen ; and esteem
 Such scantiness of knowledge our delight :
 For all our good is, in that primal good,
 Concentrate ; and God's will and our's are one."

So, by that form divine, was giv'n to me
 Sweet medicine to clear and strengthen sight.
 And, as one handling skilfully the harp,
 Attendant on some skilful songster's voice
 Bids the chord vibrate ; and therein the song
 Acquires more pleasure : so, the whilst it spake,
 It doth remember me, that I beheld
 The pair^r of blessed luminaries move,
 Like the accordant twinkling of two eyes,
 Their beamy circlets, dancing to the sounds.

CANTO XXI.

Argument.

Dante ascends with Beatrice to the seventh heaven, which is the planet Saturn ; wherein is placed a ladder, so lofty, that the top of it is out of his sight. Here are the souls of those who had passed their life in holy retirement and contemplation. Piero Damiano comes near them, and answers questions put to him by Dante ; then declares who he was on earth ; and ends by declaiming against the luxury of pastors and prelates in those times.

AGAIN mine eyes were fix'd on Beatrice ;
And, with mine eyes, my soul that in her looks
Found all contentment. Yet no smile she wore :
And, " Did I smile," quoth she, " thou wouldest be straight

Like Semele when into ashes turn'd :
For, mounting these eternal palace-stairs,
My beauty, which the loftier it climbs,
As thou hast noted, still doth kindle more,
So shines, that, were no temp'ring interpos'd,.
Thy mortal puissance would from its rays
Shrink, as the leaf doth from the thunderbolt.
Into the seventh splendour^a are we wafted,
That, underneath the burning lion's breast,^b
Beams, in this hour, commingled with his might.

Thy mind be with thine eyes ; and, in them, mirror'd^c
The shape, which in this mirror shall be shown."

Whoso can deem, how fondly I had fed
My sight upon her blissful countenance,
May know, when to new thoughts I chang'd, what joy
To do the bidding of my heav'nly guide ;
In equal balance,^d poising either weight.

Within the crystal, which records the name,
(As it's remoter circle girds the world)
Of that lov'd monarch,^e in whose happy reign
No ill had pow'r to harm, I saw rear'd up,
In colour like to sun-illumin'd gold,
A ladder, which my ken pursu'd in vain,
So lofty was the summit ; down whose steps
I saw the splendours in such multitude
Descending, every light in heav'n, methought,
Was shed thence. As the rooks, at dawn of day,
Bestirring them to dry their feathers chill,
Some speed their way a-field ; and homeward some,
Returning, cross their flight ; while some abide,
And wheel around their airy lodge : so seem'd
That glitterance,^f wafted on alternate wing,
As upon certain stair it came, and clash'd
It's shining. And one, ling'ring near us, wax'd
So bright, that in my thought I said : "The love,
Which ~~this~~ betokens me, admits no doubt."

Unwillingly from question I refrain ;
To her, by whom my silence and my speech
Are order'd, looking for a sign : whence she,
Who in the sight of Him, that seeth all,
Saw wherefore I was silent, prompted me

To' indulge the fervent wish ; and I began :
 " I am not worthy, of my own desert,
 That thou shouldst answer me : but for her sake,
 Who hath vouchsaf'd my asking, spirit blest,
 That in thy joy art shrouded ! say the cause,
 Which bringeth thee so near : and wherefore, say,
 Doth the sweet symphony of Paradise
 Keep silence here, pervading with such sounds
 Of rapt devotion ev'ry lower sphere ?"
 " Mortal art thou in hearing, as in sight ;"
 Was the reply : " and what forbade the smile^s
 Of Beatrice interrupts our song.
 Only to yield thee gladness of my voice,
 And of the light that vests me, I thus far
 Descend these hallow'd steps : not that more love Invites me ; for, lo ! there aloft,^h as much
 Or more of love is witness'd in those flames :
 But such my lot by charity assign'd,
 That makes us ready servants, as thou seest,
 To execute the counsel of the Highest."

" That in this court," said I, " O sacred lamp !
 Love no compulsion needs, but follows free
 The' eternal Providence, I well discern :
 This harder find to deem ; why, of thy peers,
 Thou only, to this office wert foredoom'd."

I had not ended, when, like rapid mill,
 Upon it's centre whirl'd the light ; and then
 The love, that did inhabit there, replied :
 " Splendour eternal, piercing through these folds,
 It's virtue to my vision knits ; and thus
 Supported, lifts me so above myself,

That on the sov'ran essence, which it wells from,
I have the power to gaze: and hence the joy,
Wherewith I sparkle, equaling with my blaze
The keenness of my sight. But not the soul,¹
That is in heav'n most lustrous, nor the seraph,
That hath his eyes most fix'd on God, shall solve
What thou hast ask'd: for in the' abyss it lies
Of the' everlasting statute sunk so low,
That no created ken may fathom it.
And, to the mortal world when thou return'st,.
Be this reported: that none henceforth dare
Direct his footsteps to so dread a bourn.
The mind, that here is radiant, on the earth
Is wrapt in mist. Look then if she may do
Below, what passeth her ability
When is ta'en to heav'n." By words like these Admonish'd, I the question urg'd no more ;
And of the spirit humbly sued alone
To instruct me of it's state. " "Twixt either shore²
Of Italy, nor distant from thy land,
A stony ridge^k ariseth ; in such sort,
The thunder doth not lift his voice so high.
They call it Catria :¹ at whose foot, a cell
Is sacred to the lonely Eremite ;
For worship set apart and holy rites."
A third time thus it spake ; then added : "There
So firmly to God's service I adher'd,
That with no costlier viands than the juice
Of olives, easily I pass'd the heats
Of summer and the winter frosts ; content
In heav'n-ward musings. Rich were the returns

And fertile, which that cloister once was us'd
To render to these heavens : now 't is fall'n
Into a waste so empty, that ere long
Detection must lay bare it's vanity.
Pietro Damiano^m there was I y-clept :
Pietro the sinner, when before I dwelt,
Beside the Adriatic,ⁿ in the house
Of our blest Lady. Near upon my close
Of mortal life, through much importuning
I was constrain'd to wear the hat,^o that still
From bad to worse is shifted.—Cephas^p came ;
He came, who was the Holy Spirit's vessel ;^q
Barefoot, and lean ; eating their bread, as chanc'd,
At the first table. Modern Shepherds need
Those who on either hand may prop and lead them,
So burly are they grown ; and from behind,
Others to hoist them. Down the palfrey's sides
Spread their broad mantles, so as both the beasts
Are cover'd with one skin. O patience ! thou
That look'st on this, and dost endure so long."

I at those accents saw the splendours down
From step to step alight, and wheel, and wax,
Each circuiting, more beautiful. Round this^r
They came, and stay'd them ; utter'd then a shout
So loud, it hath no likeness here : nor I
Wist what it spake, so deaf'ning was the thunder.

CANTO XXII.

Argument.

He beholds many other spirits of the devout and contemplative; and amongst these is addressed by Saint Benedict, who, after disclosing his own name and the names of certain of his companions in bliss, replies to the request made by our Poet that he might look on the form of the saint, without that covering of splendour, which then invested it; and then proceeds, lastly, to inveigh against the corruption of the monks. Next Dante mounts with his heavenly conductress to the eighth heaven, or that of the fixed stars, which he enters at the constellation of the Twins; and thence looking back, reviews all the space he has past between his present station and the earth.

ASTOUNDED, to the guardian of my steps
I turn'd me, like the child, who alway runs
Thither for succour, where he trusteth most:
And she was like the mother, who her son
Beholding pale and breathless, with her voice
Soothes him, and he is cheer'd; for thus she spake, Soothing me: "Know'st not thou, thou art in heav'n?
And know'st not thou, whatever is in heav'n,
Is holy; and that nothing there is done,
But is done zealously and well? Deem now,
What change in thee the song, and what my smile

Had wrought, since thus the shout had pow'r to move
thee ;

In which, couldst thou have understood their prayers,
The vengeance^a were already known to thee,
Which thou must witness ere thy mortal hour.

The sword of heav'n is not in haste to smite,
Nor yet doth linger ; save unto his seeming,
Who, in desire or fear, doth look for it.

But elsewhere now I bid thee turn thy view ;
So shalt thou many a famous spirit behold."

Mine eyes directing, as she will'd, I saw
A hundred little spheres, that fairer grew
By interchange of splendour. I remain'd,
As one, who fearful of o'er-much presuming,
Abates in him the keenness of desire,
Nor dares to question ; when, amid those pearls,
One largest and most lustrous onward drew,
That it might yield contentment to my wish ;
And, from within it, these the sounds I heard.

" If thou, like me, beheldst the charity
That burns amongst us ; what thy mind conceives,
Were uttur'd. But that, ere the lofty bound
Thou reach, expectance may not weary thee ;
I will make answer even to the thought,
Which thou hast such respect of. In old days,
That mountain, at whose side Cassino^b rests,
Was, on it's height, frequented by a race^c
Deceiv'd and ill dispos'd : and I it was,^d
Who thither carried first the name of Him,
Who brought the soul-subliming truth to man.
And such a speeding grace shone over me,

That from their impious worship I reclaim'd
 The dwellers round about, who with the world
 Were in delusion lost. These other flames,
 The spirits of men contemplative, were all
 Enliven'd by that warmth, whose kindly force
 Gives birth to flowers and fruits of holiness.
 Here is Macarius ;^e Romoaldo^f here ;
 And here my brethren, who their steps refrain'd
 Within the cloisters, and held firm their heart."

I answering thus : "Thy gentle words and kind,
 And this the cheerful semblance I behold,
 Not unobservant, beaming in ye all,
 Have rais'd assurance in me ; wakening it
 Full-blossom'd in my bosom, as a rose
 Before the sun, when the consummate flower
 Has spread to utmost amplitude. Of thee
 Therefore intreat I, father, to declare
 If I may gain such favour, as to gaze
 Upon thine image by no covering veil'd."

"Brother!" he thus rejoin'd, "in the last sphere^g
 Expect completion of thy lofty aim :
 For there on each desire completion waits,
 And there on mine ; where every aim is found
 Perfect, entire, and for fulfilment ripe.
 There all things are as they have ever been :
 For space is none to bound ; nor pole divides.
 Our ladder reaches even to that clime ;
 And so, at giddy distance, mocks thy view.
 Thither the patriarch Jacob^h saw it stretch
 It's topmost round ; when it appear'd to him
 With angels laden. But to mount it now

None lifts his foot from earth : and hence my rule
 Is left a profitless stain upon the leaves ;
 The walls, for abbey rear'd, turn'd into dens ;
 The cowls, to sacks choak'd up with musty meal.
 Foul usury doth not more lift itself
 Against God's pleasure, than that fruit, which makes
 The hearts of monks so wanton : for whate'er
 Is in the church's keeping, all pertains
 To such, as sue for heav'n's sweet sake ; and not
 To those, who in respect of kindred claim,
 Or on more vile allowance. Mortal flesh
 Is grown so dainty, good beginnings last not
 From the oak's birth unto the acorn's setting.
 His convent Peter founded without gold
 Or silver ; I, with pray'rs and fasting, mine ;
 And Francis, his in meek humility.
 And if thou note the point, whence each proceeds,
 Then look what it hath err'd to ; thou shalt find
 The white grown murky. Jordan was turn'd back :
 And a less wonder, than the refluent sea,
 May, at God's pleasure, work amendment here."

So saying, to his assembly back he drew :
 And they together cluster'd into one ;
 Then all roll'd upward, like an eddying wind.

The sweet dame beckon'd me to follow them :
 And, by that influence only, so prevail'd
 Over my nature, that no natural motion,
 Ascending or descending here below,
 Had, as I mounted, with my pennon vied.

So, reader, as my hope is to return
 Unto the holy triumph, for the which

I oft-times wail my sins, and smite my breast ;
 Thou hadst been longer drawing out and thrusting
 Thy finger in the fire, than I was, ere . . .
 The sign,ⁱ that followeth Taurus, I beheld,
 And enter'd it's precinct. O glorious stars !
 O light impregnate with exceeding virtue !
 To whom whate'er of genius lifteth me
 Above the vulgar, grateful I refer ;
 With ye the parent^j of all mortal life
 Arose and set, when I did first inhale
 The Tuscan air ; and afterward, when grace
 Vouchsaf'd me entrance to the lofty wheel^k
 That in it's orb impels ye, fate decreed
 My passage at your clime. To you my soul
 Devoutly sighs, for virtue, even now,
 To meet the hard emprise that draws me on.

“Thou art so near the sum of blessedness,”
 Said Beatrice, “that behoves thy ken
 Be vigilant and clear. And, to this end,
 Or ever thou advance thee further, hence
 Look downward, and contemplate, what a world
 Already stretch'd under our feet there lies :
 So as thy heart may, in it's blithest mood,
 Present itself to the triumphal throng,
 Which, through the' ethereal concave, comes rejoicing.”

I straight obey'd ; and with mine eye return'd
 Through all the seven spheres ; and saw this globe^l
 So pitiful of semblance, that perforce
 It mov'd my smiles : and him in truth I hold
 For wisest, who esteems it least ; whose thoughts

Elsewhere are fix'd, him worthiest call and best.
I saw the daughter of Latona shine
Without the shadow,^m whereof late I deem'd,
That dense and rare were cause. Here I sustain'd
The visage, Hyperion, of thy son;ⁿ
And mark'd, how near him with their circles, round
Move Maïa and Dione;^o here discern'd
Jove's tempering 'twixt his sire and son;^p and hence,
Their changes and their various aspects,
Distinctly scann'd. Nor might I not descry
Of all the sev'n, how bulky each, how swift;
Nor, of their several distances, not learn.
This petty area (o'er the which we stride
So fiercely,) as along the' eternal Twins
I wound my way, appear'd before me all,
Forth from the havens stretch'd unto the hills.
Then, to the beauteous eyes, mine eyes, return'd.

CANTO XXIII.

Argument.

He sees Christ triumphing with his church. The Saviour ascends, followed by his virgin Mother. The others remain with Saint Peter.

E'EN as the bird, who midst the leafy bower
 Has, in her nest, sat darkling through the night,
 With her sweet brood; impatient to descry
 Their wished looks, and to bring home their food,
 In the fond quest unconscious of her toil:
 She, of the time prevenient, on the spray,
 That overhangs their couch, with wakeful gaze
 Expects the sun; nor ever, till the dawn,
 Removeth from the east her eager ken:
 So stood the dame erect, and bent her glance
 Wistfully on that region,^a where the sun
 Abateth most his speed; that, seeing her
 Suspense and wond'ring, I became as one,
 In whom desire is waken'd, and the hope
 Of somewhat new to come fills with delight.

Short space ensued; I was not held, I say,
 Long in expectance, when I saw the heav'n
 Wax more and more resplendent; and "Behold," Cried Beatrice, "the triumphal hosts

Of Christ, and all the harvest gather'd in,
 Made ripe by these revolving spheres." Meseem'd,
 That, while she spake, her image all did burn ;
 And in her eyes such fulness was of joy,
 As I am fain to pass unconstrued by.

As in the calm full moon, when Trivia^b smiles,
 In peerless beauty, 'mid the' eternal nymphs,^c
 That paint through all it's gulfs the blue profound ;
 In bright pre-eminence so saw I there
 O'er million lamps a sun, from whom all drew
 Their radiance, as from our's the starry train :
 And, through the living light, so lustrous glow'd
 The substance, that my ken endur'd it not.

O Beatrice ! sweet and precious guide,
 Who cheer'd me with her comfortable words :
 " Against the virtue, that o'erpow'reth thee,
 Avails not to resist. Here is the Might,^d
 And here the Wisdom, which did open lay
 The path, that had been yearned for so long,
 Betwixt the heav'n and earth." Like to the fire,
 That, in a cloud imprison'd, doth break out
 Expansive, so that from it's womb enlarg'd,
 It falleth against nature to the ground ;
 Thus, in that heav'nly banqueting, my soul
 Outgrew herself ; and, in the transport lost,
 Holds now remembrance none of what she was.

" Ope thou thine eyes, and mark me : thou hast seen
 Things, that empow'r thee to sustain my smile."

I was, as one, when a forgotten dream^e
 Doth come across him, and he strives in vain

To shape it in his fantasy again ;
Whenas that gracious boon was proffer'd me,
Which never may be cancel'd from the book
•Wherein the past is written. Now were all
Those tongues to sound, that have, on sweetest milk
Of Polyhymnia and her sisters, fed
And fatten'd ; not with all their help to boot,
Unto the thousandth parcel of the truth,
My song might shadow forth that saintly smile,
How merely, in her saintly looks, it wrought.
And, with such figuring of Paradise,
The sacred strain must leap, like one that meets
A sudden interruption to his road.
But he, who thinks how ponderous the theme,
And that 't is laid upon a mortal shoulder,
May pardon, if it tremble with the burden.
The track, our ventrous keel must furrow, brooks
No unribb'd pinnace, no self-sparing pilot.

“ Why doth my face,” said Beatrice, “ thus Enamour thee, as that thou dost not turn
Unto the beautiful garden, blossoming
Beneath the rays of Christ ? Here is the rose,
Wherein the Word Divine was made incarnate ;
And here the lilies, by whose odour known
The way of life was follow'd.” Prompt I heard
Her bidding, and encounter'd once again
The strife of aching vision. As, erewhile,
Through glance of sun-light, stream'd through broken cloud,
Mine eyes a flow'r-besprinkled mead have seen ;
Though veil'd themselves in shade ; so saw I there

Legions of splendours, on whom burning rays
 Shed lightnings from above ; yet saw I not
 The fountain whence they flow'd. O gracious virtue !
 Thou, whose broad stamp is on them, higher up
 Thou didst exalt thy glory,^h to give room
 To my o'erlabour'd sight ; when at the name.
 Of that fair flower,ⁱ whom duly I invoke
 Both morn and eve, my soul with all her might Collected, on the goodliest ardour fix'd.
 And, as the bright dimensions of the star
 In heav'n excelling, as once here on earth,
 Were, in my eye-balls livelily pourtray'd ;
 Lo ! from within the sky a cresset^j fell,
 Circling in fashion of a diadem ;
 And girt the star ; and, hov'ring, round it wheel'd.
 Whatever melody sounds sweetest here,
 And draws the spirit most unto itself,
 Might seem a rent cloud, when it grates the thunder ;
 Compar'd unto the sounding of that lyre,^k
 Wherewith the goodliest sapphire,^l that inlays
 The floor of heav'n, was crown'd. " Angelic Love
 I am, who thus with hov'ring flight enwheel
 The lofty rapture from that womb inspir'd,
 Where our desire did dwell : and round thee so,
 Lady of Heav'n ! will hover ; long as thou
 Thy Son shalt follow, and diviner joy
 Shall from thy presence gild the highest sphere."

Such close was to the circling melody :
 And, as it ended, all the other lights
 Took up the strain, and echoed Mary's name.
 The robe,^m that with it's regal folds enwraps

The world, and with the nearer breath of God
Doth burn and quiver, held so far retir'd
It's inner hem and skirting over us,
That yet no glimmer of it's majesty
Had stream'd unto me: therefore were mine eyes
Unequal to pursue the crowned flame,ⁿ
That tow'ring rose, and sought the seed^o it bore.
And like to babe, that stretches forth it's arms
For very eagerness toward the breast,
After the milk is taken; so outstretch'd
Their wavy summits all the fervent band,
Through zealous love to Mary: then, in view,
There halted; and "Regina Cœli"^p sang
So sweetly, the delight hath left me never.

Oh! what o'erflowing plenty is up-pil'd
In those rich-laden coffers,^q which below
Sow'd the good seed, whose harvest now they keep.
Here are the treasures tasted, that with tears
Were in the Babylonian exile^r won,
When gold had fail'd them. Here, in synod high
Of ancient council with the new conven'd,
Under the Son of Mary and of God,
Victorious he^s his mighty triumph holds,
To whom the keys of glory were assign'd.

CANTO XXIV.

Argument.

Saint Peter examines Dante touching Faith, and is contented with his answers.

“ O ye ! in chosen fellowship advanc’d
 To the great supper of the blessed Lamb,
 Whereon who feeds hath every wish fulfill’d ;
 If to this man through God’s grace be vouchsaf’d
 Foretaste of that, which from your table falls,
 Or ever death his fated term prescribe ;
 Be ye not heedless of his urgent will :
 But may some influence of your sacred dews
 Sprinkle him. Of the fount ye alway drink,
 Whence flows what most he craves.” Beatrice spake ;
 And the rejoicing spirits, like to spheres
 On firm-set poles revolving, trail’d a blaze
 Of comet splendour : and as wheels, that wind
 Their circles in the horologe, so work
 The stated rounds, that to the’ observant eye
 The first seems still, and, as it flew, the last ;
 E’en thus their carols^a weaving variously,
 They, by the measure pac’d, or swift, or slow,
 Made me to rate the riches^b of their joy.
 From that,^c which I did note in beauty most

Excelling, saw I issue forth a flame
 So bright, as none was left more goodly there.
 Round Beatrice thrice it wheel'd about,
 With so divine a song, that fancy's ear
 Records it not ; and the pen passeth on,
 And leaves a blank : for that our mortal speech,
 Nor e'en the inward shaping of the brain,
 Hath colours fine enough to trace such folds.^d

“O saintly sister mine ! thy prayer devout
 Is with so vehement affection urg'd,
 Thou dost unbind me from that beauteous sphere.”

Such were the accents tow'rds my lady breath'd
 From that blest ardour, soon as it was stay'd ;
 To whom she thus : “ O everlasting light
 Of him, within whose mighty grasp our Lord
 Did leave the keys, which of this wondrous bliss
 He bare below ! tent^e this man as thou wilt,
 With lighter probe or deep, touching the faith,
 By the which thou didst on the billows walk.
 If he in love, in hope, and in belief,
 Be stedfast, is not hid from thee : for thou
 Hast there thy ken, where all things are beheld
 In liveliest portraiture. But since true faith
 Has peopled this fair realm with citizens ;
 Meet is, that to exalt it's glory more,
 Thou, in his audience, shouldst thereof discourse.”

Like to the bachelor, who arms himself,
 And speaks not, till the master have propos'd
 The question, to approve,^f and not to end it ;
 So I, in silence, arm'd me, while she spake,
 Summoning up each argument to aid ;

As was behoveful for such questioner,
 And such profession : " As good Christian ought, Declare thee, What is faith ? " Whereat I rais'd
 My forehead to the light, whence this had breath'd ;
 Then turn'd to Beatrice' ; and in her looks
 Approval met, that from their inmost fount
 I should unlock the waters. " May the grace,
 That giveth me the captain of the church
 For confessor," said I, " vouchsafe to me
 Apt utterance for my thoughts ; " then added : " Sire !
 E'en as set down by the unerring style
 Of thy dear brother, who with thee conspir'd
 To bring Rome in unto the way of life,
 Faith^g of things hop'd is substance, and the proof
 Of things not seen ; and herein doth consist Methinks it's essence."—" Rightly hast thou deem'd,"
 Was answer'd ; " if thou well discern, why first
 He hath defin'd it substance, and then proof."

" The deep things," I replied, " which here I scan

Distinctly, are below from mortal eye
 So hidden, they have in belief alone
 Their being ; on which credence, hope sublime
 Is built : and, therefore substance, it intends.
 And inasmuch as we must needs infer
 From such belief. our reas'ning, all respect
 To other view excluded ; hence of proof
 The intention is deriv'd." Forthwith I heard :
 " If thus, whate'er by learning men attain,
 Were understood ; the sophist would want room
 To exercise his wit." So breath'd the flame

Of love ; then added : “ Current^h is the coin
 Thou utter’st, both in weight and in alloy.
 But tell me, if thou hast it in thy purse.”

“ Even so glittering and so round,” said I,
 “ I not a whit misdoubt of it’s assay.”

Next issuedⁱ from the deep-imbosom’d splen-dour :

“ Say, whence the costly jewel, on the which Is founded every virtue, came to thee.”

“ The flood,” I answer’d, “ from the Spirit of God

Rain’d down upon the ancient bond and new,^j—
 Here is the reas’ning, that convinceth me
 So feelingly, each argument beside Seems blunt, and forceless, in comparison.”
 Then heard I : “ Wherefore holdest thou that each,
 The elder proposition and the new,
 Which so persuade thee, are the voice of heav’n ? ”

“ The works, that follow’d, evidence their truth ; ”

I answer’d : “ Nature did not make for these
 The iron hot, or on her anvil mould them.”

“ Who voucheth to thee of the works themselves, ”

Was the reply, “ that they in very deed
 Are that they purport ? None hath sworn so to thee.”

“ That all the world,”^k said I, “ should have been turn’d
 To Christian, and no miracle been wrought,
 Would in itself be such a miracle,
 The rest were not an hundredth part so great.

E'en thou wentst forth in poverty and hunger
 To set the goodly plant, that, from the vine
 It once was, now is grown unsightly bramble."

That ended, through the high celestial court
 Resounded all the spheres, "Praise we one God!"
 In song of most unearthly melody.
 And when that Worthy¹ thus, from branch to branch,
 Examining, had led me, that we now
 Approach'd the topmost bough; he straight resum'd:
 "The grace, that holds sweet dalliance with thy soul,
 So far discreetly hath thy lips unclos'd;
 That, whatsoe'er has past them, I commend.
 Behoves thee to express, what thou believ'st,
 The next; and, whereon, thy belief hath grown."

"O saintly sire and spirit!" I began,
 "Who seest that, which thou didst so believe,
 As to outstrip^m feet younger than thine own,
 Toward the sepulchre; thy will is here,
 That I the tenour of my creed unfold;
 And thou, the cause of it, hast likewise ask'd.
 And I reply: I in one God believe;
 One sole eternal Godhead, of whose love
 All heav'n is mov'd, himself unmov'd the while.
 Nor demonstration physical alone,
 Or more intelligential and abstruse,
 Persuades me to this faith: but from that truth
 It cometh to me rather, which is shed
 Through Moses; the rapt Prophets; and the Psalms;
 The Gospel; and what ye yourselves did write,
 When ye were gifted of the Holy Ghost.
 In three eternal Persons I believe;

Essence threefold and one ; mysterious league
Of union absolute, which, many a time,
The word of gospel lore upon my mind
Imprints : and from this germ, this firstling spark,
The lively flame dilates ; and, like heav'n's star,
Doth glitter in me." As the master hears,
Well pleas'd, and then enfoldeth in his arms
The servant, who hath joyful tidings brought,
And having told the errand keeps his peace ;
Thus benediction uttering with song,
Soon as my peace I held, compass'd me thrice
The apostolic radiance, whose behest
Had op'd my lips : so well their answer pleas'd.

CANTO XXV.

Argument.

Saint James questions our Poet concerning Hope. Next Saint John appears ; and, on perceiving that Dante looks intently on him, informs him that he, Saint John, had left his body resolved into earth, upon the earth ; and that Christ and the Virgin alone had come with their bodies into heaven.

If e'er the sacred poem, that hath made
 Both heav'n and earth copartners in it's toil,
 And with lean abstinence, through many a year,
 Faded my brow, be destin'd to prevail
 Over the cruelty, which bars me forth
 Of the fair sheep-fold,^a where, a sleeping lamb,
 The wolves set on and fain had worried me ;
 With other voice, and fleece of other grain,
 I shall forthwith return ; and, standing up
 At my baptismal font, shall claim the wreath
 Due to the poet's temples : for I there
 First enter'd on the faith, which maketh souls
 Acceptable to God : and, for it's sake,^b
 Peter had then circled my forehead thus.

Next from the squadron, whence had issued forth
 The first fruit of Christ's vicars on the earth,
 Toward us mov'd a light, at view whereof

My Lady, full of gladness, spake to me :
 " Lo ! lo ! behold the peer of mickle might,
 That makes Galicia throng'd with visitants."^c

As when the ring-dove by his mate alights ;
 In circles, each about the other wheels,
 And, murmuring, cooes his fondness : thus saw I
 One, of the other^d great and glorious prince,
 With kindly greeting, hail'd ; extolling, both,
 Their heavenly banqueting : but when an end
 Was to their gratulation, silent, each,
 Before me sat they down, so burning bright,
 I could not look upon them. Smiling then,
 Beatrice spake : " O life in glory shrin'd !
 Who^e didst the largess^f of our kingly court
 Set down with faithful pen ; let now thy voice,
 Of hope the praises, in this height resound.
 For well thou know'st, who figur'st it as oft,^g
 As Jesus, to ye three, more brightly shone."

" Lift up thy head ; and be thou strong in trust :
 For that, which hither from the mortal world
 Arriveth, must be ripen'd in our beam."

Such cheering accents from the second flame^h
 Assur'd me ; and mine eyes I lifted upⁱ
 Unto the mountains, that had bow'd them late
 With over-heavy burden. " Sith our Liege
 Wills of his grace, that thou, or e'er thy death,
 In the most secret council with his lords
 Shouldst be confronted, so that having view'd
 The glories of our court, thou mayst therewith
 Thyself, and all who hear, invigorate
 With hope, that leads to blissful end ; declare,

What is that hope ? how it doth flourish in thee ?
 And whence thou hadst it ? ” Thus, proceeding still,
 The second light : and she, whose gentle love
 My soaring pennons in that lofty flight
 Escorted, thus preventing me, rejoin’d :
 “ Among her sons, not one more full of hope,
 Hath the church militant : so ’t is of him
 Recorded in the sun, whose liberal orb
 Enlighteneth all our tribe : and ere his term
 Of warfare, hence permitted he is come,
 From Egypt to Jerusalem, ^j to see.
 The other points, both which^k thou hast inquir’d,
 Not for more knowledge, but that he may tell
 How dear thou holdst the virtue ; these to him
 Leave I : for he may answer thee with ease,
 And without boasting, so God give him grace.”

Like to the scholar, practis’d in his task,
 Who, willing to give proof of diligence,
 Seconds his teacher gladly ; “ Hope,”^l said I,
 “ Is of the joy to come a sure expectance,
 The’ effect of grace divine and merit preceding.
 This light, from many a star, visits my heart ;
 But flow’d to me, the first, from him who sang
 The songs of the Supreme ; himself supreme
 Among his tuneful brethren. ‘ Let all hope
 In thee,’ so spake his anthem,^m ‘ who have known Thy name ; ’ and, with my faith, who know not that ?
 From thee, the next, distilling from his spring,
 In thine epistle, fell on me the drops
 So plenteously, that I on others shower
 The influence of their dew.” Whileas I spake,

A lamping, as of quick and volley'd lightning,
 Within the bosom of that mighty sheenⁿ
 Play'd tremulous ; then forth these accents breath'd :
 “ Love for the virtue, which attended me
 E'en to the palm, and issuing from the field,
 Glows vigorous yet within me ; and inspires
 To ask of thee, whom also it delights,
 What promise thou from hope, in chief, dost win.”

“ Both scriptures, new and ancient,” I reply'd, “ Propose the mark (which even now I view)
 For souls belov'd of God. Isaias^o saith,
 ‘ That, in their own land, each one must be clad
 In twofold vesture ;’ and their proper land
 Is this delicious life. In terms more full,
 And clearer far, thy brother^p hath set forth
 This revelation to us, where he tells
 Of the white raiment destin'd to the saints.”
 And, as the words were ending, from above,
 “ They hope in thee !” first heard we cried : whereto
 Answer'd the carols all. Amidst them next,
 A light of so clear amplitude emerg'd,
 That winter's month^q were but a single day,
 Were such a crystal in the Cancer's sign.

Like as a virgin^r riseth up, and goes,
 And enters on the mazes of the dance ;
 Though gay, yet innocent of worse intent,
 Than to do fitting honour to the bride :
 So I beheld the new effulgence come
 Unto the other two, who in a ring
 Wheeld, as became their rapture. In the dance,
 And in the song, it mingled. And the dame

Held on them fix'd her looks ; e'en as the spouse,
 Silent, and moveless. " This^s is he, who lay
 Upon the bosom of our pelican :
 This he, into whose keeping, from the cross,
 The mighty charge was given." Thus she spake :
 Yet therefore nought the more remov'd her sight
 From marking them ; or ere her words began,
 Or when they clos'd. As he, who looks intent,
 And strives with searching ken, how he may see
 The sun in his eclipse, and, through desire
 Of seeing, loseth power of sight ; so I^t
 Peer'd on that last resplendence, while I heard :
 " Why dazzlest thou thine eyes in seeking that,
 Which here abides not ? Earth my body is,
 In earth ; and shall be, with the rest, so long,
 As till our number equal the decree
 Of the Most High. The two^u that have ascended,
 In this our blessed cloister, shine alone
 With the two garments. So report below."

As when, for ease of labour, or to shun
 Suspected peril, at a whistle's breath,
 The oars, erewhile dash'd frequent in the wave,
 All rest : the flamy circle at that voice
 So rested ; and the mingling sound was still,
 Which from the trinal band, soft-breathing, rose.
 I turn'd, but ah ! how trembled in my thought,
 When, looking at my side again to see
 Beatrice, I descried her not ; although,
 Not distant, on the happy coast she stood.

CANTO XXVI.

Argument.

Saint John examines our Poet touching Charity. Afterwards Adam tells when he was created, and placed in the terrestrial Paradise ; how long he remained in that state ; what was the occasion of his fall ; when he was admitted into heaven ; and what language he spake.

WITH dazzled eyes, whilst wond'ring I remain'd ;
 Forth of the beamy flame,^a which dazzled me,
 Issued a breath, that in attention mute Detain'd me ; and these words it spake : " 'T were well,
 That, long as till thy vision, on my form
 O'erspent, regain it's virtue, with discourse
 Thou compensate the brief delay. Say then,
 Beginning, to what point thy soul aspires :
 And meanwhile rest assur'd, that sight in thee
 Is but o'erpower'd a space, not wholly quench'd ;
 Since thy fair guide and lovely, in her look
 Hath potency, the like to that, which dwelt
 In Ananias' hand."^b I answering thus :
 " Be to mine eyes the remedy, or late
 Or early, at her pleasure ; for they were
 The gates, at which she enter'd, and did light

Her never-dying fire. My wishes here
 Are centred : in this palace is the weal,
 That Alpha and Omega is, to all
 The lessons love can read me." Yet again
 The voice, which had dispers'd my fear when daz'd
 With that excess, to converse urg'd, and spake :
 " Behoves thee sifst more narrowly thy terms ;
 And say, who level'd at this scope thy bow."

" Philosophy," said I, " hath arguments,
 And this place hath authority enough,
 To' imprint in me such love : for, of constraint,
 Good, inasmuch as we perceive the good,
 Kindles our love ; and in degree the more,
 As it comprises more of goodness in 't.
 The essence then, where such advantage is,
 That each good, found without it, is nought else
 But of his light the beam, must needs attract
 The soul of each one, loving, who the truth
 Discerns, on which this proof is built. Such truth
 Learn I from him,^c who shows me the first love
 Of all intelligential substances
 Eternal : from his voice I learn, whose word
 Is truth ; that of himself to Moses saith,
 ' I will make^d all my good before thee pass : '
 Lastly, from thee I learn, who chief proclaim'st,
 E'en at the outset^e of thy heralding,
 In mortal ears the mystery of heav'n."

" Through human wisdom, and the' authority
 Therewith agreeing," heard I answer'd, " keep
 The choicest of thy love for God. But say,
 If thou yet other cords within thee feel'st,

That draw thee tow'rs him ; so that thou report
 How many are the fangs, with which this love
 Is grappled to thy soul." I did not miss,
 To what intent the eagle of our Lord^f
 Had pointed his demand ; yea, noted well ,
 The' avowal which he led to ; and resum'd :
 " All grappling bonds, that knit the heart to God,
 Confederate to make fast our charity.
 The being of the world ; and mine own being ;
 The death which He endur'd, that I should live ;
 And that, which all the faithful hope, as I do ;
 To the forementioned lively knowledge join'd ;
 Have from the sea of ill love sav'd my bark,
 And on the coast secur'd it of the right.
 As for the leaves,^g that in the garden bloom,
 My love for them is great, as is the good Dealt by the' eternal hand, that tends them all."

I ended : and therewith a song most sweet
 Rang through the spheres ; and " Holy, holy, holy,"
 Accordant with the rest, my lady sang.
 And as a sleep is broken and dispers'd
 Through sharp encounter of the nimble light,
 With the eye's spirit running forth to meet
 The ray, from membrane on to membrane urg'd ;
 And the upstartled wight loathes that he sees ;
 So, at his sudden waking, he misdeems
 Of all around him, till assurance waits
 On better judgment : thus the saintly dame
 Drove from before mine eyes the motes away,
 With the resplendence of her own, that cast

Their brightness downward, thousand miles below,
 Whence I my vision, clearer than before,
 Recover'd ; and well nigh astounded, ask'd
 Of a fourth light, that now with us I saw. .

And Beatrice : “ The first living soul,^h
 That ever the first virtue fram'd, admires
 Within these rays his Maker.” Like the leaf,
 That bows it's lithe top till the blast is blown ;
 By it's own virtue rear'd, then stands aloof :
 So I, the whilst she said, awe-stricken bow'd.
 Then eagerness to speak embolden'd me ;
 And I began : “ O fruit ! that wast alone
 Mature, when first engender'd ; ancient father !
 That doubly seest in every wedded bride
 Thy daughter, by affinity and blood ;
 Devoutly as I may, I pray thee hold
 Converse with me : my will thou seest : and I,
 More speedily to hear thee, tell it not.”

It chanceth oft some animal bewrays,
 Through the sleek cov'ringⁱ of his furry coat,
 The fondness, that stirs in him, and conforms
 His outside seeming to the cheer within :
 And in like guise was Adam's spirit mov'd
 To joyous mood, that through the cov'ring shone,
 Transparent, when to pleasure me it spake :
 “ No need thy will be told, which I untold
 Better discern, than thou whatever thing
 Thou holdst most certain : for that will I see
 In Him, who is truth's mirror ; and Himself,
 Parhelion^j unto all things, and nought else,

To Him. This wouldest thou hear : how long since,
God

Plac'd me in that high garden, from whose bounds
She led me up this ladder, steep and long ;
What space endur'd my season of delight ; .
Whence truly sprang the wrath that banish'd me ;
And what the language, which I spake and fram'd.
Not that I tasted^k of the tree, my son,
Was in itself the cause of that exile,
But only my transgressing of the mark
Assign'd me. There, whence^l at thy lady's hest
The Mantuan mov'd him, still was I debarr'd
This council, till the sun had made complete,
Four thousand and three hundred rounds and twice,
His annual journey ; and, through every light
In his broad pathway, saw I him return,
Thousand save sev'nty times, the whilst I dwelt
Upon the earth. 'The language^m I did use
Was worn away, or ever Nimrod's race
Their unaccomplishable work began.
For nought,ⁿ that man inclines to, c'er was lasting ;
Left by his reason free, and variable
As is the sky that sways him. 'That he speaks,
Is nature's prompting : whether thus, or thus,
She leaves to you, as ye do most affect it.
Ere I descended into hell's abyss,
Eli^o was the name on earth of the Chief Good,
Whose joy enfolds me : Eli then 't was call'd.
And so beseemeth : for, in mortals, use^p
Is as the leaf upon the bough ; that goes,

And other comes instead. Upon the mount
Most high above the waters, all my life,^q
Both innocent and guilty, did but reach
From the first hour, to that which cometh next,
(As the sun changes quarter) to the sixth."

CANTO XXVII.

Argument.

Saint Peter bitterly rebukes the covetousness of his successors in the apostolice see, while all the heavenly host sympathize in his indignation: they then vanish upwards. Beatrice bids Dante again cast his view below. Afterwards they are borne into the ninth heaven, of which she shows him the nature and properties; blaming the perverseness of man, who places his will on low and perishable things.

THEN “Glory to the Father, to the Son,
And to the Holy Spirit,” rang aloud
Throughout all Paradise ; that with the song
My spirit reel’d, so passing sweet the strain.
And what I saw was equal extacy :
One universal smile^a it seem’d of all things ;
Joy past compare ; gladness unutterable ;
Imperishable life of peace and love ;
Exhaustless riches, and unmeasur’d bliss.

Before mine eyes stood the four torches^b lit :
And that^c which first had come, began to wax
In brightness ; and, in semblance, such became,
As Jove might be, if he and Mars were birds,
And interchang’d their plumes. Silence ensued,
Through the blest quire ; by Him, who here appoints

Vicissitude of ministry, enjoin'd ;
 When thus I heard : “ Wonder not, if my hue
 Be chang'd ; for, while I speak, these shalt thou see
 All in like manner change with me. My place
 He^d who usurps on earth, (my place, ay, mine,
 Which in the presence of the Son of God . . .
 Is void) the same hath made my cemetery
 A common sewer of puddle and of blood :
 The more below his triumph, who from hence
 Malignant fell.” Such colour,^e as the sun,
 At eve or morning, paints an adverse cloud,
 Then saw I sprinkled over all the sky.
 And as the unblemish'd dame, who, in herself
 Secure of censure, yet at bare report
 Of other's failing, shrinks with maiden fear ;
 So Beatrice, in her semblance, chang'd :
 And such eclipse in heav'n, methinks, was seen,
 When the Most Holy suffer'd. Then the words
 Proceeded, with voice, alter'd from itself
 So clean, the semblance did not alter more.
 “ Not to this end was Christ's spouse with my blood,
 With that of Linus, and of Cletus,^f fed ;
 That she might serve for purchase of base gold :
 But for the purchase of this happy life,
 Did Sextus, Pius, and Callixtus bleed,
 And Urban ;^g they, whose doom was not without Much weeping seal'd. No purpose was of our's,^h
 That on the right hand of our successors,
 Part of the Christian people should be set,
 And part upon their left ; nor that the keys,
 Which were vouchsaf'd me, should for ensign serve

Unto the banners, that do levy war
On the baptiz'd ; nor I, for sigil-mark,
Set upon sold and lying privileges :
Which makes me oft to bicker and turn red.
In shepherd's clothing, greedy wolvesⁱ below
Range wide o'er all the pastures. Arm of God !
Why longer sleepst thou ? Cahorsines and Gascons^j
Prepare to quaff' our blood. O good beginning !
To what a vile conclusion must thou stoop.
But the high providence, which did defend,
Through Scipio, the world's empery for Rome,
Will not delay it's succour : and thou, son,^k
Who through thy mortal weight shalt yet again
Return below, open thy lips, nor hide
What is by me not hidden." As a flood
Of frozen vapours streams adown the air,
What time the she-goat^l with her skiey horn
Touches the sun ; so saw I there stream wide
The vapours, who with us had linger'd late,
And with glad triumph deck the' ethereal cope.
Onward my sight their semblances pursued ;
So far pursued, as till the space between
From it's reach sever'd them : whereat the guide
Celestial, marking me no more intent
On upward gazing, said, " Look down, and see What circuit thou hast compass'd." From the hour^m
When I before had cast my view beneath,
All the first region overpast I saw,
Which from the midmost to the bound'ry winds ;
That onward, thence, from Gades,ⁿ I beheld
The unwise passage of Laertes' son ;

And hitherward the shore,^o where thou, Europa,
 Mad'st thee a joyful burden ; and yet more
 Of this dim spot had seen, but that the sun,^p
 A constellation off and more, had ta'en
 His progress in the zodiac underneath.

Then by the spirit, that doth never leave
 It's amorous dalliance with my lady's looks,
 Back with redoubled ardour were mine eyes
 Led unto her : and from her radiant smiles,
 Whenas I turn'd me, pleasure so divine
 Did lighten on me, that whatever bait
 Or art or nature in the human flesh,
 Or in it's limn'd resemblance, can combine
 Through greedy eyes to take the soul withal,
 Were, to her beauty, nothing. It's boon influence
 From the fair nest of Leda^q rapt me forth,
 And wafted on into the swiftest heav'n.

What place for entrance Beatrice chose,
 I may not say ; so uniform was all,
 Liveliest and loftiest. . She my secret wish
 Divin'd ; and, with such gladness, that God's love Seem'd from her visage shining, thus began :
 "Here is the goal, whence motion on his race
 Starts : motionless the centre, and the rest
 All mov'd around. Except the soul divine,
 Place in this heav'n is none ; the soul divine,
 Wherein the love, which ruleth o'er it's orb,
 Is kindled, and the virtue, that it sheds :
 One circle, light and love, enclasping it,
 As this doth clasp the others ; and to Him,
 Who draws the bound, it's limit only known.

Measur'd itself by none, it doth divide
Motion to all, counted unto them forth,
As by the fifth or half ye count forth ten.
The vase, wherein time's roots^r are plung'd, thou seest :

Look elsewhere for the leaves. O mortal lust !
That canst not lift thy head above the waves
Which whelm and sink thee down. The will in man
Bears goodly blossoms ; but it's ruddy promise
Is, by the dripping of perpetual rain,
Made mere abortion : faith and innocence
Are met with but in babes ; each taking leave,
Ere cheeks with down are sprinkled : he, that fasts
While yet a stammerer, with his tongue let loose
Gluts every food alike in every moon :
One, yet a babbler, loves and listens to
His mother ; but no sooner hath free use
Of speech, than he doth wish her in her grave.
So suddenly doth the fair child of him^s
Whose welcome is the morn and eve his parting,
To negro blackness change her virgin white.

“Thou, to abate thy wonder, note, that none^t
Bears rule in earth ; and it's frail family
Are therefore wand'lers. Yet before the date,^u
When, through the hundredth in his reck'ning dropt,
Pale January must be shov'd aside
From winter's calendar, these heav'nly spheres
Shall roar so loud, that fortune shall be fain^v
To turn the poop, where she hath now the prow ;
So that the fleet run onward : and true fruit,
Expected long, shall crown at last the bloom.”

CANTO XXVIII.

Argument.

Still in the ninth heaven, our Poet is permitted to behold the divine essence ; and then sees, in three hierarchies, the nine choirs of angels. Beatrice clears some difficulties which occur to him on this occasion.

So she, who doth imparadise my soul,
Had drawn the veil from off our present life,
And bar'd the truth of poor mortality :
When lo ! as one who, in a mirror, spies
The shining of a flambeau at his back,
Lit sudden ere he deem of it's approach,
And turneth to resolve him, if the glass
Have told him true, and sees the record faithful
As note is to it's metre ; even thus,
I well remember, did befall to me,
Looking upon the beauteous eyes, whence love
Had made the leash to take me. As I turn'd ;
And that, which none, who in that volume^a looks,
Can miss of, in itself apparent, struck
My view ; a point I saw, that darted light
So sharp, no lid, unclosing, may bear up Against it's keenness. The least star we ken
From hence, had seem'd a moon ; set by it's side,

As star by side of star. And so far off,
Perchance, as is the halo from the light
Which paints it, when most dense the vapour spreads ;
There wheel'd about the point a circle' of fire,
More rapid than the motion which surrounds,
Speediest, the world. Another this enring'd ;
And that a third ; the third a fourth, and that
A fifth encompass'd ; which a sixth next bound ;
And over this, a seventh, following, reach'd
Circumference so ample, that it's bow,
Within the span of Juno's messenger,
Had scarce been held entire. Beyond the sev'nth,
Ensued yet other two. And every one,
As more in number distant from the first,
Was tardier in motion : and that glow'd
With flame most pure, that to the sparkle' of truth
Was nearest ; as partaking most, methinks,
Of it's reality. The guide belov'd
Saw me in anxious thought suspense, and spake :
"Heav'n, and all nature, hangs upon that point.^b
The circle thereto most conjoin'd observe ;
And know, that by intenser love it's course Is, to this swiftness, wing'd." To whom I thus :
"It were enough ; nor should I further seek,
Had I but witness'd order, in the world
Appointed, such as in these wheels is seen.
But if the sensible world such diff'rence is,^c
That in each round shows more divinity,
As each is wider from the centre. Hence,
If in this wondrous and angelic temple,
That hath, for confine, only light and love,

My wish may have completion, I must know,
 Wherefore such disagreement is between
 The' exemplar and it's copy : for myself,
 Contemplating, I fail to pierce the cause."

"It is no marvel, if thy fingers foil'd
 Do leave the knot untied : so hard 't is grown For want of tenting." Thus she said : "But take,"
 She added, "if thou wish thy cure, my words,
 And entertain them subtly. Every orb,
 Corporeal, doth proportion it's extent
 Unto the virtue through it's parts diffus'd.
 The greater blessedness preserves the more.
 The greater is the body (if all parts Share equally) the more is to preserve.
 Therefore the circle, whose swift course enwheels
 The universal frame, answers to that
 Which is supreme in knowledge and in love.
 Thus by the virtue, not the seeming breadth
 Of substance, measuring, thou shalt see the heav'ns,
 Each to the' intelligence that ruleth it,
 Greater to more, and smaller unto less,
 Suited in strict and wondrous harmony."

As when the north^d blows from his milder cheek
 A blast, that scours the sky, forthwith our air,
 Clear'd of the rack that hung on it before,
 Glitters ; and, with his beauties all unveil'd,
 The firmament looks forth serene, and smiles :
 Such was my cheer, when Beatrice drove
 With clear reply the shadows back, and truth
 Was manifested, as a star in heaven.
 And when the words were ended, not unlike

To iron in the furnace, every cirque,
Ebullient, shot forth scintillating fires :
And every sparkle shivering to new blaze,
In number^e did outmillion the account
Reduplicate upon the chequer'd board.
Then heard I echoing on, from choir to choir,
“ Hosanna,” to the fixed point, that holds,
And shall for ever hold them to their place,
From everlasting, irremovable.

Musing awhile I stood : and she, who saw
My inward meditations, thus began :
“ In the first circles, they, whom thou beheldst,
Are seraphim and cherubim. Thus swift
Follow their hoops, in likeness to the point,
Near as they can, approaching ; and they can
The more, the loftier their vision. Those,
That round them fleet, gazing the Godhead next,
Are thrones ; in whom the first trine ends. And all
Are blessed, even as their sight descends
Deeper into the truth, wherein rest is
For every mind. Thus happiness hath root
In seeing, not in loving, which of sight
Is aftergrowth. And of the seeing such
The meed, as unto each, in due degree,
Grace and good-will their measure have assign'd.
The other trine, that with still opening buds
In this eternal springtide blossom fair,
Fearless of bruising from the nightly ram,^f
Breathe up in warbled melodies threefold
Hosannas, blending ever ; from the thre,
Transmitted, hierarchy of gods, for aye

Rejoicing ; dominations^g first ; next them,
Virtues ; and powers the third ; the next to whom
Are princedoms and archangels, with glad round
To tread their festal ring ; and last, the band
Angelical, disporting in their sphere.
All, as they circle in their orders, look
Aloft ; and, downward, with such sway prevail,
That all with mutual impulse tend to God.
These once a mortal view beheld. Desire,
In Dionysius,^h so intensely wrought,
That he, as I have done, rang'd them ; and nam'd
Their orders, marshal'd in his thought. From him,
Dissentient, one refus'd his sacred read.
But soon as in this heav'n his doubting eyes
Were open'd, Gregoryⁱ at his error smil'd.
Nor marvel, that a denizen of earth
Should scan such secret truth ; for he had learnt^j
Both this and much beside of these our orbs,
From an eye witness to heav'n's mysteries."

CANTO XXIX.

Argument.

Beatrice beholds, in the mirror of divine truth, some doubts which had entered the mind of Dante. These she resolves ; and then digresses into a vehement reprehension of certain theologians and preachers in those days, whose ignorance or avarice induced them to substitute their own inventions for the pure word of the Gospel.

No longer,^a than what time Latona's twins
Cover'd of Libra and the fleecy star,
Together both, girding the' horizon hang ;
In even balance, from the zenith pois'd ;
Till from that verge, each, changing hemisphere,
Part the nice level ; e'en so brief a space
Did Beatrice's silence hold. A smile
Sat painted on her cheek ; and her fix'd gaze
Bent on the point, at which my vision fail'd :
When thus, her words resuming, she began :
“ I speak, nor what thou would'st inquire, demand ;
For I have mark'd it, where all time and place
Are present. Not for increase to himself
Of good, which may not be increas'd, but forth
To manifest his glory by it's beams ;
Inhabiting his own eternity,
Beyond time's limit or what bound soe'er

To circumscribe his being ; as he will'd,
Into new natures, like unto himself,
Eternal Love unfolded : nor before,
As if in dull inaction, torpid, lay.
For, not in process of before or aft,^b
Upon these waters mov'd the Spirit of God.
Simple and mix'd, both form and substance,^c forth
To perfect being started, like three darts
Shot from a bow three-corded. And as ray
In crystal, glass, and amber, shines entire,
E'en at the moment of it's issuing ; thus Did, from the' eternal Sovran, beam entire
His threefold operation,^d at one act
Produc'd coeval. Yet, in order, each
Created his due station knew : those highest,
Who pure intelligence were made ; mere power,
The lowest ; in the midst, bound with strict league,
Intelligence and power, unsever'd bond.
Long tract of ages by the angels past,
Ere the creating of another world,
Describ'd on Jerome's pages,^e thou hast seen.
But that what I disclose to thee is true,
Those penmen,^f whom the Holy Spirit mov'd,
In many a passage of their sacred book,
Attest ; as thou by diligent search shalt find :
And reason,^g in some sort, discerns the same,
Who scarce would grant the heav'nly ministers,
Of their perfection void, so long a space.
Thus when and where these spirits of love were made,
Thou know'st, and how : and, knowing, hast allay'd
Thy thirst, which from the triple question^h rose.

Ere one had reckon'd twenty, e'en so soon,
Part of the angels fell : and, in their fall,
Confusion to your elements ensued.
The others kept their station : and this task,
Whereon thou look'st, began, with such delight,
That they surcease not ever, day nor night,
Their cireling. Of that fatal lapse the cause
Was the curst pride of him, whom thou hast seen Pentⁱ with the world's incumbrance. Those, whom here

Thou seest, were lowly to confess themselves
Of his free bounty, who had made them apt
For ministries so high : therefore their views
Were, by enlight'ning grace and their own merit,
Exalted ; so that in their will confirm'd
They stand, nor fear to fall. For do not doubt,
But to receive the grace, which heav'n vouchsafes,
Is meritorious, even as the soul
With prompt affection welcometh the guest.
Now, without further help, if with good heed
My words thy mind have treasur'd, thou henceforth
This consistory round about mayst scan,
And gaze thy fill. But, since thou hast on earth
Heard vain disputers, reasoners in the schools,
Canvass the' angelic nature, and dispute
It's powers of apprehension, memory, choice ;
Therefore, 't is well thou take from me the truth,
Pure and without disguise ; which they below,
Equivocating, darken and perplex.

“ Know thou, that, from the first, these substances,

Rejoicing in the countenance of God,
 Have held unceasingly their view, intent
 Upon the glorious vision, from the which Nought absent is nor hid : where then no change
 Of newness, with succession, interrupts,
 Remembrance, there, needs none to gather up
 Divided thought and images remote.

“ So that men, thus at variance with the truth,
 Dream, though their eyes be open ; reckless some
 Of error ; others well aware they err,
 To whom more guilt and shame are justly due.
 Each the known track of sage philosophy
 Deserts, and has a bye-way of his own :
 So much the restless eagerness to shine,
 And love of singularity, prevail.
 Yet this, offensive as it is, provokes
 Heav’n’s anger less, than when the book of God
 Is forc’d to yield to man’s authority,
 Or from it’s straightness warp’d : no reck’ning made
 What blood the sowing of it in the world
 Has cost ; what favour for himself he wins,
 Who meekly clings to it. The aim of all
 Is how to shine : e’en they, whose office is
 To preach the gospel, let the gospel sleep,
 And pass their own inventions off instead.
 One tells, how at Christ’s suffering the wan moon
 Bent back her steps, and shadow’d o’er the sun
 With intervening disk, as she withdrew :
 Another, how the light shrouded itself
 Within it’s tabernacle, and left dark
 The Spaniard, and the Indian, with the Jew.

Such fables Florence in her pulpit hears,
Bandied about more frequent, than the names
Of Bindi and of Lapi^k in her streets.
The sheep,^l meanwhile, poor witless ones, return
From pasture, fed with wind : and what avails,
For their excuse, they do not see their harm ?
Christ said not to his first conventicle,
' Go forth and preach impostures to the world,'
But gave them truth^m to build on ; and the sound
Was mighty on their lips : nor needed they,
Beside the gospel, other spear or shield,
To aid them in their warfare for the faith.
The preacherⁿ now provides himself with store
Of jests and gibes ; and, so there be no lack •
Of laughter, while he vents them, his big cowl
Distends, and he has won the meed he sought :
Could but the vulgar catch a glimpse the while
Of that dark bird which nestles in his hood,
They scarce would wait to hear the blessing said,
Which now the dotards hold in such esteem,
That every counterfeit, who spreads abroad
The hands of holy promise, finds a throng
Of credulous fools beneath. Saint Anthony
Fattens with this his swine,^o and others worse
Than swine, who diet at his lazy board,
Paying with unstamp'd metal^p for their fare.

“•But (for we far have wander'd) let us seek
The forward path again ; so as the way
Be shorten'd with the time. No mortal tongue,
Nor thought of man, hath ever reach'd so far,
That of these natures he might count the tribes.

What Daniel^q of their thousands hath reveal'd,
With finite number, infinite conceals.
The fountain, at whose source these drink their beams,
With light supplies them in as many modes,
As there are splendours that it shines on : each
According to the virtue it conceives,
Differing in love and sweet affection.
Look then how lofty and how huge in breadth
The' eternal might, which, broken and dispers'd
Over such countless mirrors, yet remains
Whole in itself and one, as at the first."

CANTO XXX.

Argument.

Dante is taken up with Beatrice into the empyrean ; and there having his sight strengthened by her aid, and by the virtue derived from looking on a river of light, he sees the triumph of the angels and of the souls of the blessed.

Noon's fervid hour perchance six thousand miles^a
From hence is distant ; and the shadowy cone
Almost to level on our earth declines ;
When, from the midmost of this blue abyss,
By turns some star is to our vision lost.
And straightway as the handmaid of the sun
Puts forth her radiant brow, all, light by light,
Fade ; and the spangled firmament shuts in,
E'en to the loveliest of the glittering throng.
Thus vanish'd gradually from my sight
The triumph, which plays ever round the point,
That overcame me, seeming (for it did)
Engirt^b by that it girdeth. Wherefore love,
With loss of other object, forc'd me bend
Mine eyes on Beatrice once again.
If all, that hitherto is told of her,
Were in one praise concluded, 't were too weak

To furnish out this turn.^c Mine eyes did look
On beauty, such, as I believe in sooth,
Not merely to exceed our human ; but,
That save it's Maker, none can to the full Enjoy it. At this point o'erpower'd I fail ;
Unequal to my theme ; as never bard
Of buskin or of sock hath fail'd before.
For as the sun doth to the feeblest sight,
E'en so remembrance of that witching smile
Hath dispossess my spirit of itself.
Not from that day, when on this earth I first Beheld her charms, up to that view of them,
Have I with song applausive ever ceas'd
To follow ; but now follow them no more ;
My course here bounded, as each artist's is,
When it doth touch the limit of his skill.

She, (such as I bequeath her to the bruit
Of louder trump than mine, which hasteneth on,
Urging it's arduous matter to the close,)
Her words resum'd, in gesture and in voice
Resembling one accustom'd to command :
“Forth^d from the last corporeal are we come
Into the heav'n, that is unbodied light ;
Light intellectual, replete with love ;
Love of true happiness, replete with joy ;
Joy, that transcends all sweetness of delight.
Here shalt thou look on either mighty host^e
Of Paradise ; and one in that array,
Which in the final judgment thou shalt see.”

As when the lightning, in a sudden spleen
Unfolded, dashes from the blinding eyes

The visive spirits, dazzled and bedimm'd ;
So, round about me, fulminating streams
Of living radiance play'd, and left me swath'd
And veil'd in dense impenetrable blaze.
Such weal is in the love, that stills this heav'n ;
For it's own flame^f the torch thus fitting ever.

No sooner to my list'ning ear had come
The brief assurance, than I understood
New virtue into me infus'd, and sight
Kindled afresh, with vigour to sustain
Excess of light however pure. I look'd ;
And, in the likeness of a river, saw
Light flowing,^g from whose amber-seeming waves Flash'd up effulgence, as they glided on
'Twixt banks, on either side, painted with spring,
Incredible how fair : and, from the tide,
There ever and anon, outstarting, flew Sparkles instinct with life ; and in the flow'rs
Did set them, like to rubies chas'd in gold :
Then, as if drunk with odours, plung'd again
Into the wondrous flood ; from which, as one
Re-enter'd, still another rose. “ The thirst
Of knowledge high, whereby thou art inflam'd,
To search the meaning of what here thou seest,
The more it warms thee, pleases me the more.
But first behoves thee of this water drink,
Or ere that longing be allay'd.” So spake
The day-star of mine eyes : then thus subjoin'd :
“ This stream ; and these, forth-issuing from it's gulf,
And diving back, a living topaz each ;
With all this laughter on it's bloomy shores ;

Are but a preface, shadowy of the truth^h
 They emblem: not that, in themselves, the things
 Are crude; but on thy part is the defect,
 For that thy views not yet aspire so high."

Never did babe, that had outslept his wont,
 Rush, with such eager straining, to the milk,
 As I toward the water; bending me,
 To make the better mirrors of mine eyes
 In the refining wave: and as the eaves
 Of mine eye-lidsⁱ did drink of it, forthwith
 Seem'd it unto me turn'd from length to round.
 Then as a troop of maskers, when they put
 Their vizors off, look other than before;
 The counterfeited semblance thrown aside:
 So into greater jubilee were chang'd
 Those flowers and sparkles; and distinct I saw,
 Before me, either court^j of heav'n display'd.

O prime enlightener! thou who gav'st me strength
 On the high triumph of thy realm to gaze;
 Grant virtue now to utter what I kenn'd.

There is in heav'n a light, whose goodly shine
 Makes the Creator visible to all
 Created, that in seeing him alone
 Have peace; and in a circle spreads so far,
 That the circumf'rence were too loose a zone
 To girdle in the sun. All is one beam,
 Reflected from the summit of the first,
 That moves, which being hence and vigour takes.
 And as some cliff,^k that from the bottom eyes
 It's image mirror'd in the crystal flood,

As if to' admire it's brave appareling
Of verdure and of flowers ; so, round about,
Eying the light, on more than million thrones,
Stood, eminent, whatever from our earth
Has to the skies return'd. How wide the leaves,
Extended to their utmost, of this rose,
Whose lowest step embosoms such a space
Of ample radiance ! Yet, nor amplitude
Nor height impeded, but my view with ease¹
Took in the full dimensions of that joy.
Near or remote, what there avails, where God
Immediate rules, and Nature, awed, suspends
Her sway ? Into the yellow of the rose
Perennial, which, in bright expansiveness,
Lays forth it's gradual blooming, redolent
Of praises to the never-wint'ring sun,
As one, who fain would speak yet holds his peace,
Beatrice led me ; and, "Behold," she said,
"This fair assemblage ; stoles of snowy white,
How numberless. The city, where we dwell,
Behold how vast ; and these our seats so throng'd,
Few now are wanting here. In that proud stall,"^m
On which, the crown, already o'er it's state
Suspended, holds thine eyes—or e'er thyself
Mayst at the wedding sup,—shall rest the soul
Of the great Harry,ⁿ he who, by the world
Augustus hail'd, to Italy must come,
Before her day be ripe. But ye are sick,
And in your tetchy wantonness as blind,
As is the bantling, that of hunger dies,
And drives away the nurse. Nor may it be,

That he,^o who in the sacred forum sways,
Openly or in secret, shall with him
Accordant walk: whom God will not endure
I' the' holy office long ; but thrust him down
To Simon Magus, where Alagna's priest^p
Will sink beneath him : such will be his meed."

CANTO XXXI.

Argument.

The Poet expatiates further on the glorious vision described in the last Canto. On looking round for Beatrice, he finds that she has left him, and that an old man is at his side. This proves to be Saint Bernard, who shows him that Beatrice has returned to her throne, and then points out to him the blessedness of the Virgin Mother.

IN fashion, as a snow-white rose, lay then
Before my view the saintly multitude^a,
Which in his own blood Christ espous'd. Meanwhile,
That other host,^b that soar aloft to gaze
And celebrate his glory, whom they love,
Hover'd around ; and, like a troop of bees,^c
Amid the vernal sweets alighting now,
Now, clustering, where their fragrant labour glows,
Flew downward to the mighty flow'r, or rose
From the redundant petals, streaming back
Unto the stedfast dwelling of their joy.
Faces had they of flame, and wings of gold ;^d
The rest was whiter than the driven snow ;
And, as they flitted down into the flower,
From range to range, fanning their plumy loins,
Whisper'd the peace and ardour, which they won
From that soft winnowing. Shadow none, the vast

Interposition of such numerous flight
 Cast, from above, upon the flower, or view
 Obstructed aught. For, through the universe,
 Wherever merited, celestial light
 Glides freely, and no obstacle prevents.

All there, who reign in safety and in bliss,
 Ages long past or new, on one sole mark
 Their love and vision fix'd. O trinal beam
 Of individual star, that charmst them thus!
 Vouchsafe one glance to gild our storm below.^e

If the grim brood,^f from Arctic shores that roam'd,

(Where Helice^g for ever, as she wheels, Sparkles a mother's fondness on her son,) Stood in mute wonder 'mid the works of Rome,
 When to their view the Lateran arose^h
 In greatness more than earthly; I, who then
 From human to divine had past, from time
 Unto eternity, and out of Florence
 To justice and to truth, how might I choose
 But marvel too? 'Twixt gladness and amaze,
 In sooth no will had I to utter aught,
 Or hear. And, as a pilgrim, when he rests
 Within the temple of his vow, looks round
 In breathless awe, and hopes some time to tell
 Of all it's goodly state; e'en so mine eyes
 Cours'd up and down along the living light,
 Now low, and now aloft, and now around,
 Visiting every step. Looks I beheld,
 Where charity in soft persuasion sat;
 Smiles from within, and radiance from above;

And, in each gesture, grace and honour high.

So rov'd my ken, and in it's general form
 All Paradise survey'd: when round I turn'd
 With purpose of my lady to inquire
 Once more of things, that held my thought suspense,
 But answer found from other than I ween'd;
 For, Beatrice when I thought to see,
 I saw instead a senior, at my side,
 Rob'd, as the rest, in glory. Joy benign
 Glow'd in his eye, and o'er his cheek diffus'd,
 With gestures such as spake a father's love.
 And, "Whither is she vanish'd?" straight I ask'd.

"By Beatrice summon'd," he replied,
 "I come to aid thy wish. Looking aloft
 To the third circle from the highest, there
 Behold her on the throne, wherein her merit
 Hath plac'd her." Answering not, mine eyes I rais'd,
 And saw her, where aloof she sat, her brow
 A wreath reflecting of eternal beams.
 Not from the centre of the sea so far
 Unto the region of the highest thunder,
 As was my ken from her's; and yet the form
 Came through that medium down, unmix'd and pure.

"O Lady! thou in whom my hopes have rest;
 Who, for my safety, hast not scorn'd, in hell
 To leave the traces of thy footsteps mark'd;
 For all mine eyes have seen, I, to thy power
 And goodness, virtue owe and grace. Of slave
 Thou hast to freedom brought me; and no means,
 For my deliverance apt, hast left untried.
 Thy liberal bounty still toward me keep:

That, when my spirit, which thou madest whole,
 Is loosen'd from this body, it may find Favour with thee." So I my suit preferr'd :
 And she, so distant, as appear'd, look'd down,
 And smil'd ; then tow'rds the' eternal fountain turn'd.

And thus the senior, holy and rever'd :
 "That thou at length mayst happily conclude Thy voyage (to which end I was dispatch'd,
 By supplication mov'd and holy love)
 Let thy upsoaring vision range, at large,
 This garden through : for so, by ray divine
 Kindled, thy ken a higher flight shall mount ;
 And from heaven's queen, whom fervent I adore,
 All gracious aid befriend us ; for that I Am her own faithful Bernard."ⁱ Like a wight,
 Who haply from Croatia wends to see
 Our Veronica ;^j and, the while 't is shown,
 Hangs over it with never-sated-gaze,
 And, all that he hath heard revolving, saith Unto himself in thought : "And didst thou look E'en thus, O Jesus, my true Lord and God ?
 And was this semblance thine ?" So gaz'd I then Adoring ; for the charity of him,^k
 Who musing, in this world that peace enjoy'd,
 Stood lively before me. "Child of grace!"
 Thus he began : "thou shalt not knowledge gain
 Of this glad being, if thine eyes are held
 Still in this depth below. But search around
 The circles, to the furthest, till thou spy
 Seated in state, the queen,^l that of this realm
 Is sovran." Straight mine eyes I rais'd ; and bright,

As, at the birth of morn, the eastern clime
Above the horizon, where the sun declines ;
So to mine eyes, that upward, as from vale
To mountain sped, at the extreme bound, a part
Excell'd in lustre all the front oppos'd.
And as the glow burns ruddiest o'er the wave,
That waits the ascending team, which Phaëton
Ill knew to guide, and on each part the light
Diminish'd fades, intensest in the midst ;
So burn'd the peaceful oriflamb,^m and slack'd
On every side the living flame decay'd.
And in that midst their sportive pennons wav'd
Thousands of angels ; in resplendence each Distinct, and quaint adornment. At their glee
And carol, smil'd the Lovely One of heav'n,
That joy was in the eyes of all the blest.

Had I a tongue in eloquence as rich,
As is the colouring in fancy's loom,
T were all too poor to utter the least part
Of that enchantment. When he saw mine eyes
Intent on her, that charm'd him ; Bernard gaz'd
With so exceeding fondness, as infus'd
Ardour into my breast, unfehl before.

CANTO XXXII.

Argument.

Saint Bernard shows him, on their several thrones, the other blessed souls, both of the old and new Testament; explains to him that their places are assigned them by grace, and not according to merit; and lastly, tells him that if he would obtain power to descry what remained of the vision, heavenly he must unite with him in supplication to Mary.

FREELY the sage, though wrapt in musings high,
Assum'd the teacher's part, and mild began :
" The wound, that Mary clos'd, she^a open'd first,
Who sits so beautiful at Mary's feet.
The third in order, underneath her, lo !
Rachel with Beatrice : Sarah next ;
Judith ; Rebecca ; and the gleaner-maid,
Meek ancestress^b of him, who sang the songs
Of sore repentance in his sorrowful mood.
All, as I name them, down from leaf to leaf,
Are, in gradation, throned on the rose.
And from the seventh step, successively,
Adown the breathing tresses of the flower,
Still doth the file of Hebrew dames proceed.
For these are a partition wall, whereby
The sacred stairs are sever'd, as the faith
In Christ divides them. On this part, where blooms

Each leaf in full maturity, are set
 Such as in Christ, or e'er he came, believ'd.
 On the' other, where an intersected space
 Yet shows the semicircle void, abide
 All they, who look'd to Christ already come.
 And as our Lady on her glorious stool,
 And they who on their stools beneath her sit,
 This way distinction make ; e'en so on his,
 The mighty Baptist that way marks the line,
 (He who endur'd the desart, and the pains
 Of martyrdom, and, for two years,^c of hell,
 Yet still continued holy) and beneath,
 Augustin ;^d Francis ;^e Benedict ;^f and the rest,
 Thus far from round to round. So heav'n's decree
 Forecasts, this garden equally to fill,
 With faith in either view, past or to come.
 Learn too, that downward from the step, which cleaves,
 Midway, the twain compartments, none there are
 Who place obtain for merit of their own,
 But have through others' merit been advanc'd,
 On set conditions ; spirits all releas'd,
 Ere for themselves they had the power to choose.
 And, if thou mark and listen to them well,
 Their childish looks and voice declare as much.
 "Here, silent as thou art, I know thy doubt ;
 And gladly will I loose the knot, wherein Thy subtil thoughts have bound thee. From this realm
 Excluded, chance no entrance here may find ;
 No more than hunger, thirst, or sorrow can.

A law immutable hath stablish'd all ;
Nor is there aught thou seest, that doth not fit,
Exactly, as the finger to the ring,
It is not, therefore, without cause, that these,
O'erspeedy comers to immortal life,
Are different in their shares of excellence.
Our Sovran Lord, that settleth this estate
In love and in delight so absolute,
That wish can dare no further, every soul,
Created in his joyous sight to dwell,
With grace, at pleasure, variously^g endows.
And for a proof the' effect may well suffice.
And 'tis moreover most expressly mark'd
In holy scripture,^h where the twins are said
'To have struggled in the womb. Therefore, as grace
Inweaves the coronet, so every brow
Weareth it's proper hue of orient light.
And merely in respect to his prime gift,
Not in reward of meritorious deed,
Hath each his several degree assign'd
In early times with their own innocence
More was not wanting, than the parents' faith,
To save them : those first ages past, behov'd
That circumcision in the males should imp
The flight of innocent wings : but since the day
Of grace hath come, without baptismal rites
In Christ accomplish'd, innocence herself
Must linger yet below. Now raise thy view
Unto the visage most resembling Christ :
For, in her splendour only, shalt thou win
The power to look on him." Forthwith I saw

Such floods of gladness on her visage shower'd,
 From holy spirits, winging that profound ;
 That, whatsoever I had yet beheld,
 Had not so much suspended me with wonder,
 Or shown me such similitude of God.
 And he, who had to her descended, once,
 On earth, now hail'd in heav'n ; and on pois'd wing,
 "Ave, Maria, Gratia Plena," sang :
 To whose sweet anthem all the blissful court,
 From all parts answ'ring, rang : that holier joy
 Brooded the deep serene. "Father rever'd !
 Who deign'st, for me, to quit the pleasant place,
 Wherein thou sittest, by eternal lot ;
 Say, who that angel is, that with such glee
 Beholds our queen, and so enamour'd glows
 Of her high beauty, that all fire he seems."

So I again resorted to the lore
 Of my wise teacher, he, whom Mary's charms
 Embellish'd, as the sun the morning star ;
 Who thus in answer spake : "In him are summ'd,
 What'er of buxomness and free delight
 May be in spirit, or in angel, met :
 And so beseems : for that he bare the palm Down unto Mary, when the son of God
 Vouchsaf'd to clothe him in terrestrial weeds.
 Now let thine eyes wait heedful on my words ;
 And note thou of this just and pious realm
 The chiefest nobles. Those, highest in bliss,
 The twain, on each hand next our empress thron'd,
 Are as it were two roots unto this rose :
 He to the left, the parent, whose rash taste

Proves bitter to his seed ; and, on the right,
 That ancient father of the holy church,
 Into whose keeping Christ did give the keys
 Of this sweet flow'r ; near whom behold the seer,
 That, ere he died, saw all the grievous times
 Of the fair bride, who with the lance and nails
 Was won. And, near unto the other, rests
 The leader, under whom, on manna, fed
 The' ungrateful nation, fickle and perverse.
 On the' other part, facing to Peter, lo !
 Where Anna sits, so well content to look
 On her lov'd daughter, that with moveless eye
 She chants the loud hosanna : while, oppos'd
 To the first father of your mortal kind,
 Is Lucia,ⁱ at whose hest thy lady sped,
 When on the edge of ruin clos'd thine eye.

“ But (for the vision hasteneth to an end)
 Here break we off, as the good workman doth,
 That shapes the cloak according to the cloth ;
 And to the primal love our ken shall rise ;
 That thou mayst penetrate the brightness, far
 As sight can bear thee. Yet, alas ! in sooth
 Beating thy pennons, thinking to advance, Thou backward fall'st. Grace then must first be gain'd ;
 Her grace, whose might can help thee. Thou in prayer
 Seek her : and, with affection, whilst I sue,
 Attend, and yield me all thy heart.” He said ;
 And thus the saintly orison began.

CANTO XXXIII.

Argument.

Saint Bernard supplicates the Virgin Mary that Dante may have grace given him to contemplate the brightness of the Divine Majesty, which is accordingly granted ; and Dante then himself prays to God for ability to show forth some part of the celestial glory in his writings. Lastly, he is admitted to a glimpse of the great mystery ; the Trinity, and the Union of Man with God.

“ O VIRGIN mother,^a daughter of thy Son !
Created beings all in lowliness
Surpassing, as in height above them all ;
Term by the’ eternal counsel pre-ordain’d ;
Ennobler of thy nature, so advanc’d
In thee, that it’s great Maker did not scorn,
To make himself his own creation ;^b
For in thy womb rekindling shone the love
Reveal’d, whose genial influence makes now
This flower to germin in eternal peace :
Here thou to us, of charity and love,
Art, as^c the noon-day torch ; and art, beneath,
To mortal men, of hope a living spring.
So mighty art thou, lady, and so great,
That he, who grace desireth, and comes not
To thee for aidance, fain would have desire^c

Fly without wings. Nor only him, who asks,
 Thy bounty succours ; but doth freely oft Forerun the asking. Whatsoe'er may be
 Of excellence in creature, pity mild,
 Relenting mercy, large munificence,
 Are all combin'd in thee. Here kneeleth one,
 Who of all spirits hath review'd the state,
 From the world's lowest gap unto this height.
 Suppliant to thee he kneels, imploring grace
 For virtue yet more high, to lift his ken Toward the bliss supreme. And I, who ne'er
 Coveted sight, more fondly, for myself,
 Than now for him, my prayers to thee prefer,
 (And pray they be not scant) that thou wouldest drive
 Each cloud of his mortality away ;
 Through thine own pray'rs ; that on the sovran joy
 Unveil'd, he gaze. This yet I pray thee, Queen,^d
 Who canst do what thou wilt ; that in him thou
 Wouldest, after all he hath beheld, preserve
 Affection sound, and human passions quell.
 Lo ! where, with Beatrice, many a saint Stretch their clasp'd hands, in furtherance of my suit."

The eyes, that heav'n with love and awe regards,
 Fix'd on the suitor, witness'd, how benign
 She looks on pious pray'rs : then fasten'd they
 On the everlasting light, wherein no eye
 Of creature, as may well be thought, so far
 Can travel inward. I, meanwhile, who drew Near to the limit, where all wishes end,
 The ardour of my wish (for so behov'd)
 Ended within me. Beck'ning smil'd the sage,

That I should 'look aloft : but, ere he bade,
Already of myself aloft I look'd ;
For visual strength, refining more and more,
Bare me into the ray authentical
Of sovran light. Thenceforward, what I saw,
Was not for words to speak, nor memory's self
To stand against such outrage on her skill.

As one, who from a dream awaken'd, straight,
All he hath seen forgets ; yet still retains Impression of the feeling in his dream ;
E'en such am I : for all the vision dies,
As 't were, away ; and yet the sense of sweet,
That sprang from it, still trickles in my heart.
Thus in the sun-thaw is the snow unseal'd ;
Thus in the winds on flitting leaves was lost
The Sybil's sentence.^e O eternal beam !
(Whose height what reach of mortal thought may soar ?)

Yield me again some little particle
Of what thou then appearedst ; give my tongue
Power, but to leave one sparkle of thy glory,
Unto the race to come, that shall not lose
Thy triumph wholly, if thou waken aught
Of memory in me, and endure to hear
The record sound in this unequal strain.

Such keenness^f from the living ray I met,
That, if mine eyes had turn'd away, methinks,
I had been lost ; but, so embolden'd, on
I pass'd, as I remember, till my view
Hover'd the brink of dread infinitude.

O grace, unenvying of thy boon ! that gav'st

Boldness to fix so earnestly my ken
 On the everlasting splendour, that I look'd,
 While sight was unconsum'd ; and, in that depth,
 Saw in one volume clasp'd of love, whate'er
 The universe unfolds ; all properties
 Of substance and of accident, beheld,
 Compound'd, yet one individual light
 The whole. And of such bond methinks I saw
 The universal form ; for that whene'er
 I do but speak of it, my soul dilates
 Beyond her proper self ; and, till I speak,
 One moment^s seems a longer lethargy,
 Than five-and-twenty ages had appear'd
 To that emprise, that first made Neptune wonder
 At Argo's shadow^h darkening on his flood.

With fixed heed, suspense and motionless,
 Wondring I gaz'd ; and admiration still
 Was kindled, as I gaz'd. It may not be,
 That one, who looks upon that light, can turn
 To other object, willingly, his view.
 For all the good, that will may covet, there
 Is summ'd ; and all, elsewhere defective found,
 Complete. My tongue shall utter now, no more
 E'en what remembrance keeps, than could the babe's,
 That yet is moisten'd at his mother's breast.
 Not that the semblance of the living light
 Was chang'd, (that ever as at first remain'd,)
 But that my vision quickening, in that sole
 Appearance, still new miracles descry'd,
 And toil'd me with the change. In that abyss
 Of radiance, clear and lofty, seem'd, methought,

Three orbs of triple hue, clipt in one bound :
And, from another, one reflected seem'd,
As rainbow is from rainbow : and the third
Seem'd fire, breath'd equally from both. O speech !
How feeble and how faint art thou, to give Conception birth. Yet this to what I saw
Is less than little. O eternal light !
Sole in thyself that dwell'st ; and of thyself
Sole understood, past, present, or to come ;
Thou smiledst,^j on that circling,^k which in thee
Seem'd as reflected splendour, while I mus'd ;
For I therein, methought, in it's own hue
Beheld our image painted : stedfastly
I therefore por'd upon the view. As one,
Who vers'd in geometric lore, would fain
Measure the circle ; and, though pondering long
And deeply, that beginning, which he needs,
Finds not : e'en such was I, intent to scan
The novel wonder, and trace out the form,
How to the circle fitted, and therein
How plac'd : but the flight was not for my wing ;
Had not a flash darted athwart my mind,
And, in the spleen, unfolded what it sought.

Here vigour fail'd the tow'ring fantasy :
But yet the will roll'd onward, like a wheel
In even motion, by the Love impell'd,
That moves the sun in heav'n and all the stars.

Our Poet, in his De Monarchia, has expressed the same thought more fully. "Sciendum," &c. lib. ii. p. 115. "We must know, that as art is found in a triple degree, in the mind that is of the artist, in the instrument, and in the matter formed by art, so we may contemplate nature also in a triple degree. For nature is in the mind of the first mover, who is God; then in heaven, as in an instrument, by means of which the similitude of the eternal goodness is unfolded in variable matter; and, as the artist being perfect, and the instrument in the best order, if there is any fault in the form of art, it is to be imputed only to the matter; so, since God reaches to the end of perfection, and his instrument, which is heaven, is not in any wise deficient of due perfection, (as appears from what we know by philosophy concerning heaven) it remaineth that whatever fault is in inferior things, is a fault of the matter worked on, and clean beside the intention of God and of heaven."

aa) This course.] Some beings, abusing the liberty given them by God, are repugnant to the order established by Him.

e) Cain.] Compare Hell, canto xx. 123, and Note.

f) By bodies dense or rare.] Lombardi observes, that the opinion respecting the spots in the moon, which Dante represents himself as here yielding to the arguments of Beatrice, is professed by our author in the Convito, so that we may conclude that work to have been composed before the Divina Commedia. "The shadow in the moon is nothing else but the rarity of its body, which hinders the rays of the sun from terminating and being reflected, as in other parts of it." p. 70.

g) Numberless lights.] The fixed stars, which differ both in bulk and splendor.

h) Save one.] "Except that principle of rarity and denseness which thou hast assigned." By "formal principles," principi formali, are meant "constituent or essential causes."

Milton, in imitation of this passage, introduces the angel arguing with Adam respecting the causes of the spots on the moon. But, as a late French translator of the Paradise well remarks, his reasoning is physical; that of Dante partly metaphysical and partly theologic.

Whence in her visage round those spots, unpurg'd
Vapours not yet into her substance turn'd.

Milton, P. L. b. v. 420.

i) Change the leaves.] Would, like leaves of parchment, be darker in some part than others.

j) Within the heaven.] According to our Poet's system, there are ten heavens. The heaven, "where peace divine inhabits," is the empyrean; the body within it, that "circles round," is the primum mobile; "the following heaven," that of the fixed stars; and "the other orbs," the seven lower heavens, are Saturn, Jupiter, Mars, the Sun, Venus, Mercury, and the Moon. Thus Milton, P. L. b. iii. 481.

They pass the planets sev'n, and pass the fix'd,

And that crystalline sphere whose balance weighs
The trepidation talk'd, and that first mov'd.

- k) By blessed movers.] By angels.

- c) Piccarda.] The sister of Corso Donati, and of Forese whom we have seen in the Purgatory, canto xxiii.
- d) What web it was.] "What vow of religious life it was that she had been hindered from completing, had been compelled to break."
- e) The Lady.] St. Clare, the foundress of the order called after her. She was born of opulent and noble parents at Assisi, in 1193, and died in 1253. See Biogr. Univ. t. i. p. 598, 8vo. Paris, 1813.
- f) God knows.] Rodolfo da Tossignano, Hist. Seraph. Relig. P. i. p. 138, as cited by Lombardi, relates the following legend of Piccarda.—"Her brother Corso, inflamed with rage against his virgin sister, having joined with him Farinata, an infamous assassin, and twelve other abandoned ruffians, entered the monastery by a ladder, and carried away his sister forcibly to his own house; and then tearing off her religious habit, compelled her to go in a secular garment to her nuptials. Before the spouse of Christ came together with her new husband, she knelt down before a crucifix and recommended her virginity to Christ. Soon after her whole body was smitten with leprosy, so as to strike grief and horror into the beholders; and thus in a few days, through the divine disposal, she passed with a palm of virginity to the Lord." Perhaps, adds the worthy Franciscan, our Poet not being able to certify himself entirely of this occurrence, has chosen to pass it over discreetly, by making Piccarda say—

God knows how, after that, my life was fram'd.

g) Constance.] Daughter of Ruggieri, king of Sicily, who being taken by force out of a monastery where she had professed, was married to the Emperor Henry VI. and by him was mother to Frederick II. She was fifty years old or more at the time, and "because it was not credited that she could have a child at that age, she was delivered in a pavilion, and it was given out that any lady, who pleased, was at liberty to see her. Many came, and saw her; and the suspicion ceased." Ricordano Malespini in Muratori, Rer. It. Script. t. viii. p. 939; and G. Villani, in the same words, Hist. lib. v. c. 16.

The French translator above-mentioned speaks of her having poisoned her husband. The death of Henry VI. is recorded in the Chronicon Siciliæ, by an anonymous writer, (Muratori, t. x.) but not a word of his having been poisoned by Constance; and Ricordano Malespini even mentions her decease as happening before that of her husband, Henry V., for so this author, with some others, terms him.

h) The second.] Henry VI. son of Frederick I. was the second emperor of the house of Suabia; and his son Frederick II. "the third and last."

CANTO IV.

a) Between two kinds of food.] "Si aliqua dico sunt penitus æqualia, non magis movetur homo ad unum quam ad aliud; sicut famelicus, si habet cibum æqualiter appetibilem in diversis partibus, et secundum æqualem distantiam, non magis movetur ad unum quam ad alterum." Thomas Aquinas, Summ. Theolog. i. ms. ii. ndæ Partis. Quæstio. xiii. Art. vi.

b) Between two deer.]

Tigris ut, auditis, diversâ valle duprum,
Extimulata fame, mugitibus armentorum,
Nescit utrò potius ruat, et ruere ardet utroque.

Ovid, Metam. lib. v. 166.

c) Daniel.] See Daniel, ii. Beatrice did for Dante what Daniel did for Nebuchadnezzar, when he freed the king from the uncertainty respecting his dream, which had enraged him against the Chaldeans. Lombardi conjectures that "Fe sì Beatrice" should be read, instead of "Fessi Beatrice;" and his conjecture has since been confirmed by the Monte Cassino MS.

d) By each of these desires.] His desire to have each of the doubts, which Beatrice mentions, resolved.

e) Plato.] Εὐερήπος δὲ, κ. τ. λ. Plato, Timæus, v. ix. p. 326. Edit. Bip. "The Creator, when he had framed the universe, distributed to the stars an equal number of souls, appointing to each soul it's several star."

f) Of that.] Plato's opinion.

g) Which hath the more of gall.] Which is the more dangerous.

h) Of Seraphim.] "He amongst the Seraphim who is most nearly united with God, Moses, Samuel, and both the Johns, the Baptist and the Evangelist, dwell not in any other heaven than do those spirits whom thou hast just beheld; nor does even the blessed Virgin herself dwell in any other: nor is their existence either longer or shorter than that of these spirits." She first resolves his doubt whether souls do not return to their own stars, as he had read in the Timæus of Plato. Angels, then, and beatified spirits, she declares, dwell all and eternally together, only partaking more or less of the divine glory, in the empyrean; although, in condescension to human understanding, they appear to have different spheres allotted to them.

i) The first circle.] The empyrean.

j) Hands and feet.] Thus Milton:—

What surmounts the reach
Of human sense, I shall delineate so,
By likening spiritual to corporeal forms,
As shall express them best. P. L. b. v. 575.

These passages, rightly considered, may tend to remove the scruples of some, who are offended by any attempts at representing the Deity in pictures.

k) ——— Him who made

Tobias whole.]

Raphael, the sociable spirit, that deign'd
. To travel with Tobias, and secur'd
His marriage with the sev'n times wedded maid.

Ibid. 223.

l) Timæus.] In the Convito, p. 92, our author again refers to the Timæus of Plato, on the subject of the mundane system; but it is in order to give the preference to the opinion respecting it held by Aristotle.

m) His true opinion.] In like manner, our learned Stillingfleet has professed himself “somewhat inclinable to think that Plato knew more of the lapse of mankind than he would openly discover, and for that end disguised it after his usual manner in that hypothesis of pre-existence.”. Origines Sacræ, b. iii. c. iii. § 15.

n) That, to the eye of man.] “That the ways of divine justice are often inscrutable to man, ought rather to be a motive to faith than an inducement to heresy.” Such appears to me the most satisfactory explanation of the passage.

o) This truth.] That it is no impeachment of God's justice, if merit be lessened through compulsion of others, without any failure of good intention on the part of the meritorious. After all, Beatrice ends by admitting that there was a defect in the will, which hindered Constance and the others from seizing the first opportunity, that offered itself to them, of returning to the monastic life.

p) Laurence.] Who suffered martyrdom in the third century.

q) Scævola.] See Liv. Hist. D. I. lib. ii. 12.

s) His father's.] Amphiaräus.

t) His own mother.] Eriphyle.

u) Of will.] “What Piccarda asserts of Constance, that she retained her affection to the monastic life, is said absolutely and without relation to circumstances; and that, which I affirm, is spoken of the will conditionally and respectively: so that our apparent difference is without any disagreement.”

v) That truth.] The light of divine truth.

CANTO V.

a) If beyond earthly wont.] Dante having been unable to sustain the splendor of Beatrice, as we have seen at the end of the last Canto, she tells him to attribute her increase of brightness to the place in which they were.

b) Supreme of gifts.] So in the De Monarchiâ, lib. i. p. 107 and 108. “Si ergo judicium moveat,” &c. “If then the judgment altogether move the appetite, and is in no wise prevented by it, it is free. But if the judgment be moved by the appetite in any way preventing it, it cannot be free: because it acts not of itself, but is led captive by another. And hence it is that brutes cannot have free judgment, because their judgments are always prevented by appetite. And hence it may also appear manifest, that intellectual substances, whose wills are immutable, and likewise souls separated from the body, and departing from it well and holily, lose not the liberty of choice on account of the immutability of the will, but retain it most perfectly and powerfully. This being discerned, it is again plain, that this liberty, or principle of all our liberty, is the greatest good conferred on human nature by God; because by this very thing we are here made happy, as men; by this we are elsewhere made happy, as divine beings."

c) Thou wouldest of theft.] "Licet ~~fur~~ de furto," &c. De Monarchiā, lib. ii. p. 123. "Although a thief should out of that which he has stolen give help to a poor man, yet is that not to be called almsgiving."

d) Two things.] The one, the substance of the vow, as of a single life for instance, or of keeping fast; the other, the compact, or form of it.

e) It was enjoin'd the Israelites.] See Lev. c. xii. and xxvii.

f) Either key.] Purgatory, Canto ix. 108.

g) If the last bond.] If the thing substituted be not far more precious than that which is released.

h) That region.] As some explain it, the east: according to others, the equinoctial line. Lombardi thinks, not without reason, that it is meant she looked upwards.

i) This sphere.] The planet Mercury, which, being nearest to the sun, is oftenest hidden by that luminary.

k) When his warm gaze.] When the sun has dried up the vapours, that shaded his brightness.

CANTO VI.

a) After that Constantine the eagle turn'd.] Constantine, in transferring the seat of empire from Rome to Byzantium, carried the eagle, the Imperial ensign, from the west to the east. Æneas, on the contrary, had, with better augury, moved along with the sun's course, when he passed from Troy to Italy.

b) A hundred years twice told and more.] The Emperor Constantine entered Byzantium in 324; and Justinian began his reign in 527.

c) At Europe's extreme point.] Constantinople being situated at the extreme of Europe, and on the borders of Asia, near those mountains in the neighbourhood of Troy, from whence the first founders of Rome had emigrated.

d) To clear the' encumber'd laws.] The code of laws was abridged and reformed by Justinian.

Giustiniano son io, disse il primajo,
Che 'l troppo e'l van secai for delle leggi,
Ora soggette all' arme e al denajo.

Frezz. Il Quadrirégio. lib. iv. cap. 13.

e) In Christ one nature only.] Justinian is said to have been a follower of the heretical opinions held by Eutyches, "who taught that in Christ there was but one nature, viz. that of the incarnate word." MacLaine's Mosheim, tom. ii. cent. v. p. ii. cap. v. § 13.

f) Agapete.] "Agapetus, Bishop of Rome, whose Schola Regia, addressed to the Emperor Justinian, procured him a place among the wisest and most judicious writers of this century." Ibid. cent. vi. p. ii. cap. ii. § 8.

g) Who pretend it's power.] The Ghibellines.

h) And who oppose.] The Guelphs.

i) Pallas died.] See Virgil, Æn. lib. x.

k) Not unknown.] In the second Book of his treatise De Monarchiâ, where Dante endeavours to prove that the Roman people had a right to govern the world, he refers to their conquests and successes in nearly the same order as in this passage.

“The Roman,” he affirms, “might truly say, as the Apostle did to Timothy, There is laid up for me a crown of righteousness; laid up, that is, in the eternal providence of God.” p. 131. And again: “Now it is manifest, that by durat (per duellum) the Roman people acquired the Empire; therefore they acquired it by right, to prove which is the main purpose of the present book.” p. 132.

l) The rival three.] The Horatii and Curiatii.

m) Domen.] “From the rape of the Sabine women to the violation of Lucretia.”

n) The Epirot prince.] King Pyrrhus.

o) Quintius.] Quintius Cincinnatus.

E Cincinnato dall’ inculta chioma.

Petrarca.

Compare De Monarchiâ, lib. ii. p. 121, &c. “Itaque, inquit, et maiores nostri,” &c.

p) Embalm.] The word in the original is “mirro,” which some think is put for “miro,” “I behold or regard;” and others understand, as I have rendered it.

q) Arab hordes.] The Arabians seem to be put for the barbarians in general. Lombardi’s comment is, that as the Arabs are an Asiatic people, and it is not recorded that Hannibal had any other troops except his own countrymen the Carthaginians, who were Africans, we must understand that Dante denominates that people, Arabs, on account of their origin. “Ab Ifrico Arabia felicis rege, qui omnium primus hanc terram (Africam) incoluisse fertur,” &c. Lea Africam, Africae Descriptio, lib. i. cap. i.

r) That hill.] The city of Fesule, which was sacked by the Romans after the defeat of Catiline.

s) Under whose summit.] “At the foot of which is situated Florence, thy birth-place.”

t) Near the hour.] Near the time of our Saviour’s birth. “The immeasurable goodness of the Deity being willing again to conform to itself the human creature, which by transgression of the first man had from God departed, and fallen from his likeness, it was determined in that most high and closest consistory of the Godhead, the Trinity, that the Son of God should descend upon earth to make this agreement. And because it was behoveful, that at his coming, the world, not only the heaven but the earth, should be in the best possible disposition ; and the best disposition of the earth is, when it is a monarchy, that is, all under one prince, as hath been said above ; therefore through the divine forecast was ordained that people and that city for the accomplishment, namely, the glorious Rome." Convito, p. 138.

u) What then it wrought.] In the following fifteen lines the Poet has comprised the exploits of Julius Cæsar, for which, and for the allusions in the greater part of this speech of Justinian's, I must refer my reader to the history of Rome.

v) In it's next bearer's gripe.] With Augustus Cæsar.

w) Bark'd of.] τοιαῦθ' ὑλακτεῖ.

Sophocles, Electra, 299.

x) The third Cæsar.] The eagle in the hand of Tiberius, the third of the Cæsars, outdid all it's achievements, both past and future, by becoming the instrument of that mighty and mysterious act of satisfaction made to the divine justice in the crucifixion of our Lord. This is Lombardi's explanation ; and he deserves much credit for being right, where all the other commentators, as far as I know, are wrong. See Note to Purg. canto xxxii. 50.

y) Vengeance for vengeance.] This will be afterwards explained by the Poet himself. See next Canto v. 47, and note.

z) Charlemagne.] Dante could not be ignorant that the reign of Justinian was long prior to that of Charlemagne ; but the spirit of the former emperor is represented, both in this instance and in what follows, as conscious of the events that had taken place after his own time.

aa) The yellow lilies.] The French ensign.

ab) Ye Ghibellines.] "Authors differ much as to the beginning of these factions, and the origin of the names by which they were distinguished. Some say that they began in Italy as early as the time of the Emperor Frederic I. in his well-known disputes with Pope Alexander III. about the year 1160. Others make them more ancient, dating them from the reign of the Emperor Henry IV. who died in 1125. But the most common opinion is, that they arose in the contests between the Emperor Frederic II. and Pope Gregory IX. and that this Emperor, wishing to ascertain who were his own adherents, and who those of the Pope, caused the former to be marked by the appellation of Ghibellines, and the latter by that of Guelphs. It is more probable, however, that the factions were at this time either renewed, or diffused more widely, and that their origin was of an earlier date, since it is certain that G. Villani, b. v. c. 37, Ricordano Malaspina, c. civ., and Pietro Buoninsegni, b. i. of their histories of Florence, are agreed, that even from 1215, that is long before Frederic had succeeded to the Empire, and Gregory to the Pontificate, by the death of Buondelmonte Buondelmonti, one of the chief gentlemen in Florence, (See Par. canto xvi. v. 139,) the factions of the Guelfi and Ghibellini were introduced into that city." A. G. Artegiani, Annotations on the Quadrifregio, p. 180. "The same variety of opinion prevails with regard to the origin of the names. Some deduce them from two brothers, who were Germans, the one called Guelph and the other Gibel, who being the partizans of two powerful families in Pistoia, the Panciatichi and the Cancellieri, then at enmity with each other, were the first occasion of these titles having been given to the discordant factions. Others, with more probability, derive them from Guelph or Guelfone, Duke of Bavaria, and Gibello, a castle where his antagonist, the Emperor Conrad the Third, was born; in consequence of a battle between Guelph and Henry the son of Conrad, which was fought (according to Mini, in his Defence of Florence, p. 48) A. D. 1138. Others assign to them an origin yet more ancient; asserting, that at the election of Frederic I. to the Empire, the Electors concurred in choosing him, in order to extinguish the inveterate discords between the Guelphs and Ghibellines, that prince being descended by the paternal line from the Ghibellines, and by the maternal from the Guelphs. Bartolo, however, in his tractate de Guelphis et Gibellinis, gives an intrinsic meaning to these names from certain passages in Scripture. 'Sicut Gibellus interpretatur locus fortitudinis, ita Gibellini appellantur confidentes in fortitudine militum et armorum, et sicut Guelpha interpretatur os loquens, ita Guelphi interpretantur confidentes in orationibus et in divinis.' What value is to be put on this interpretation, which well accords with the genius of those times when it was perhaps esteemed a marvellous mystery, we leave it to others to decide." Ibid.

ac) Charles.] The commentators explain this to mean Charles II. king of Naples and Sicily. Is it not more likely to allude to Charles of Vallois, son of Philip III. of France, who was sent for, about this time, into Italy by Pope Boniface, with the promise of being made emperor? See G. Villani, lib. viii. cap. 42.

ad) When desires.] When honour and fame are the chief motives to action, that love, which has heaven for its object, must necessarily become less fervent.

ae) Romeo's light.] The story of Romeo is involved in some uncertainty. The name of Romeo signified, as we have seen in the note Purg. canto xxxiii. v. 78, one who went on a pilgrimage to Rome. The French writers assert the continuance of his ministerial office even after the decease of his sovereign, Raymond Berenger, Count of Provence: and they rest this assertion chiefly on the fact of a certain Romieu de Villeneuve, who was the contemporary of that prince, having left large possessions behind him, as appears by his will preserved in the archives of the bishoprick of Vence. That they are right as to the name at least, would appear from the following marginal note on the Monte Casino MS. Romeo de Villanova districtus civitatis Ventiae de Provincia olim administratoris Raymundi Belingerj Comitis de Provincia—ivit peregrinando contemplatione ad Deum. Yet it is improbable, on the other hand, that the Italians, who lived so near the time, should be misinformed in an occurrence of such notoriety. According to them, after he had long been a faithful steward to Raymond, when an account was required from him of the revenues which he had carefully husbanded, and his master as lavishly disbursed, "he demanded the little mule, the staff, and the scrip, with which he had first entered into the count's service, a stranger pilgrim from the shrine of St. James, in Galicia, and parted as he came; nor was it ever known whence he was, or whither he went." G. Villani, lib. vi. c. 92.

af) Four daughters.] Of the four daughters of Raymond Berenger, Margaret, the eldest, was married to Louis IX. of France; Eleanor, the next, to Henry III. of England; Sancha, the third, to Richard, Henry's brother, and King of the Romans; and the youngest, Beatrice, to Charles I. king of Naples and Sicily, and brother to Louis.

ag) Raymond Berenger.] This prince, the last of the house of Barcelona, who was Count of Provence, died in 1245. He is in the list of Provençal poets. See Millot. Hist. Litt. des Troubadours, tom. ii. p. 212.

CANTO VII.

a) Malahoth.] A Hebrew word, signifying “kingdoms.”

b) That substance bright.] Justinian.

c) As might have made one blest amid the flames.] So Giusto de' Conti. Bella Mano. “Qual salamandra.”

 Che puomini nelle fiamme far beato.

d) That man, who was unborn.] Adam.

e) Different effects.] The death of Christ was pleasing to God, inasmuch as it satisfied the divine justice; and to the Jews, because it gratified their malignity: and while heaven opened for joy at the ransom of man, the earth trembled through compassion for its Maker.

f) A just vengeance.] The punishment of Christ by the Jews, although just as far as regarded the human nature assumed by him, and so a righteous vengeance of sin, yet being unjust as it regarded the divine nature, was itself justly revenged on the Jews by the destruction of Jerusalem.

g) The celestial love.] From Boëtius de Consol. Philos. lib. iii. Metr. 9.

 Quem non externe pepererunt fingere cause
 Materne fluitantis opus, verum insita sumini

Forma boni livore carens; tu cuncta superno
 Ducas ab exemplo, pulchrum pulcherrimus ipse
 Mundum mente gerens, similique in imagine formans, Perfectasque jubens perfectum absolvere partes.

h) What distils.] "That, which proceeds immediately from God, and without the intervention of secondary causes, is immortal."

i) These tokens of pre-eminence.] The before-mentioned gifts of immediate creation by God, independence on secondary causes, and consequent similitude and agreeableness to the divine Being, all at first conferred on man.

j) By both his ways, I mean, or one alone.] Either by mercy and justice united, or by mercy alone.

k) In some part.] She reverts to that part of her discourse where she had said that what proceeds immediately from God "no effid of being knows." She then proceeds to tell him that the elements, which, though he knew them to be created, he yet saw dissolved, received their form not immediately from God, but from a virtue or power created by God; that the soul of brutes and plants is in like manner drawn forth by the stars with a combination of those elements meetly tempered, "di complessione potenziata;" but that the angels and the heavens may be said to be created in that very manner in which they exist, without any intervention of agency.

l) Draw.] I had before rendered this differently, and I now think erroneously:

With complex potency attract and turn.

m) Our resurrection certain.] Venturi appears to mistake the Poet's reasoning, when he observes: "Wretched for us, if we had not arguments more convincing, and of a higher kind, to assure us of the truth of our resurrection." It is, perhaps, here intended that the whole of God's dispensation should be taken into the account. The conclusion may be that as before sin man was immortal, and even in flesh proceeded immediately from God, so being restored to the favour of heaven by the expiation made for sin, he necessarily recovers his claim to immortality even in the body.

There is much in this poem to justify the encomium which the learned Salvini has passed on it, when, in an epistle to Redi, imitating what Horace had said of Homer, that the duties of life might be better learnt from the Grecian bard, than from the teachers of the porch or the academy, he says—

And dost thou ask, what themes my mind engage?
The lonely hours I give to Dante's page;
And meet more sacred learning in his lines,
Than I had gain'd from all the school divines.

Se volete saper la vita mia,
Studiando io sto lungi da tutti gli uomini;
Ed ho imparato più teologia
In questi giorni, che ho riletto Dante,
Che nelle senole fatto io non avria.

CANTO VIII.

a) The world.] The Poet, on his arrival at the third heaven, tells us that the world, in its days of heathen darkness, believed the influence of sensual love to proceed from this star, to which, under the name of Venus, they paid divine honours; as they worshiped the supposed mother and son of Venus, under the names of Dione and Cupid.

b) Epicycle. ————— the sphere

With centric and eccentric scribbled o'er,
Cycle and epicycle.

“In sul dosso di questo cerchio,” &c. Convito di Dante, p. 18. “Upon the back of this circle, in the heaven of Venus, whereof we are now treating, is a little sphere, which has in that heaven a revolution of it's own; whose circle the astronomers term epicycle."

c) To sit in Dido's bosom.] Virgil, AEn. lib. i. 718.

d) Now obvious.] Being at one part of the year, a morning, and at another an evening star. So Frezzi:—

e) As their.] As each, according to their several deserts, partakes more or less of the beatific vision.

f) Whether invisible to eye or no.] He calls the blast invisible, if unmattered by gross vapour; otherwise, visible.

g) 'O ye! whose intellectual ministry.]

Voi ch' intendendo il terzo ciel movete.

The first line in our Poet's first Canzone. See his Convito, p. 40.

h) Prinedoms in hear'n.] See Canto xxviii. 112, where the princedoms are, as here, made co-ordinate with this third sphere. In his Convito, p. 54, he has ranked them differently, making the thrones the moving intelligences of Venus.

i) Had the time been more.] The spirit now speaking is Charles Martel, crowned king of Hungary, and son of Charles II. king of Naples and Sicily, to which dominions, dying in his father's lifetime, he did not succeed. The evil, that would have been prevented by the longer life of Charles Martel, was that resistance which his brother Robert, king of Sicily, who succeeded him, made to the Emperor Henry VII. See G. Villani, lib. ix. cap. xxxviii.

j) Thou lov'dst me well.] Charles Martel might have been known to our Poet at Florence, whither he came to meet his father in 1295, the year of his death. The retinue and the habiliments of the young monarch are minutely described by G. Villani, who adds, that "he remained more than twenty days in Florence, waiting for his father King Charles and his brothers; during which time great honour was done him by the Florentines, and he showed no less love towards them, and he was much in favour with all." Lib. viii. cap. xiii. His brother Robert, king of Naples, was the friend of Petrarch.

l) ————— That horn.
Of fair Ausonia.] The kingdom of Naples.

m) The land.] Hungary.

n) The beautiful Trinacria.] Sicily; so called from its three promontories, of which Pachynus and Pelorus, here mentioned, are two.

o) Typhonus.] The giant, whom Jupiter is fabled to have overwhelmed under the mountain Ætna, from whence he vomited forth smoke and flame.

p) Sprung through me from Charles and Rodolph.] "Sicily would be still ruled by a race of monarchs, descended through me from Charles I. and Rodolph I. the former my grandfather, king of Naples and Sicily; the latter, emperor of Germany, my father-in-law;" both celebrated in the Purgatory, canto vii.

q) Had not ill-lording.] "If the ill conduct of our governors in Sicily had not excited the resentment and hatred of the people, and stimulated them to that dreadful massacre at the Sicilian vespers;" in consequence of which the kingdom fell into the hands of Peter III. of Arragon, in 1282.

r) My brother's foresight.] He seems to tax his brother Robert with employing necessitous and greedy Catalonians to administer the affairs of his kingdom.

s) How bitter can spring up.] "How a covetous son can spring from a liberal father." Yet that father has himself been accused of avarice in the Purgatory, canto xx. 78; though his general character was that of a bounteous prince.

t) The Good.] The Supreme Being uses these spheres as the intelligent instruments of his providence in the conduct of terrestrial natures; so that these natures cannot but be conducted aright, unless these heavenly bodies should themselves fail from not having been made perfect at first, or the Creator of them should fail. To this Dante replies, that nature, he is satisfied, thus directed must do her part. Charles Martel then reminds him, that he had learnt from Aristotle, that human society requires a variety of conditions, and consequently a variety of qualifications in its members. Accordingly, men, he concludes, are born with different powers and capacities, caused by the influence of the heavenly bodies at the time of their nativity; on which influence, and not on their parents, those powers and capacities depend. Having thus resolved the question proposed, Charles Martel adds, by way of corollary, that the want of observing their natural bent in the destination of men to their several offices in life, is the occasion of much of the disorder that prevails in the world.

u) Consult your teacher.] Aristotle, ἐπεὶ τὸς ἀνομοῖων ἡ πόλις, κ. τ. λ. De Rep. lib. iii. cap. 4. "Since a state is made up of members differing from one another; (for even as an animal, in the first instance, consists of soul and body; and the soul, of reason and desire; and a family, of man and woman; and property, of master and slave; in like manner a state consists both of all these, and besides these of other dissimilar kinds;) it necessarily follows, that the excellence of all the members of the state cannot be one and the same."

v) —— Whose airy voyage

Cost him his son.] Dædalus.

w) Esau is so wide of Jacob.] Genesis, xxv. 22. Venturi blames our poet for selecting an instance, which, as that commentator says, proves the direct contrary of that which he intended, as they were born under the same ascendent; and, therefore, if the stars had any influence, the two brothers should have been born with the same temperament and disposition. This objection is well answered by Lombardi, who quotes a passage from Roger Bacon, to show that the smallest diversity of place was held to make a diversity in the influence of the heavenly bodies, so as to occasion an entire discrepancy even between children in the same womb. It must be recollected, that whatever power may be attributed to the stars by our Poet, he does not suppose it to put any constraint on the freedom of the human will; so that chimerical as his opinion appears to us, it was, in a moral point of view at least, harmless.

x) Quirinus.] Romulus, born of so obscure a father, that his parentage was attributed to Mars.

CANTO IX.

a) O fair Clemenza.] Daughter of Charles Martel, and second wife of Louis X. of France.

b) The treachery.] He alludes to the occupation of the kingdom of Sicily by Robert, in exclusion of his brother's son Carobert, or Charles Robert, the rightful heir. See G. Villani, lib. viii. c. 112.

c) That saintly light.] Charles Martel.

d) Prove thou to me.] The thoughts of all created minds being seen by the Deity, and all that is in the Deity being the object of vision to beatified spirits, such spirits must consequently see the thoughts of all created minds. Dante therefore requests of the spirit, who now approaches him, a proof of this truth with regard to his own thoughts. See v. 70.

e) In that part.] Between Rialto in the Venetian territory, and the sources of the rivers Brenta and Piava, is situated a castle called Romano, the birth-place of the famous tyrant Ezzolino or Azzolino, the brother of Cunizza who is now speaking. The tyrant we have seen in "the river of blood." Hell, canto xii. v. 110.

f) Cunizza.] The adventures of Cunizza, overcome by the influence of her star, are related by the chronicler Rolandino of Padua, lib. i. cap. 3, in Muratori. Rer. It. Script. tom. viii. p. 173. She eloped from her first husband, Richard of St. Boniface, in the company of Sordello, (see Purg. canto vi. and vii.) with whom she is supposed to have co-habited before her marriage: then lived with a soldier of Trevigi, whose wife was living at the same time in the same city; and on his being murdered by her brother the tyrant, was by her brother married to a nobleman of Braganzo: lastly, when he also had fallen by the same hand, she, after her brother's death, was again wedded in Verona.

g) Yet I nought repine.] "I am not dissatisfied that I am not allotted a higher place."

h) This.] Folco of Genoa, a celebrated Provençal poet, commonly termed Folques of Marseilles, of which place he was perhaps bishop. Many errors of Nostrodamus, concerning him, which have been followed by Crescimbeni, Quadrio, and Millot, are detected by the diligence of Tiraboschi. Mr. Mathias's edit. v. i. p. 18. All that appears certain, is what we are told in this Canto, that he was of Genoa; and by Petrarch, in the Triumph of Love, c. iv. that he was better known by the appellation he derived from Marseilles, and at last assumed the religious habit.

One of his verses is cited by Dante. De Vulg. Eloq. lib. ii. c. 6.

i) Five times.] The five hundred years are elapsed: and unless the Provençal MSS. should be brought to light, the poetical reputation of Folco must rest on the mention made of him by the more fortunate Italians.

j) When such life may attend the first.] When the mortal life of man may be attended by so lasting and glorious a memory, which is a kind of second life.

k) The crowd.] The people who inhabited the tract of country bounded by the rivers Tagliamento to the east and Adice to the west.

l) The hour is near.] Cunizza foretels the defeat of Giacopo da Carrara and the Paduans, by Can Grande, at Vicenza, on the 18th September, 1314. See G. Villani, lib. ix. cap. 62.

m) One.] She predicts also the fate of Riccardo da Camino, who is said to have been murdered at Trevigi, (where the rivers Sile and Cagnano meet) while he was engaged in playing at chess.

n) The web.] The net, or snare, into which he is destined to fall.

o) Feltro.] The bishop of Feltro having received a number of fugitives from Ferrara, who were in opposition to the Pope, under a promise of protection, afterwards gave them up; so that they were reconducted to that city, and the greater part of them there put to death.

p) Malta's.] A tower, either in the citadel of Padua, which, under the tyranny of Ezzolino, had been "with many a foul and midnight murder fed;" or (as some say) near a river of the same name, that falls into the lake of Bolsena, in which the Pope was accustomed to imprison such as had been guilty of an irremissible sin.

q) The skillet.] The blood shed could not be contained in such a vessel, if it were of the usual size.

r) This priest.] The bishop, who, to show himself a zealous partisan of the Pope, had committed the above-mentioned act of treachery. The commentators are not agreed as to the name of this faithless prelate.

s) We descry.] "We behold the things that we predict, in the mirrors of eternal truth."

t) That other joyance.] Folco.

u) A thing to marvel at.] Preclara cosa. A Latinism according to Venturi; but the word "preclara" had been already naturalised by Guido Guinicelli:

Oro ed argento e ricche gioje preclare.

See the sonnet, of which a version has been given in a note to Purg. canto xi. v. 96.

v) Choicest ruby.] Balascio.

No saphire in fude no rube rich of grace
There lacked then, nor emerande so green, Bales.

— Chaucer, The Court of Love.

Mr. Tyrwhitt, I should suppose erroneously as to the sense at least intended by Chaucer, calls it "a sort of bastard ruby."

w) Effulgence.] As joy is expressed by laughter on earth, so is it by an increase of splendour in Paradise; and, on the contrary, grief is betokened in Hell by augmented darkness.

x) Six shadowing wings.] "Above it stood the seraphims; each one had six wings." Isaiah vi. 2.

Ante majestatis ejus gloriam cherubim senas habentes alas semper adstantes non cessant clamare sanctus, sanctus, sanctus. Alberici Visio, § 39.

— six wings he wore to shade
His lineaments divine.

y) The valley' of waters.] The Mediterranean sea.

z) That.] The great ocean.

aa) Discordant shores.] Europe and Africa.

ab) Meridian.] Extending to the east, the Mediterranean at last reaches the coast of Palestine, which is on it's horizon when it enters the Straits of Gibraltar. "Wherever a man is," says Vellutello, "there he has, above his head, his own particular meridian circle."

ac) 'Twixt Ebro's stream

And Macra's.] Ebro, a river to the west, and Macra, to the east of Genoa, where Folco was born: others think that Marseilles and not Genoa is here described: and then Ebro must be understood of the river in Spain.

ad) Begga.] A place in Africa.

ae) Whose haven.] Alluding to the terrible slaughter of the Genoese made by the Saracens in 936; for which event Vellutello refers to the history of Augustino Giustiniani. Those, who conceive that our Poet speaks of Marseilles, suppose the slaughter of it's inhabitants made in the time of Julius Cæsar to be alluded to.

af) This heav'n.] The planet Venus, by which Folco declares himself to have been formerly influenced.

ag) Betus' daughter.] Dido.

ah) She of Rhodope.] Phyllis.

ai) Jove's son.] Hercules.

aj) With such effectual working.] All the editions, except the Nidobeatina, do not, as Lombardi affirms, read "contanto;" for Vellutello's of 1544 is certainly one exception.

ak) To the lower world.] I have altered my former translation here, in compliance with a reading adopted by Lombardi from the Nidobeatina; Perche 'l mondo instead of Perche al mondo. But the passage is still obscure.

al) Rahab.] Heb. xi. 31.

am) This heav'n.] "This planet of Venus, at which the shadow of the earth ends, as Ptolemy writes in his Almagest." Vellutello.

an) With either palm.] By both his hands nailed to the cross.

ao) The Pope.] “Who cares not that the holy land is in the possession of the Saracens.” See also canto xv. 136.

Ite superbi, O miseri Cristiani
Consummando l’um l’altro; e non vi eaglia
Che ’l sepolcro di Cristo è in man di cani.

Petrarca, Trionfo della Fama, cap. ii.

ap) Of him.] Of Satan.

aq) The cursed flower.] The coin of Florence, called the floren; the covetous desire of which has excited the Pope to so much evil.

ar) The decretals.] The canon law. So in the De Monarchiâ, lib. iii, p. 137. “There are also a third set, whom they call the Decretalists. These, alike ignorant of theology and philosophy, relying wholly on their decretals (which I indeed esteem not unworthy of reverence) in the hope I suppose of obtaining for them a paramount influence, derogate from the authority of the empire. Nor is this to be wondered at, when I have heard one of them saying, and impudently maintaining, that traditions are the foundation of the faith of the church.” He proceeds to confute this opinion, and concludes “that the church does not derive its authority from traditions, but traditions from the church;” “necessæ est, ut non ecclesiæ a traditionibus, sed ab ecclesiâ traditionibus accedat authoritas.”

as) The Vatican.] He alludes either to the death of Pope Boniface VIII. or, as Venturi supposes, to the coming of the Emperor Henry VII. into Italy; or else, according to the yet more probable conjecture of Lombardi, to the transfer of the holy see from Rome to Avignon, which took place in the pontificate of Clement V.

CANTO X.

a) The point.] "To that part of heaven," as Venturi explains it, "in which the equinoctial circle and the zodiac intersect each other, where the common motion of the heavens from east to west may be said to strike with greatest force against the motion proper to the planets: and this repercussion, as it were, is here the strongest, because the velocity of each is increased to the utmost by their respective distance from the poles. Such at least is the system of Dante."

b) Oblique.] The zodiac.

c) In heav'n above.] If the planets did not preserve that order in which they move, they would not receive nor transmit their due influences; and if the zodiac were not thus oblique; if towards the north it either passed, or went short of the tropic of Cancer, or else towards the south it passed or, went short of the tropic of Capricorn, it would not divide the seasons as it now does.

d) The part.] The above-mentioned intersection of the equinoctial circle and the zodiac.

e) Minister.] The sun.

f) Along the spires.] According to our Poet's system, as the earth is motionless, the sun passes, by a spiral motion, from one tropic to the other.

g) Where.] In which the sun rises every day earlier after the vernal equinox.

h) But as a man.] That is, he was quite insensible of it.

i) Fourth family.] The inhabitants of the sun, the fourth planet.

j) Of his spirit and of his offspring.] The procession of the third, and the generation of the second person in the Trinity.

k) Such was the song.] The song of these spirits was ineffable. It was like a jewel so highly prized, that the exportation of it to another country is prohibited by law.

l) Let him.] Let him not expect any intelligence at all of that place, for it surpasses description.

m) No less constrained.] “The rivers might as easily cease to flow towards the sea, as we could deny thee thy request.”

n) I, then.] “I was of the Dominican order.”

o) Albert of Cologne.] Albertus Magnus was born at Lauingen, in Thuringia, in 1193, and studied at Paris and at Padua, at the latter of which places he entered into the Dominican order. He then taught theology in various parts of Germany, and particularly at Cologne. Thomas Aquinas was his favourite pupil. In 1260, he reluctantly accepted the bishopric of Ratisbon, and in two years after resigned it, and returned to his cell in Cologne, where the remainder of his life was passed in superintending the school, and in composing his voluminous works on divinity and natural science. He died in 1280. The absurd imputation of his having dealt in the magical art is well known; and his biographers take some pains to clear him of it. Scriptores Ordinis Prædicatorum, by Quetif and Echard. Lut. Par. 1719. fol. tom. i. p. 162. Frezzi places Albertus Magnus next in rank to Aristotle:

Alberto Magno è dopo lui 'l secondo:
Egli supplì li membri, e 'l vestimento
Alla Filosofia in questo mondo.

Il Quadrir. lib. iv. cap. 9.

p) Of Aquinum, Thomas.] Thomas Aquinas, of whom Bucer is reported to have said, “Take but Thomas away, and I will overturn the church of Rome;” and whom Hooker terms “the greatest among the school divines,” (Eccl. Pol. b. iii. § 9,) was born of noble parents, who anxiously but vainly endeavoured to divert him from a life of celibacy and study. He died in 1274, at the age of forty-seven. Echard and Quetif. ibid. p. 271. See also Purgatory, canto xx. v. 67.

q) Gratian.] “Gratian, a Benedictine monk belonging to the convent of St. Felix and Nabor, at Bologna, and by birth a Tuscan, composed, about the year 1130, for the use of the schools, an abridgment or epitome of canon law, drawn from the letters of the pontiffs, the decrees of councils, and the writings of the ancient doctors.” Macclaine's Mosheim, v. iii. cent. xii. part ii. cap. i. § 6.

r) To either forum.] "By reconciling," as Venturi explains it, "the civil with the canon law."

s) Peter.] "Pietro Lombardo was of obscure origin, nor is the place of his birth in Lombardy ascertained. With a recommendation from the Bishop of Lucca to St. Bernard, he went into France to continue his studies; and for that purpose remained some time at Rheims, whence he afterwards proceeded to Paris. Here his reputation was so great, that Philip, brother of Louis VII. being chosen bishop of Paris, resigned that dignity to Pietro, whose pupil he had been. He held his bishopric only one year, and died 1160. His Liber Sententiarum is highly esteemed. It contains a system of scholastic theology, so much more complete than any which had been yet seen, that it may be deemed an original work." Tiraboschi, Storia della Lett. Ital. tom. iii. lib. iv. cap. ii.

t) That with the widow gave.] This alludes to the beginning of the Liber Sententiarum, where Peter says: "Cupiens aliquid de penuriae ac tenuitate nostrae cum paupercula in gazophylacium domini mittere," &c.

u) The fifth light.] Solomon.

v) It's doom.] It was a common question, it seems, whether Solomon were saved or no.

w) That taper's radiance.] St. Dionysius, the Areopagite. "The famous Grecian fanatic, who gave himself out for Dionysius the Areopagite, disciple of St. Paul, and who, under the protection of this venerable name gave laws and instructions to those that were desirous of raising their souls above all human things, in order to unite them to their great source by sublime contemplation, lived most probably in this century (the fourth); though some place him before, others after the present period." MacLaine's Mosheim, v. i. cent. i. p. 2. c: 3. § 12.

x) That pleader.] In the fifth century, Paulus Orosius "acquired a considerable degree of reputation by the History he wrote to refute the cavils of the Pagans against Christianity, and by his books against the Pelagians and Priscillianists." Ibid. v. ii. cent. v. p. ii. c. ii. § 11. A similar train of argument was pursued by Augustine, in his book De Civitate Dei.

Orosius is classed by Dante, in his treatise De Vulg. Elog. lib. ii. cap. vi. as one of his favourite authors, amongst those "qui usi sunt altissimas prosas,"—"who have written prose with the greatest loftiness of style." The others are Cicero, Livy, Pliny, and Frontinus. Some commentators, with less probability, suppose that this seventh spirit is Saint Ambrose, and not Orosius.

y) The eighth.] Boëtius, whose book De Consolatione Philosophiae excited so much attention during the middle ages, was born, as Tiraboschi conjectures, about 470. "In 524 he was cruelly put to death, by command of Theodoric, either on real or pretended suspicion of his being engaged in a conspiracy." Della Lett. Ital. tom. iii. lib. i. cap. iv.

z) Ciel-d'aur.] Boëtius was buried at Pavia, in the monastery of S. Pietro in Ciel d'oro.

aa) Isidore.] He was Archbishop of Seville during forty years, and died in 635. See Mariana. Hist. lib. vi. cap. vii.

Mosheim, whose critical opinions in general must be taken with some allowance, observes, that "his grammatical, theological, and historical productions, discover more learning and pedantry than judgment and taste."

ab) Bede.] Bede, whose virtues obtained the appellation of the Venerable, was born in 672, at Wermouth and Jarrow, in the bishopric of Durham, and died in 735. Invited to Rome by Pope Sergius I. he preferred passing almost the whole of his life in the seclusion of a monastery. A catalogue of his numerous writings may be seen in Kippis's Biographia Britannica, v. ii.

ac) Richard.] Richard of St. Victor, a native either of Scotland or Ireland, was canon and prior of the monastery of that name at Paris; and died in 1173. "He was at the head of the Mystics in this century; and his treatise, intitled the Mystical Ark, which contains as it were the marrow of this kind of theology, was received with the greatest avidity." MacLaine's Mosheim, v. iii. cent. xii. p. ii. c. ii. § 23.

ad) Sigebert.] "A monk of the abbey of Gemblours, who was in high repute at the end of the eleventh, and beginning of the twelfth century." Dict. de Moreri.

ae) The straw litter'd street.] The name of a street in Paris: the "Rue de Fouarre."

af) The spouse of God.] The church.

CANTO XI.

a) O fond anxiety of mortal men.] Lucretius, lib. ii. 14.
 O miseras hominum mentes! O pectora cæca!
 Qualibus in tenebris vitæ, quantisque periclis
 Degitur hoc ævi quodcunque est!

b) Aphorisms.] The study of medicine.

c) The lustre.] The spirit of Thomas Aquinas.

d) That 'well they thrive.'] See the last Canto, v. 93.

e) 'No second such.'] See the last Canto, v. 111.

f) She.] The church.

g) Her well-below'd.] Jesus Christ.

h) One.] Saint Francis.

i) The other.] Saint Dominic.

j) Tupino.] Thomas Aquinas proceeds to describe the birth-place of Saint Francis, between Tupino, a rivulet near Assisi, or Ascesi, where the saint was born in 1182, and Chiascio, a stream that rises in a mountain near Agobbio, chosen by Saint Ubaldo for the place of his retirement.

k) Heat and cold.] Cold from the snow, and heat from the reflection of the sun.

l) Yoke] Vellutello understands this of the vicinity of the mountain to Nocera and Gualdo; and Venturi (as I have taken it) of the heavy impositions laid on those places by the Perugians. For giogo, like the Latin jugum, will admit of either sense.

m) The East.]

This is the east, and Juliet is the sun.

Shakespeare.

n) 'Gainst his father's will.] 'In opposition to the wishes of his natural father.'

o) Before the spiritual court.] He made a vow of poverty in the presence of the bishop and of his natural father.

p) Her first husband.] Christ.

q) Amyclas.] Lucan makes Cæsar exclaim, on witnessing the secure poverty of the fisherman Amyclas :—

— O vitæ tua facultas
Pauperis, angustique lares ! O munera nondum
Intellecta deûm ! quibus hoc contingere templis,
Aut potuit muris, nullo trepidare tumultu,
Cæsareâ pulsante manu ?

Phars. lib. v. 531.

O, happy poverty ! thou greatest good
Bestow'd by heaven, but seldom understood !
Here nor the cruel spoiler seeks his prey,
Nor ruthless armies take their dreadful way, &c.

Rowe.

A translation in prose of these lines is introduced by our Poet in his Convito, p. 170.

r) Bernard.] Of Quintavalle ; one of the first followers of the saint.

s) Egidius.] The third of his disciples, who died in 1262. His work, entitled Verba Aurea, was published in 1534, at Antwerp. See Lucas Waddingus, Annales Ordinis Minoris, p. 5.

t) Sylvester.] Another of his earliest associates.

u) Whom now the cord.] Saint Francis bound his body with a cord, in sign that he considered it as a beast, and that it required, like a beast, to be led by a halter.

v) Pietro Bernardone.] A man in an humble station of life at Assisi.

w) Innocent.] Pope Innocent III.

x) Honorius.] His successor Honorius III. who granted certain privileges to the Franciscans.

y) In the proud Soldan's presence.] The Soldan of Egypt, before whom Saint Francis is said to have preached.

z) On the hard rock.] The mountain Alverna in the Apennine.

aa) The last signet.] Alluding to the stigmata, or marks resembling the wounds of Christ, said to have been found on the saint's body.

ab) His dearest lady.] Poverty.

ac) His body.] He forbade any funeral pomp to be observed at his burial; and, as it is said, ordered that his remains should be deposited in a place where criminals were executed and interred.

ad) Our Patriarch.] Saint Dominic, to whose order Thomas Aquinas belonged.

ae) His flock.] The Dominicans.

af) The plant from whence they split.] "The rule of their order, which the Dominicans neglect to observe."

ag) And he shall see, who girds him, what that means.] Lombardi, after the Nidobeatina edition, together with four MSS., reads "il correggiar," or "il coreggiar," which gives the sense that now stands in the text of this version. The Dominicans might be called "coreggieri," from their wearing a leathern girdle, as the Franciscans were called "cordiglieri," from their being girt with a cord. I had before followed the common reading, "il corregger;" and translated the line according to Venturi's interpretation of it:—

Nor miss of the reproof which that implies.

CANTO XII.

a) The blessed flame.] Thomas Aquinas.

b) The holy mill.] The circle of spirits.

c) In manner of that voice.] One rainbow giving back the image of the other, as sound is reflected by Echo, that nymph, who was melted away by her fondness for Narcissus, as vapour is melted by the sun. The reader will observe in the text not only a second and third simile within the first, but two mythological and one sacred allusion bound up together with the whole. Even after this accumulation of imagery, the two circles of spirits, by whom Beatrice and Dante were encam-passed, are by a bold figure, termed two garlands of never-fading roses. Indeed there is a fulness of splendour, even to prodigality, throughout the beginning of this Canto.

d) One.] Saint Buonaventura, general of the Franciscan order, in which he effected some reformation; and one of the most profound divines of his age. “He refused the archbishopric of York, which was offered him by Clement IV., but afterwards was prevailed on to accept the bishopric of Albano and a cardinal’s hat. He was born at Bagnoregio or Bagnorea, in Tuscany, A.D. 1221, and died in 1274.”* Dict. Histor. pur Chaudon et Delandine. Ed. Lyon. 1804.

e) Amongst the new lights.] In the circle that had newly surrounded the first.

f) That made me seem.] “That made me turn to it, as the magnetic needle does to the pole.”

g) To it’s whereabout.] Al suo dove.

The very stones prate of my whereabout.

Shakspeare, Macbeth, act ii. sc. 1.

h) The love.] By an act of mutual courtesy, Buonaventura, a Franciscan, is made to proclaim the praises of St. Dominic, as Thomas Aquinas, a Dominican, has celebrated those of St. Francis; and in like manner each blames the irregularities, not of the other’s order, but of that to which himself belonged.

i) As thou heard’st.] See the last Canto, v. 33.

j) In that clime.] Spain.

k) Those billours.] The Atlantic.

l) Sometimes.] During the summer solstice.

m) Callaroga.] Between Osma and Aranda, in Old Castile, designated by the royal coat of arms.

n) The loving minion of the Christian faith.] Dominic was born April 5, 1170, and died August 6, 1221. His birth-place Callaroga; his father and mother’s names, Felix and Joanna; his mother’s dream; his name of Dominic, given him in consequence of a vision by a noble matron who stood sponsor to him, are all told in an anonymous life of the saint, said to be written in the thirteenth century, and published by Quetif and Echard. Scriptores Ordinis Praedicatorum. Par. 1719, fol. tom. i. p. 25.

These writers deny his having been an inquisitor, and indeed the establishment of the inquisition itself before the fourth Lateran council. Ibid. p. 88.

o) Gentle.]

Βαρεῖαν ἐχθροῖς, καὶ φίλοις ἐμενῆ.

Eurip. Medea. v. 805.

Lofty and sour to those, that lov'd him not,
But to those men, that songht him; sweet as summer.

Shakspeare, Henry VIII. act iv. sc. 2.

p) In the mother's womb.] His mother, when pregnant with him, is said to have dreamt that she should bring forth a white and black dog with a lighted torch in it's mouth, which were signs of the habit to be worn by his order, and of his fervent zeal.

q) The dame.] His godmother's dream was, that he had one star in his forehead, and another in the nape of his neck, from which he communicated light to the east and the west.

r) After the first counsel.] "Jesus said unto him, If thou wilt be perfect, go and sell that thou hast, and give to the poor, and thou shalt have treasure in heaven; and come and follow me." Matth. xix. 21. Dominic is said to have followed this advice.

s) Many a time.] His nurse, when she returned to him, often found that he had left his bed, and was prostrate, and in prayer.

t) Felic.] Feliz Gusman.

u) As men interpret it.] Grace or gift of the Lord.

v) Ostiense.] Arrigo a native of Susa, formerly a considerable city in Piedmont, and cardinal of Ostia and Velletri, whence he acquired the name of Ostiense, was celebrated for his lectures on the five books of the Decretals. He flourished about the year 1250. He is classed by Frezzi with Accorso the Florentine.

Poi Ostiense, e'l Fiorentino Accorso,

Che fè le chiose, e dichiarò 'l mio testo,

E alle leggi diede gran soccorso.

Il Quadrir. lib. iv. cap. 13.

w) Taddeo.] It is uncertain whether he speaks of the physician or the lawyer of that name. The former, Taddeo d'Alde-rotto, a Florentine, called the Hippocratean, translated the ethics of Aristotle into Latin, and died at an advanced age towards the end of the thirteenth century. The other, who was of Bologna, and celebrated for his legal knowledge, left no writings behind him. He is also spoken of by Frezzi :

Azzo e Taddeo già sunno li maggiori ;
E ora ognun' è oscuro, e tal appare
Qual' è la luna alli febei splendori.

Il Quadrir. lib. iv. cap. 13.

x) The see.] "The apostolic see, which no longer continues it's wonted liberality towards the indigent and deserving ; not indeed through it's own fault, as it's doctrines are still the same, but through the fault of the pontiff, who is seated in it."

y) No dispensation.] Dominic did not ask license to compound for the use of unjust acquisitions by dedicating a part of them to pious purposes.

z) Nor the first vacant fortune.] Not the first benefice that fell vacant.

aa) In favour of that seed.] "For that seed of the divine word, from which have sprung up these four-and-twenty plants, these holy spirits that now environ thee."

ab) One wheel.] Dominic ; as the other wheel is Francis.

ac) Thomas.] Thomas Aquinas.

ad) But the track.] "But the rule of St. Francis is already deserted : and the lees of the wine are turned into mouldiness."

ae) Tares.] He adverts to the parable of the tares and the wheat.

af) I question not.] "Some indeed might be found, who still observe the rule of the order: but such would come neither from Casale nor Acquasparta." At Casale, in Montferrat, the discipline had been enforced by Uberto with unnecessary rigour; and at Acquasparta, in the territory of Todi, it had been equally relaxed by the Cardinal Matteo, general of the order. Lucas Waddingus, as cited by Lombardi, corrects the errors of the commentators who had confounded these two.

ag) — Illuminato here,

And Agostino.] Two among the earliest followers of St. Francis.

ah) Hugues of St. Victor.] Landino makes him of Pavia; Venturi calls him a Saxon; and Lombardi, following Alexander Natalis, Hist. Eccl. Sac. xi. cap. 6, art. 9, says that he was from Ypres. He was of the monastery of Saint Victor at Paris, and died in 1142, at the age of forty-four. His ten books, illustrative of the celestial hierarchy of Dionysius the Areopagite, according to the translation of Joannes Scotus, are inscribed to King Louis, son of Louis le Gros, by whom the monastery had been founded. Opera Hug. de S. Vict. fol. Paris, 1526, tom. i. 329. "A man distinguished by the fecundity of his genius, who treated, in his writing, of all the branches of sacred and profane erudition that were known in his time, and who composed several dissertations that are not destitute of merit." Macelaine's Mosheim. Eccl. Hist. v. iii. cent. xii. p. 2, c. 2, § 23. I have looked into his writings, and found some reason for this high eulogium.

ai) Pietro Mangiadore.] "Petrus Comestor, or the Eater, born at Troyes, was canon and dean of that church, and afterwards chancellor of the church of Paris. He relinquished these benefices to become a regular canon of St. Victor at Paris, where he died in 1198." Chaudon et Delandine. Dict. Hist. Ed. Lyon. 1804.

The work, by which he is best known, is his Historia Scolastica, which I shall have occasion to cite in the Notes to Canto xxvi.

aj) He of Spain.] "To Pope Adrian V. succeeded John XXI. a native of Lisbon; a man of great genius and extraordinary acquirements, especially in logic and in medicine, as his books written in the name of Peter of Spain, (by which he was known before he became Pope) may testify. His life was not much longer than that of his predecessors, for he was killed at Viterbo, by the falling in of the roof of his chamber, after he had been pontiff only eight months and as many days," A.D. 1277. Mariana. Hist. de Esp. l. xiv. c. 2.

ak) Chrysostom.] The eloquent patriarch of Constantinople.

al) Anselmo.] "Anselm, Archbishop of Canterbury, was born at Aosta, about 1034; and studied under Lanfranc, at the monastery of Bee in Normandy, where he afterwards devoted himself to a religious life, in his twenty-seventh year. In three years he was made prior, and then abbot of that monastery; from whence he was taken, in 1093, to succeed to the archbishopric, vacant by the death of Lanfranc. He enjoyed this dignity till his death, in 1109, though it was disturbed by many dissensions with William II. and Henry I. respecting immunities and investitures. There is much depth and precision in his theological works." Tiraboschi, Stor. della Lett. Ital. tom. iii. lib. iv. cap. 2.

Ibid. c. v. "It is an observation made by many modern writers, that the demonstration of the existence of God, taken from the idea of a Supreme Being, of which Des Cartes is thought to be the author, was so many ages back discovered and brought to light by Anselm. Leibnitz himself makes the remark, vol. v. Oper. p. 570, Edit. Genev. 1768."

am) Donatus.] Aelius Donatus, the grammarian, in the fourth century, one of the preceptors of St. Jerome.

an) Raban.] "He was made Archbishop of Mentz in 847. His Latino-Theotische Glossary of the Bible is still preserved in the imperial library at Vienna. See Lambesius. Comment. de Bibl. lib. ii. p. 416 and 932." Gray's Works, 4to. Lond. 1814, vol. ii. p. 33.

"Rabanus Maurus, Archbishop of Mentz, is deservedly placed at the head of the Latin writers of this age." Mosheim, v. ii. cent. ix. p. 2, c. 2, § 14.

ao) Joachim.] Abbot of Flora in Calabria; "whom the multitude revered as a person divinely inspired, and equal to the most illustrious prophets of ancient times." Mosheim, v. iii. cent. xiii. p. 2, c. 2, 33.

ap) A peer.] St. Dominic.

CANTO XIII.

a) Let him.] “Whoever would conceive the sight that now presented itself to me, must imagine to himself fifteen of the brightest stars in heaven, together with seven stars of Arcturus Major and two of Arcturus Minor, ranged in two circles, one within the other, each resembling the crown of Ariadne, and moving round in opposite directions.”

b) The Chiana.] See Hell, canto xxix. 45.

c) That luminary.] Thomas Aquinas.

d) The meek man of God.] Saint Francis. See canto xi. 25.

e) One ear.] “Having solved one of thy questions, I proceed to answer the other. Thou thinkest then that Adam and Christ were both endued with all the perfection of which the human nature is capable; and therefore wonderest at what has been said concerning Solomon.”

f) In the bosom.] “Thou knowest that in the breast of Adam, whence the rib was taken to make that fair cheek of Eve, which, by tasting the apple, brought death into the world; and also in the breast of Christ, which, being pierced by the lance, made satisfaction for the sins of the whole world; as much wisdom resided, as human nature was capable of: and thou dost therefore wonder that I should have spoken of Solomon as the wisest.” See canto x. 105.

g) That.] “Things, corruptible and incorruptible, are only emanations from the archetypal idea residing in the Divine Mind.”

h) Light.] The Word: the Son of God.

i) His love triune with them.] The Holy Ghost.

j) New existences.] Angels and human souls. If we read with some editions and many MSS. “nove” instead of “nuove,” it should be rendered “nine existences,” and then means “the nine heavens.” In the terms “sussistenze” and “contingenze,” “existences and contingencies,” Dante follows the language of the scholastic writers, which I have endeavoured to preserve.

k) The lowest powers.] Irrational life and brute matter.

l) Their wax, and that which moulds it.] Matter, and the virtue or energy that acts on it.

m) The heav'n.] The influence of the planetary bodies.

n) The brightness of the seal.] The brightness of the divine idea, before spoken of.

o) Therefore.] Daniello, says Lombardi, has shown his sagacity in remarking that our Poet intends this for a brief description of the Trinity: the primal virtue signifying the Father; the lustrous image, the Son; and fervent love, the Holy Ghost.

p) The clay.] Adam.

q) Who ask'd.] "He did not desire to know the number of the celestial intelligences, or to pry into the subtleties of logical, metaphysical, or mathematical science: but asked for that wisdom which might fit him for his kingly office."

r) The number.] This question is discussed by our Poet himself in the Convito, p. 49.

s) If necessary.] "If a premise necessarily true, with one not necessarily true, ever produced a necessary consequence: a question resolved in the negative by the art of logic, with that general rule, conclusio sequitur debiliorem partem." Lombardi.

t) That first motion.] "If we must allow one first motion, which is not caused by other motion: a question resolved affirmatively by metaphysics, according to that principle, repugnat in causis processus in infinitum." Lombardi.

u) Of the mid circle.] "If in the half of the circle a rectilinear triangle can be described, one side of which shall be the diameter of the same circle, without it's forming a right angle with the other two sides; which geometry shows to be impossible." Lombardi.

v) That hen.] See Canto x. 110.

w) —— Parmenides,
Melissus, Bryso.]

For the singular opinions entertained by the two former of these heathen philosophers, see Diogenes Laertius, lib. ix. and Aristot. de Cœlo, lib. iii. cap. i. and Phys. lib. i. cap. ii. The last is also twice adduced by Aristotle (Anal. Post. lib. i. cap. ix. and Rhet.

lib. iii. cap. ii.) as affording instances of false reasoning. Our Poet refers to the philosopher's refutation of them in the De Monarchia, lib. iii. p. 138.

x) Sabellius, Arius.] Well-known heretics.

y) Scymitars.] A passage in the travels of Bertrandon de la Brocquiere, translated by Mr. Johnes, will explain this allusion, which has given some trouble to the commentators. That traveller, who wrote before Dante, informs us, p. 138, that the wandering Arabs used their scymitars as mirrors.

z) Let not.] "Let not short-sighted mortals presume to decide on the future doom of any man, from a consideration of his present character and actions." This is meant as an answer to the doubts entertained respecting the salvation of Solomon. See Canto x. 107.

aa) Dame Birtha and Sir Martin.] Names put generally for any persons who have more curiosity than discretion.

CANTO XIV.

a) Such was the image.] The voice of Thomas Aquinas proceeding from the circle to the centre; and that of Beatrice, from the centre to the circle.

b) W'hen.] When ye shall be again clothed with your bodies at the resurrection.

c) That heav'ly shower.] That effusion of beatific light.

d) Him.] Literally translated by Chaucer, Troilus and Creside, book v.

Thou one, two, and threo eterne on live,
That raignest aie in thre, two, and one,
Uncircumscrip, and all maist circonscrive.

e) The goodliest light.] Solomon.

f) To more lofty bliss.] To the planet Mars.

g) It's pathway.] See the Convito, p. 74. "E da sapere,

&c." "It must be known, that, concerning the galaxy, philosophers have entertained different opinions. The Pythagoreans say that the sun once wandered out of his way; and passing through other parts not suited to his heat, scorched the place through which he passed; and that there was left that appearance of the scorching. I think they grounded their opinion on the fable of Phaëton, which Ovid relates at the beginning of his Metamorphoses. Others (as Anaxagoras and Democritus) said that it proceeded from a partial repercussion of the solar light, which they proved by such reasons as they could bring to demonstrate it. What Aristotle has said, cannot well be known; because his meaning is not made the same in one translation as in another: and I think it must have been an error in the translators; for, in the new, he seems to say that it is a collection of vapours under the stars, which they always attract in that part; and this appears devoid of any true reason. In the old, he says that the galaxy is nothing else than a multitude of fixed stars in that part, so small, that here below we cannot distinguish them: but that they form the appearance of that whiteness, which we call the galaxy. And it may be, that the heaven in that part is dense, and therefore retains and represents that light; and in this opinion Avicen and Ptolemy seem to agree with Aristotle."

h) The venerable sign.] The cross, which is placed in the planet of Mars, to denote the glory of those who fought in the crusades.

i) The atomies of bodies.]

As thicke as motes in the sun-beame.

Chaucer. Edit. 1603, fol. 35.

As thick and numberless,

As the gay motes that people the sunbeam.

Milton, Il Penseroso.

j) Re.] "He, who considers that the eyes of Beatrice became more radiant the higher we ascended, must not wonder that I do not except even them, as I had not yet beheld them since our entrance into this planet." Lombardi understands, by "living seals," "vivi suggelli," "the stars;" and this explanation derives some authority from the Latin notes on the Monte Casino MS. "id est cœli imprimentes ut sigilla."

k) Reveal'd.] Dischiuso. Lombardi explains this word “excluded,” as indeed Vellutello had done before him; and as it is also used in the seventh Canto. If this interpretation were adopted, the line should stand thus:—

That holy pleasure not excluded here.

But the word is capable of either meaning; and it would not be easy to determine which is the right, in this passage.

CANTO XV.

a) And seems some star that shifted place in heav'n.]

Pare una stella che tranuti loco.

Frezzi. Il Quadrir. lib. i. cap. 13.

Sæpe etiam stellas, vento impendente, videbis,

Præcipites cœlo labi, noctisque per umbram

Flammarum longos a tergo albescere tractus.

Virg. Georg. lib. i. 367.

Compare Arat. Διοσηνη. 191.

b) Our greater muse.] Virgil. AEn. lib. vi. 684.

Isque ubi tendentem adversum per gramina vidit

Aenean, alacris palmas utrasque tetendit.

Venisti tandem, tuaque spectata parenti

Vicit iter durum pietas!

c) No unpleasant thirst, though long.] “Thou hast satisfied the long yet pleasing desire, which I have felt to see thee, through my knowledge of thee, obtained in the immutable decrees of the divine Providence.”

d) To each among your tribe.] “In you, glorified spirits, love and knowledge are made equal, because they are equal in God. But with us mortals it is otherwise, for we have often the will without the means of expressing our affections; and I can therefore thank thee only in my heart.”

c) I am thy root.] Cacciagnida, father to Alighieri, of whom our Poet was the great-grandson.

f) He, of whom.] “Thy great grandfather, Alighieri, has been in the first round of Purgatory more than a hundred years; and it is fit that thou by thy good deserts shouldst endeavour to shorten the time of his remaining there.” For what is known of Alighieri see Pelli. Memor. Opere di Dante. Ediz. Zatta. 1758. tom. iv. P. 2.^{da} p. 21. His son Bellincione was living in 1266; and of him was born the father of our Poet, whom Benvenuto da Imola calls a lawyer by profession. Pelli, ibid.

g) Florence.] See G. Villani, lib. iii. cap. 2.

h) Which calls her still.] The public clock being still within the circuit of the ancient walls.

i) When.] When the women were not married at too early an age, and did not expect too large a portion.

j) Void.] Through the civil wars and banishments. Or he may mean that houses were not formerly built merely for pomp and show, nor of greater size than was necessary for containing the families that inhabited them. For it has been understood in both these ways.

k) Sardanapalus.] The luxurious monarch of Assyria. Juvenal is here imitated, who uses his name for an instance of effeminacy. Sat. x. 362.

l) Montemundo.] Either an elevated spot between Rome and Viterbo; or Monte Mario, the site of the villa Mellini, commanding a view of Rome.

m) Our suburban turret.] Uccellatojo, near Florence, from whence that city was discovered. Florence had not yet vied with Rome in the grandeur of her public buildings.

n) Bellincion Berti.] Hell, canto xvi. 38, and Notes. There is a curious description of the simple manner in which the earlier Florentines dressed themselves, in G. Villani, lib. vi. c. 71. “And observe that in the time of the said people (A. D. 1259) and before and for a long time after, the citizens of Florence lived soberly, on coarse viands, and at little cost, and in many customs and courtesies of life were rude and unpolished; and dressed themselves and their women in coarse cloths: many wore plain leather, without cloth over it; bonnets on their heads; and all, boots on the feet; and the Florentine women were without ornament; the better sort content with a close gown of scarlet cloth of Ypres or of camlet, bound with a girdle in the ancient mode, and a mantle lined with fur, and a hood to it, which was worn on the head; the common sort of women were clad in a coarse gown of Cambrai in like manner. One hundred pounds (libbre) was the common portion for a wife; and two or three hundred was accounted a magnificent one; and the young women were for the most part twenty years old or more before they were given in marriage. Such was the dress; and thus coarse were the manners of the Florentines: but they were of good faith and loyal both among themselves and to the state; and with their coarse way of living and poverty did greater and more virtuous deeds than have been done in our times with greater refinement and wealth."

o) Of Nerli, and of Vecchio.] Two of the most opulent families in Florence.

p) Each.] "None fearful either of dying in banishment, or of being deserted by her husband on a scheme of traffic in France."

q) A Salterello and Cianghella.] The latter a shameless woman of the family of Tosa, married to Lito degli Alidosi of Imola: the former Lapo Salterello, a lawyer, with whom Dante was at variance. "We should have held an abandoned character, like these, as great a wonder, as ye would the contrary now." There is a sonnet by Lapo Salterello in Corbinelli's collection printed with the Bella Mano. Ed. Firenze. 1715. p. 150.

r) Mary.] The Virgin was invoked in the pains of child-birth. Purgatory, canto xx. 21.

s) Valdipado.] Cacciaguida's wife, whose family name was Alighieri, came from Ferrara, called Val di Pado, from it's being watered by the Po.

t) Conrad.] The Emperor Conrad III. who died in 1152. See G. Villani, lib. iv. 34.

u) Whose people.] The Mahometans, who were left in possession of the Holy Land, through the supineness of the Pope. See Canto ix. 123.

CANTO XVI.

a) With greeting.] The Poet, who had addressed the spirit, not knowing him to be his ancestor, with a plain "Thou," now uses more ceremony, and calls him "You," according to a custom introduced among the Romans in the latter times of the empire.

b) Beatrice.] Lombardi observes, that in order to show us that his conversation with Cacciagnida had no connexion with sacred subjects, Beatrice is described as standing at a little distance; and her smiling at his formal address to his ancestor, makes him fall into a greater freedom of manner. See the next Canto, v. 15.

c) Guenever.] Beatrice's smile reminded him of the female servant who, by her coughing, emboldened Queen Guenever to admit the freedoms of Lancelot. See Hell, canto v. 121.

d) The fold.] Florence, of which John the Baptist was the patron saint.

e) From the day.] From the incarnation of our Lord to the birth of Cacciagnida, the planet Mars had returned five hundred and eighty times to the constellation of Leo, with which it is supposed to have a congenial influence. As Mars then completes his revolution in a period forty-three days short of two years, Cacciagnida was born about 1090. This is Lombardi's computation, and it squares well both with the old reading—

— cinquecento emquanta

E trenta fiate;

and with the time when Cacciagnida might have fallen fighting under Conrad III. who died in 1152. Not so the computation made by the old commentators in general, who, reckoning two years for the revolution of Mars, placed the birth of Cacciagnida in 1160; the impossibility of which being perceived by the Academicians della Crusca, (as it had before been by Pietro, the son of our Poet, or by the author of the commentary which passes for his,) they altered the word "trenta" into "tre," "thirty" into "three;" and so, still reckoning the revolution of Mars at two years, brought Cacciaguida's birth to 1106. The way in which Lombardi has got over the difficulty appears preferable, as it retains the old reading; and I have accordingly altered the translation, which before stood thus:—

— this fire had come,
Five hundred fifty times and thrice, it's beams
To reillumine underneath the foot
Of it's own lion.

f) The last.] The city was divided into four compartments. The Elisei, the ancestors of Dante, resided near the entrance of that, named from the Porta S. Piero, which was the last reached by the competitor in the annual race at Florence. See G. Villani, lib. iv. cap. x.

g) Mars.] The Padre d'Aquino understands this to refer to the population of Florence in Guido's time; for, according to him, "tra Marte e'l Batista," means the space between the statue of Mars placed on the Ponte Vecchio and the Baptistry; and Lombardi assents to this interpretation. Venturi supposes, that the portion of land so described would have been insufficient to hold the population which Florence contained at the supposed date of this poem, that is, in the year 1300; and agrees with the elder commentators, who consider the description as relating to time and not to place, and as indicating the two periods of heathenism and Christianity. See Canto xiii. 144. It would not be easy to determine the real sense of a passage thus equivocal.

h) Campi and Certaldo and Fighine.] Country places near Florence.

i) That these people.] "That the inhabitants of the above-mentioned places had not been mixed with the citizens; nor the limits of Florence extended beyond Galluzzo and Trespiano."

j) Aguglione's hind, and Signa's.] Baldo of Aguglione, and Bonifazio of Signa.

k) His eye already keen for bar'ring.] See Hell, canto xxi. 40, and note.

l) Had not the people.] If Rome had continued in her allegiance to the emperor, and the Guelph and Ghibelline factions had thus been prevented; Florence would not have been polluted by a race of upstarts, nor lost the most respectable of her ancient families.

m) Simifonte.] A castle dismantled by the Florentines. G. Villani, lib. v. cap. xxx. The individual here alluded to is no longer known.

n) Montemurlo.] G. Villani, lib. v. cap. xxxi. relates that the Conti Guidi, not being able to defend their castle from the Pistoians, sold it to the state of Florence.

o) The blind bull.] So Chaucer, Troilus and Crescende; b. ii.
For swifter course cometh thing that is of wight
When it descendeth than done things light.

Compare Aristotle, Ethic. Nic. lib. vi. cap. xiii. “σώματι ἰσχυρῷ, κ. τ. λ.”

p) Luni; Urbisaglia.] Cities formerly of importance, but then fallen to decay.

q) Chiusi and Sinigaglia.] The same.

r) As the moon.] “The fortune of us, that are the moon's men, doth ebb and flow like the sea.” Shakspeare, 1 Henry IV. act. i. sc. 2.

s) The Ughi.] Whoever is curious to know the habitations of these and the other ancient Florentines, may consult G. Villani, lib. iv.

t) At the poop.] The Cerchi, Dante's enemies, had succeeded to the houses over the gate of Saint Peter, formerly inhabited by the Ravignani and the Count Guido. G. Villani, lib. iv. cap. 10. Many editions read porta, “gate.”—The same metaphor is found in Eschylus. Supp. 356, and is there also scarce understood by the critics.

Ἄδον σὺ πρύμναν πόλεος ὁδὸς ἐστεμμένην.
Respect these wreaths, that crown your city's poop.

u) The gilded hilt and pommel.] The symbols of knighthood.

v) The column, cloth'd with verrey.] The arms of the Pigli, or, as some write it, the Billi.

w) With them.] Either the Chiaramontesi, or the Tosinghi; one of which had committed a fraud in measuring out the wheat from the public granary. See Purgatory, canto xii. 99.

x) Them.] The Uberti; according to the Latin note on the Monte Casino MS. with which the editor of the extracts from those notes says that Benvenuto agrees.

y) The bullets of bright gold.] The arms of the Abbati, as it is conjectured; or of the Lamberti, according to the authorities referred to in the last note.

z) The sires of those.] "Of the Visdomini, the Tosinghi, and the Cortigiani, who, being sprung from the founders of the bishopric of Florence, are the curators of it's revenues, which they do not spare, whenever it becomes vacant."

aa) The' o'erweening brood.] The Adimari. This family was so little esteemed, that Ubertino Donato, who had married a daughter of Bellincion Berti, himself indeed derived from the same stock, (see Note to Hell, canto xvi. 38,) was offended with his father-in-law, for giving another of his daughters in marriage to one of them.

ab) Caponsacco.] The family of Caponsacchi, who had removed from Fesole, lived at Florence in the Mercato Vecchio.

ac) — Giuda

And Infangato.] Giuda Guidi and the family of Infangati.

ad) A thing incredible I tell, though true.]

Io dirò cosa incredibile e vera.

'Εγώ σοι ἔρω, Εφη, ὁ Σώκρατες, ἀπιστον μὲν νη τὸν θεόν, ἀληθὲς δε. Plato. Theages. Bipont. Edit. tom. ii. p. 23.

ae) The gateway.] Landino refers this to the smallness of the city: Vellutello, with less probability, to the simplicity of the people in naming one of the gates after a private family.

af) The great Baron.] The Marchese Ugo, who resided at Florence as lieutenant of the Emperor Otho III. gave many of the chief families licence to bear his arms. See G. Villani, lib.

iv. cap. 2, where the vision is related, in consequence of which he sold all his possessions in Germany, and founded seven abbeys; in one whereof, his memory was celebrated at Florence on St. Thomas's day. “The marquis, when hunting, strayed away from his people, and wandering through a forest, came to a smithy, where he saw black and deformed men tormenting others with fire and hammers; and, asking the meaning of this, he was told that they were condemned souls, who suffered this punishment, and that the soul of the Marquis Ugo was doomed to suffer the same, if he did not repent. Struck with horror, he commended himself to the Virgin Mary; and soon after founded the seven religious houses.”

ag) One.] Giano della Bella, belonging to one of the families thus distinguished, who no longer retained his place among the nobility, and had yet added to his arms a bordure or. See Macchiavelli, 1st. Fior. lib. ii. p. 86. Ediz. Giolito.

ah) —— Gualterotti dwelt,

And Importuni.] Two families in the compartment of the city called Borgo.

ai) Neicer neighbourhood.] Some understand this of the Bardi; and others, of the Buondelmonti.

aj) The house.] Of Amidei. See Notes to Canto xxviii. of Hell, 102.

ak) To Ema.] “It had been well for the city, if thy ancestor had been drowned in the Ema, when he crossed that stream on his way from Montebuono to Florence.”

al) On that maim'd stone.] See Hell, canto xiii. 144. Near the remains of the statue of Mars, Buondelmonti was slain, as if he had been a victim to the god; and Florence had not since known the blessing of peace.

am) The lily.] “The arms of Florence had never hung reversed on the spear of her enemies, in token of her defeat; nor been changed from argent to gules;” as they afterwards were, when the Guelfi gained the predominance.

CANTO XVII.

a) The youth.] Phaëton, who came to his mother Clymene, to inquire of her if he were indeed the son of Apollo. See Ovid. Met. lib. i. ad finem.

b) That saintly lamp.] Cacciaguida.

c) To own thy thirst.] “That thou mayst obtain from others a solution of any doubt that may occur to thee.”

d) That thou as clear.] “Thou beholdest future events with the same clearness of evidence that we discern the simplest mathematical demonstrations.”

e) The point.] The divine nature.

f) The soul-purifying mount.] See Purg. canto viii. 133, and canto xi. 140.

g) The nether world.] See Hell, canto x. 77, and canto xv. 61.

h) Well squar'd.] See Plato. Protagoras. Ed. Bipont. vol. iii. p. 145, and Aristot. Rhetor. lib. iii. where Pietro Vettori, in his Comenuntary, p. 656, remarks: “Quis nescit Dantem etiam suo in poemate tetragonum vocasse apposite hominem, qui adversis casibus non frangitur sed resistit fortiter ipsis?”

i) The arrow.] A line repeated by Ruccellai in his Oreste.

Nam prævisa inimis lædere tela solent. Ovid.

Che piaga antiveduta assai men duole.

Petrarca, Trionfo del Tempo.

j) Contingency.]

La contingenza, che fuor del quademo

Della vostra materia non si stende.

I had before understood this, “Contingency, which is not exposed to view on the tablet of your nature,” “which is not discoverable by your human understanding,” and had translated it accordingly; but have now adopted Lombardi’s explanation: “Contingency, which has no place beyond the limits of the material world.”

k) Necessity.] “The evidence with which we see casual events pourtrayed in the source of all truth, no more necessitates those events, than does the image, reflected in the sight by a ship sailing down a stream, necessitate the motion of the vessel."

l) From thence.] "From the eternal sight; the view of the Deity himself."

m) His cruel stepdame.] Phaedra.

n) There.] At Rome, where the expulsion of Dante's party from Florence was then plotting, in 1300.

o) The common cry.] The multitude will, as usual, be ready to blame those who are the sufferers, whose cause will at last be vindicated by the overthrow of their enemies.

p) Thou shalt leave each thing.] Compare Euripid. Phœn. 399, &c.

q) Their's.] "They shall be ashamed of the part they have taken against thee." Lombardi, I think, is very unhappy in his conjecture, that rotta la tempia, a reading of the Nidobeatina edition, should be adopted, and that it may mean "the broken heads of his companions."

r) The great Lombard.] Either Bartolommeo della Scala; or Alboino his brother, although our Poet has spoken ambiguously of him in his Convito, p. 179. Their coat of arms was a ladder and an eagle. For an account of the rise of this family from a very mean condition, see G. Villani, lib. xi. cap. 91.

s) That mortal.] Can Grande della Scala, born under the influence of Mars, but at this time only nine years old. He was, as the other two, a son of Alberto della Scala.

t) The Gascon.] Pope Clement V. See Hell, canto xix. 86, and note, and Par. canto xxvii. 53, and canto xxx. 141.

u) Great Harry.] The Emperor Henry VII. See canto xxx. 135.

v) In equal scorn.] See Hell, canto i. 98.

w) The place.] Our Poet here discovers both that Florence, much as he inveighs against it, was still the dearest object of his affections, and that it was not without some scruple he indulged his satirical vein.

x) I may not lose myself.] "That being driven out of my country, I may not deprive myself of every other place by the boldness, with which I expose in my writings the vices of mankind."

y) The treasure.] Cacciaguida.
 z) The cry thou raisest.] "Thou shalt stigmatize the faults of those who are most eminent and powerful; for men are naturally less moved by instances, adduced from among those who are in the lower classes of life."

CANTO XVIII.

a) Now.] The spirit of Cacciaguida enjoyed it's own thoughts in silence.

b) Temp'ring the sweet with bitter.]
 Chewing the end of sweet and bitter fancy.
Shakspeare, As you Like it, act 3, scene 3.
 c) The hallow'd light.] In which the spirit of Cacciaguida was enclosed.
 d) On this fifth lodgment of the tree.] Mars, the fifth of the heavens.
 e) The great Maccabee.] Judas Maccabeus.
 f) Charlemagne.] L. Pulci commends Dante for placing Charlemagne and Orlando here:—

Io mi confido ancor molto quì a Dante,
 Che non sanza cagion nel ciel su misse
 Carlo ed Orlando in quelle croci sante,
 Che come diligente intese e scrisse.

Morg. Magg. c. xxviii.

g) William, and Renard.] Probably, not, as the commentators have imagined, William II. of Orange, and his kinsman Raimbaud, two of the crusaders under Godfrey of Bouillon, (Maimbourg, Hist. des Croisades, ed. Par. 1682, 12mo. tom. i. p. 96,) but rather the two more celebrated heroes in the age of Charlemagne. The former, William I. of Orange, supposed to have been the founder of the present illustrious family of that name, died about 808, according to Joseph de la Pise. Tableau de l'Hist. des Princes et Principauté d'Orange. Our countryman, Ordericus Vitilis, professes to give his true life, which had been misrepresented in the songs of the itinerant bards. "Vulgo canitur a joculatoribus de illo cantilena ; sed jure præferenda est relatio autentica." Ecccl. Hist. in Duchesne, Hist. Normann. Script. p. 598. The latter is better known by having been celebrated by Ariosto, under the name of Rinaldo.

h) Duke Godfrey.] Godfrey of Bouillon.

Poi venia solo il buon duce Goffrido,
Che fè l'impresa santa e i passi giusti ;
Questo, di ch' io mi sdegno e'ndarno grido,
Fece in Hierusalem con le sue mani
Il mal guardato e già negletto nido.

Petrarca, Tr. della Fama, cap. ii.

i) Robert Guiscard.] See Hell, canto xxviii. 12.

j) Through silvery.] So in the Convito, "E'l ciel di Giove, &c." p. 74. "The heaven of Jupiter may be compared to geometry, for two properties: the one is, that it moves between two heavens repugnant to it's temperature, as that of Mars and that of Saturn; whence Ptolemy, in the above-cited book, says that Jupiter is a star of temperate complexion, between the coldness of Saturn and the heat of Mars: the other is, that, among all the stars, it shows itself white, as it were silvered."

k) O nymph divine.] "O muse, thou that makest thy votaries glorious and long-lived, as they, assisted by thee, make glorious and long-lived the cities and realms which they celebrate, now enlighten me," &c.

l) The characters.] Diligite justitiam qui judicatis terram. "Love righteousness, ye that be judges of the earth." Wisdom of Solomon, c. i. 1.

m) The' unwise.] Who augur future riches to themselves in proportion to the quantity of sparks that fly from the lighted brand when it is shaken.

n) W'ho painteth there.] The Deity himself.

o) Beatitude.] The band of spirits; for "beatitudo" is here a noun of multitude.

p) That once more.] "That he may again drive out those who buy and sell in the temple."

q) Taking the bread away.] "Excommunication, or interdiction of the eucharist, is now employed as a weapon of warfare."

r) That writest but to cancel.] "And thou, Pope Boniface, who writest thy ecclesiastical censures for no other purpose than to be paid for revoking them."

s) To him.] The coin of Florence was stamped with the impression of John the Baptist; and, for this, the avaricious pope is made to declare that he felt more devotion, than either for Peter or Paul. Lombardi, I know not why, would apply this to Clement V. rather than to Boniface VIII.

t) And for a dance.] I am indebted to an intelligent critic in the Monthly Review, November, 1823, for pointing out my former erroneous translation of the words "per salti," "Through the wilds."

CANTO XIX.

a) Nor hath ink written.]

This joie ne maie not written be with inke.

Chaucer, Troilus and Cresseide, b. iii.

b) Like to a falcon.]

Come falcon ch' uscisse dal cappello.

Boccaccio, Il Filostrato, p. iv. st. 83.

Which Chaucer translates,

As fresh as faucon coming out of mew.

Troilus and Cresseide, b. iii.

Poi come fa'l falcon, quando si move,

Così Umiltà al cielo alzò la vista.

Frezzoli, Il Quadrir, lib. iv. cap. 5.

Rinaldo stà come suole il falcone
Uscito del capello a la veleta.

L. Pulci, Morgante Magg. c. xi.

c) Who turn'd his compass.] "When he prepared the heavens, I was there: when he set a compass upon the face of the depth." Proverbs, viii. 27.

— In his hand

He took the golden compasses, prepar'd
In God's eternal store, to circumscribe
This universe, and all created things.

Milton, P. L. b. vii. 227.

d) The Word.] "The divine nature still remained incomprehensible. Of this Lucifer was a proof; for had he thoroughly comprehended it, he would not have fallen."

e) To him.] "He, who should argue, on the words I have just used, respecting the fate of those who have wanted means of knowing the Gospel, would certainly have cause enough to doubt, if he did not defer to the authority of Scripture, which pronounces God to be thoroughly just."

f) The primal will.] The divine will.

g) Who call 'Christ, Christ?'] "Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven." Matt. vii. 21.

h) The Aethiop.] "The men of Nineveh shall rise in judgment with this generation, and shall condemn it." Matt. xii. 41.

i) That volume.] "And I saw the dead, small and great, stand before God; and the books were opened: and another book was opened, which is the Book of Life: and the dead were judged out of those things which were written in the books, according to their works." Rev. xx. 12.

j) Albert.] Purgatory, canto vi. 98.

k) Prague.] The eagle predicts the devastation of Bohemia by Albert, which happened soon after this time, when that emperor obtained the kingdom for his eldest son Rodolph. See Coxe's House of Austria, 4to. ed. vol. i. part i. p. 87.

l) He.] Philip IV. of France, after the battle of Courtrai, 1302, in which the French were defeated by the Flemings, raised the nominal value of the coin. This king died in consequence of his horse being thrown to the ground by a wild boar, in 1314.

m) The English and Scot.] He adverts to the disputes between John Baliol and Edward I. the latter of whom is commended in the Purgatory, canto vii. 130.

n) The Spaniard's luxury.] The commentators refer this to Alonzo X. of Spain. It seems probable that the allusion is to Ferdinand IV. who came to the crown in 1295, and died in 1312, at the age of twenty-four, in consequence, as it was supposed, of his extreme intemperance. See Mariana, Hist. lib. xv. cap. 11.

o) The Bohemian.] Winceslaus II. Purgatory, o. nt. vii. 99.

p) The halter of Jerusalem.] Charles II. of Naples and Jerusalem, who was lame. See Note to Purgatory, canto vii. 122, and xx. 78.

q) He.] Frederick of Sicily, son of Peter III. of Arragon. Purgatory, canto vii. 117. The isle of fire is Sicily, where was the tomb of Anchises.

r) His uncle.] James, king of Majorca and Minorca, brother to Peter III.

s) His brother.] James II. of Arragon, who died in 1327. See Purgatory, canto vii. 117.

t) Bastardiz'd.] "Bozze," according to Bembo, is a provençal word for "bastardo e non legitimo." Della Volg. Lingua. lib. i. p. 25, Ediz. 1544. Others have understood it to mean, "one dishonoured by his wife."

u) Of Portugal.] In the time of Dante, Dionysius was king of Portugal. He died in 1325, after a reign of near forty-six years, and does not seem to have deserved the stigma here fastened on him. See Mariana, lib. xv. cap. 18. Perhaps the rebellious son of Dionysius may be alluded to.

v) Norway.] Haquin, king of Norway, is probably meant; who, having given refuge to the murderers of Eric VII. king of Denmark, A. D. 1288, commenced a war against his successor, Eric VIII. "which continued for nine years, almost to the utter ruin and destruction of both kingdoms."¹³ Modern Univ. Hist. vol. xxxii. p. 215.

w) —— Him

Of Ratza.] One of the dynasty of the house of Nemagna, which ruled the kingdom of Rassia or Ratza, in Sclavonia, from 1161 to 1371, and whose history may be found in Mauro Orbino. Regno degli Slavi. Ediz. Pesaro. 1601. Uladislaus appears to have been the sovereign in Dante's time: but the disgraceful forgery, adverted to in the text, is not recorded by the historian.

x) Hungary.] The kingdom of Hungary was about this time disputed by Carobert, son of Charles Martel, and Winceslaus, prince of Bohemia, son of Winceslaus II. See Coxe's House of Austria, vol. i. part i. p. 86, 4to. edit.

y) Navarre.] Navarre was now under the yoke of France. It soon after (in 1328) followed the advice of Dante, and had a monarch of its own. Mariana, lib. xv. cap. 19.

z) Mountainous girdle.] The Pyrenees.

aa) —— Famagosta's streets

And Nicosia's.] Cities in the kingdom of Cyprus, at that time ruled by Henry II. a pusillanimous prince. Vertot. Hist. des Chev. de Malte, lib. iii. iv. The meaning appears to be, that the complaints made by those cities of their weak and worthless governor, may be regarded as an earnest of his condemnation at the last doom.

ab) The rest.] "Wise Poet!" thus Landino concludes his commentary on this Canto; "to whom the human race owes obligations for having thus severely reprehended the faults of princes; since these are not, like the errors of private individuals, harmful to one or a few only; but injure all the country which they govern; and a single one frequently causes the ruin of whole nations." Much to the same effect is a memorable sentence in Xenophon's Agesilaus, that excellent manual for princes: καὶ τὰς μὲν τῶν ἰδιωτῶν ἀμαρτίας πρός ἔφερε, τὰς δὲ τῶν ἀρχόντων μεγάλας ἤγε, κρίνων, τοὺς μὲν δλίγα, τοὺς δὲ πολλὰ κακῶς διατιθέντας. C. xi. 6.

CANTO XX.

a) Wherein one shines.] The light of the sun, whence he supposes the other celestial bodies to derive their light. Thus, in the Convito, p. 115, "Nullo sensibile," &c. "No sensible object in the world is more worthy to be made an example of the Deity, than the sun, which with sensible light enlightens first itself, and then all celestial and elementary bodies."

b) The great sign.] The eagle, the Imperial ensign.

c) After.] "After the spirits in the sixth planet (Jupiter) had ceased their singing."

d) The part.] Lombardi well observes, that the head of the eagle is seen in profile, so that one eye only appears.

e) Who.] David.

f) He.] Trajan. See Purgatory, canto x. 68.

g) He next.] Hezekiah.

h) The decrees of heaven.] The eternal counsels of God are indeed immutable, though they appear to us men to be altered by the prayers of the pious.

i) The other following.] Constantine. There is no passage, in which Dante's opinion of the evil that had arisen from the mixture of the civil with the ecclesiastical power, is more unequivocally declared.

j) Pass'd o'er.] "Left the Roman state to the Pope, and transferred the seat of the empire to Constantinople."

k) William.] William II. king of Sicily, at the latter part of the twelfth century. He was of the Norman line of sovereigns, and obtained the appellation of "the Good;" and, as the Poet says, his loss was as much the subject of regret in his dominions, as the presence of Charles II. of Anjou, and Frederic of Arragon, was of sorrow and complaint.

l) Trojan Ripheus.]

Ripheus justissimus unus
Qui fuit in Teucris, et servantissimus sequi.

Virg. AEn. lib. ii. 427.

Then Ripheus fell, the justest far of all
 The sons of Troy. Pitt.

m) Through glass.] This is the only allusion I have remarked in our author to the art of painting glass. Tiraboschi traces that invention in Italy as far back as to the end of the eighth century. Stor. della Lett. Ital. tom. iii. lib. iii. cap. vi. § ii. This, however, if we may trust Mr. Warton's judgment, must have been a sort of mosaic in glass. For to express figures in glass, or what we now call the art of painting in glass, that writer observes, "was a very different work; and I believe I can show it was brought from Constantinople to Rome before the tenth century, with other ornamental arts." History of English Poetry, vol. iii. p. xxiii.

- n) This.] Ripheus.
- o) That.] Trajan.
- p) The prayers.] The prayers of St. Gregory.
- q) The three nymphs.] Faith, Hope, and Charity. Purgatory, canto xxix. 116.
- r) The pair.] Ripheus and Trajan.

CANTO XXI.

- a) The seventh splendour.] The planet Saturn.
- b) The burning lion's breast.] The constellation Leo.
- c) In them, mirror'd.] "Let the form which thou shalt now behold in this mirror," the planet, that is, of Saturn, (soon after, v. 22, called the Crystal,) "be reflected in the mirror of thy sight."
- d) In equal balance.] "My pleasure was as great in complying with her will, as in beholding her countenance."
- e) Of that lov'd monarch.] Saturn. Compare Hell, canto xiv. 91.
- f) That glitterance.] Quello sfavillar. That multitude of shining spirits, who, coming to a certain point of the ladder, made those different movements, which he has described as made by the birds.

g) What forbade the smile.] “Because it would have overcome thee.”

h) There aloft.] Where the other souls were.

i) Not the soul.] The particular ends of Providence being concealed from the very angels themselves.

j) Twixt either shore.] Between the Adriatic gulf and the Mediterranean sea.

k) A stony ridge.] A part of the Apennine. Gibbo is literally a “hunch.” Thus Archilochus calls the island of Thasus, ὄνον πάχις. See Gaisford’s Poetæ Minores Græci, t. i. p. 298.

l) Catria.] Now the abbey of Santa Croce, in the duchy of Urbino, about half way between Gubbio and La Pergola. Here Dante is said to have resided for some time. See the Life prefixed.

m) Pietro Damiano.] “S. Pietro Damiano obtained a great and well-merited reputation, by the pains he took to correct the abuses among the clergy. Ravenna is supposed to have been the place of his birth, about 1007. He was employed in several important missions, and rewarded by Stephen IX. with the dignity of cardinal, and the bishopric of Ostia, to which, however, he preferred his former retreat in the monastery of Fonte Avellana, and prevailed on Alexander II. to permit him to retire thither. Yet he did not long continue in this seclusion, before he was sent on other embassies. He died at Faenza in 1072. His letters throw much light on the obscure history of these times. Besides them, he has left several treatises on sacred and ecclesiastical subjects. His eloquence is worthy of a better age.” Tiraboschi, Storia della Lett. Ital. tom. iii. lib. iv. cap. ii. He is mentioned by Petrarch de Vita Solit. lib. ii. § iii. cap. xvii. “Siquidem statum illum, pompasque sæculi suis contribubibus linquens, ipse Italæ medio, ad sinistrum Apennini latus, quietissimam solitudinem, de qua multa conscripsit, et quæ vetus adhuc fontis Avellanae nomen servat, peritulis honoribus preferendam duxit, ubi non minus gloriose postmodum latuit quam innotuerat primum Romæ, nec dedecori illi fuit alti verticis rutilem decus squalenti cilicio permutasse." Petrarchæ Opera, Basil. 1571, p. 266.

n) Beside the Adriatic.] Some editions and manuscripts have "fu," instead of "fui." According to the former of these readings, S. Pietro Damiano is made to distinguish himself from S. Pietro degli Onesti, surnamed "Il Peccator," founder of the monastery of S. Maria del Porto, on the Adriatic coast, near Ravenna, who died in 1119, at about eighty years of age. If it could be ascertained that there was no religious house dedicated to the blessed Virgin, before that founded by Pietro degli Onesti, to which the other Pietro might have belonged, this reading would, no doubt, be preferable; but at present it seems very uncertain which is the right.

o) The hat.] The cardinal's hat.

p) Cephas.] St. Peter.

q) The Holy Spirit's vessel.] St. Paul. See Hell, canto ii. 30.

r) Round this.] Round the spirit of Pietro Damiano.

CANTO XXII.

a) The vengeance.] Beatrice, it is supposed, intimates the approaching fate of Boniface VIII. See Purgatory, canto xx. 86.

b) Cassino.] A castle in the Terra di Lavoro. "The learned Benedictine, D. Angelo della Noce, in his notes on the chronicle of the monastery of Cassino, (Not. cx.) corrects the error of Cluverius and Estenus, who describe Cassino as situated in the same place where the monastery now is; at the same time commanding the veracity of our author in this passage, which places Cassino on the side of the mountain, and points out the monastery founded by Saint Benedict on its summit." Lombardi.

c) Frequented by a race.] Lombardi here cites an apposite passage from the writings of Pope Saint Gregory. "Mons tria millia," &c. Dialog. lib. ii. cap. 8. "The mountain rising for the space of three miles stretches its top towards the sky, where was a very ancient temple, in which, after the manner of the old heathens, Apollo was worshipped by the foolish rustics. On every side, groves had sprung up in honour of the false gods; and in these, the mad multitude of unbelievers still tended on their unhallowed sacrifices. There then the man of God (Saint Benedict) arriving, beat in pieces the idols; overturned the altar; cut down the groves; and, in the very temple of Apollo, built the shrine of Saint Martin, placing that of Saint John where the altar of Apollo had stood; and, by his continual preaching, called the multitude that dwelt round about, to the true faith."

d) If it was.] "A new order of monks, which in a manner absorbed all the others that were established in the west, was instituted, A.D. 529, by Benedict of Nursia, a man of piety and reputation for the age he lived in." Macclaine's Mosheim, Eccles. Hist. vol. ii. cent. vi. p. 2, C. 2, § 6.

e) Macarius.] There are two of this name enumerated by Mosheim among the Greek theologians of the fourth century, vol. i. cent. iv. p. 11, chap. 2, § 9. In the following chapter, § 10, it is said, "Macarius, an Egyptian monk, undoubtedly deserves the first rank among the practical writers of this time, as his works displayed, some few things excepted, the brightest and most lovely portraiture of sanctity and virtue."

f) Romoaldo.] S. Romoaldo, a native of Ravenna, and the founder of the order of Camaldoli, died in 1027. He was the author of a commentary on the Psalms.

g) In the last sphere.] The Empyrean, where he afterwards sees Saint Benedict, Canto xxxii. 30. Beatified spirits, though they have different heavens allotted them, have all their seat in that higher sphere.

h) The patriarch Jacob.] "And he dreamed, and behold, a ladder set upon the earth, and the top of it reached to heaven: and behold the angels of God ascending and descending on it." Gen. xxviii. 12. So Milton, P. L. b. iii. 510.

The stairs were such, as whereon Jacob saw Angels ascending and descending, bands
 Of guardians bright.

i) The sign.] The constellation of Gemini.
 j) The parent.] The sun was in the constellation of the Twins at the time of Dante's birth.

k) The lofty wheel.] The eighth heaven; that, of the fixed stars.

l) This globe.] So Chaucer, Troilus and Cresseide, b. v.

And down from thence fast he gan avise
 This little spot of earth, that with the sea
 Embraced is, and fully gan despise
 This wretched world.

All the world as to mine eye
 No more seemed than a prike.

Temple of Fame, b. ii.

Compare Cicero Somn. Scip. "Jam ipsa terra ita mihi parva visa est," &c. Lucan. Phars. lib. ix. 11, and Tasso, G. L. c. xiv.
 st. 9, 10, 11.

m) Without the shadow.] See Canto ii. 71.

n) Of thy son.] The sun.

o) Maia and Dione.] The planets Mercury and Venus: Dione being the mother of the latter, and Maia of the former deity.

p) 'Twixt his sire and son.] Betwixt Saturn and Mars.

CANTO XXIII.

a) That region.] Towards the south, where the course of the sun appears less rapid, than when he is in the east or the west.
 b) Trivia.] A name of Diana.
 c) The' eternal nymphs.] The stars.

Ἐλάνα τε κατ' αἰθερά,
Λαμπάδ', ἦν δικυθός νύμφαι
Ἴππένουσι δέ δρφναλας.

Eurip. Supp. 995, Edit. Barnes.

Those starry nymphs, which dance about the pole.

Drummond, Sonnet 10.

Musgrave and Herman would dismiss the word νύμφαι, “nymphs,” from this passage in Euripides; but the use of it by our Author in the text, tends to prove that it is the genuine reading: and it is thus that poets of the most distant ages, and without any knowledge of each other’s writings, (for we can scarcely imagine Dante to have read the plays of Euripides,) may often protect one another against the verbal critics. Drummond, I believe, had learning enough to be indebted to either of his predecessors. Expressions somewhat similar, in Theocritus and Tibullus, are observed by Markland.

d) The Might.] Our Saviour.

e) A forgotten dream.]

— You might as well

Hunt half a day for a forgotten dream.

Wordsworth, Hart-Leap Well.

f) The rose.] The Virgin Mary, who, says Lombardi, is termed by the church, Rosa Mystica. “I was exalted like a palm-tree in Engaddi, and as a rose-plant in Jericho. Ecclesiasticus, xxiv. 14.

g) The lilies.] The Apostles. “And give ye a sweet savour as frankincense, and flourish as a lily.” Ecclesiasticus, xxxix. 14.

h) Thou didst exalt thy glory.] The divine light retired upwards; to render the eyes of Dante more capable of enduring the spectacle which now presented itself.

i) ——— The name

Of that fair flower.] The name of the Virgin.

j) A cresset.] The angel Gabriel.

k) That lyre.] By synecdoche, the lyre is put for the angel.

l) The goodliest sapphire.] The Virgin.

m) The robe.] The ninth heaven, the primum mobile, that enfolds and moves the eight lower heavens.

n) The crowned flame.] The Virgin, with the angel hovering over her.

o) The seed.] Our Saviour.

p) Regina Cœli.] “The beginning of an anthem, sung by the church at Easter, in honour of our Lady.” Volpi.

q) Those rich-laden coffers.] Those spirits, who, having sown the seed of good works on earth, now contain the fruit of their pious endeavours.

r) In the Babylonian exile.] During their abode in this world.

s) He.] St. Peter, with the other holy men of the Old and New Testament.

CANTO XXIV.

a) Their carols.] Carole. The annotator on the Monte Casino MS. observes, “carolæ dicuntur tripudium quoddam quod fit saliendo, ut Napolitani faciunt et dicunt.” The word had also that signification, which is now the only one that common use attaches to it. “Au tiers jour il s’en partit,” (the king of Cyprus coming from Canterbury to Edward III.) “et chevaucha le chemin de Londres; et fit tant qu’il vint a Altem; ou le roi se tenoit, et grand foison de Seigneurs appareillés pour le recevoir. Ce fut un dimenche a heure de relevee qu’il vint là. Si eut entre celle heure et le souper grans danses et grans karolles. Là etoit le jenne Seigneur de Coucy qui s’efforcoit de bien danser et de bien chanter quand son tour venoit,” &c. Froissart, vol. i. cap. 219. Fol. edit. 1559.

These folke, of which I tell you so,
Upon a karole wenten tho :
A ladie karoled hem, that hight

Gladnesse, blisfull, and light,
Well could she sing and lustely.

Chaucer, Romaunt of the Rose. Edit. 1602. fol. 112.

I saw her daunce so comely,
Carol and sing so swetely.

Chaucer, The Dreame, or Booke of tie Duchesse. fol. 231.

b) The riches.] Lombardi here reads with the Nidobeatina edition, “dalla richezza,” instead of “della ricchezza,” and construes it of the amplitude of the circles, according to which the Poet estimated their greater or less degree of velocity. I have followed the other commentators.

c) From that.] Saint Peter.

d) Such folds.] Pindar has the same bold image :

ὕμνων πτυχαῖς. O. l. 170:

which both the Scholiast and Heyne, I think erroneously, understand of the return of the strophes.

e) Tent.] Tenta. The word “tent,” try, is used by our old writers, who, I think, usually spell it “taint;” as Massinger, Parliament of Love, act iv. sc. 3. “Do not fear, I have a staff to taint, and bravely.”

f) To approve.] “Per approbarla.” Landino has “aiutarla.” “The bachelor, or disputant in the school, arms or prepares himself to discuss the question proposed by the master, whose business it is to terminate it.” Such is Vellutello’s interpretation; and it has the merit of being, at least, more intelligible than Lombardi’s, who, without reason, accuses the other commentators, except Venturi, (whose explanation he rejects) of passing over the difficulty.

g) Faith.] Hebrews xi. 1. So Marino, in one of his sonnets, which he calls Divozioni:

Fede è sustanza di sperate cose,
E delle non visibili argomento.

h) Current.] “The answer thou hast made, is right; but let me know if thy inward persuasion be conformable to thy profession.”

i) Next issued.] “We find that the more men have been acquainted with the practice of Christianity, the greater evidence they have had of the truth of it, and been more fully and rationally persuaded of it. To such I grant there are such powerful evidences of the truth of the doctrine of Christ by the effectual workings of the Spirit of God upon their souls, that all other arguments, as to their own satisfaction, may fall short of these. As to which, those verses of the poet Dantes, rendered into Latin by F.S. are very pertinent and significant; for when he had introduced the Apostle Peter, asking him what it was which his faith was founded on, he answers,

Deinde exivit ex luce profunda
Quæ illic splendebat pretiosa gemma,
Super quam omnis virtus fundatur.

i. e. That God was pleased by immediate revelation of himself, to discover that divine truth to the world whereon our faith doth stand as on it's sure foundation; but when the Apostle goes on to inquire how he knew this at first came from God, his answer to that is,

— larga pluvia
Spiritus Sancti, quæ est diffusa
Super veteres et super novas membranas
Est syllogismus ille qui eam mihi conclusit
Adeo acute, ut præ illa demonstratione
Omnis demonstratio alia mihi videatur obtusa.

i. e. That the Spirit of God doth so fully discover itself both in the Old and New Testament, that all other arguments are but dull and heavy if compared with this." Stillingfleet, Or. Sa. b. ii. chap. ix. sect. xix. § 4. The reader will perceive that our learned divine has made an error in his quotation of this passage.

j) The ancient bond and new.] The Old and New Testament.

k) That all the world.] "We cannot conceive how the world should be at first induced to believe without manifest and uncontroled miracles. For as Chrysostom speaks, εἰ σημεῖων χωρὶς ἔπεισαν, πολλῷ μᾶλιστον τὸ θαῦμα φάίνεται. It was the greatest miracle of all, if the world should believe without miracles. Which the poet Dantes hath well expressed in the twenty-fourth canto of Paradise. For when the Apostle is there brought in, asking the Poet upon what account he took the Scriptures of the Old and New Testament to be the Word of God ; his answer is,

Probatio quæ verum hoc mihi recludit,
Sunt opera, quæ secuta sunt, ad quæ Natura
Non candefecit ferrum unquam aut percussit incudem.

i. e. The evidence of that is the Divine Power of miracles which was in those who deliver'd those things to the world. And when the Apostle catechiseth him further, how he knew those miracles were such as they pretended to be, viz. that they were true and divine ; his answer is,

Si orbis terræ sese convertit ad Christianismum
Inquiebam ego, sine miraculis ; hoc unum
Est tale, ut reliqua non sint ejus centesima pars.

i. e. If the world should be converted to the Christian faith without miracles, this would be so great a miracle, that others were not to be compared with it. I conclude this then, with that known saying of St. Austin, Quisquis adhuc prodigia, ut credat, inquiret, magnum est ipse prodigium qui mundo credente non credit : He that seeks for miracles still to induce him to faith, when the world is converted to the Christian faith, he needs not seek for prodigies abroad ; he wants only a looking-glass to discover one. For as he goes on, Unde temporibus eruditis, et omne quod fieri non potest resipientibus, sine ullis miraculis nimium mirabiliter incredibilia credit mundus ? Whence came it to pass that in so learned and wary an age as that was which the Apostles preach'd in, the world without miracles should be brought to believe things so strangely incredible as those were which Christ and his Apostles preach'd." Stillingfleet, Or. Sa. b. ii. chap.-x. sect. v. § i.

l) That Worthy.] Quel Baron. In the next Canto, St. James is called "Barone." So in Boccaccio, G. vi. N. 10, we find "Baron Messer Santo Antonio."

m) As to outstrip.] Venturi insists that the Poet has here "made a slip ;" for that John came first to the sepulchre, though Peter was the first to enter it. But let Dante have leave to explain his own meaning, in a passage from his third book De Monarchia : "Dicit etiam Johannes ipsum (scilicet Petrum) introisse subito, cum venit in monumentum, videns alium discipulum cunctantem ad ostium." p. 146.

CANTO XXV.

a) The fair sheep-fold.] Florence, whence he was banished.
 b) For it's sake.] For the sake of that faith.
 c) Galicia throng'd with visitants.] See Mariana, Hist. lib. xi. cap. xiii. "En el tiempo," &c. "At the time that the sepulchre of the apostle St. James was discovered, the devotion for that place extended itself not only over all Spain, but even round about to foreign nations. Multitudes from all parts of the world came to visit it. Many others were deterred by the difficulty of the journey, by the roughness and barrenness of those parts, and by the incursions of the Moors, who made captives many of the pilgrims.—The canons of St. Eloy, afterwards, (the precise time is not known,) with a desire of remedying these evils, built, in many places, along the whole road, which reached as far as to France, hospitals for the reception of the pilgrims." In the Convito, p. 74, we find "la galassia," &c. "the galaxy, that is, the white circle which the common people call the way of Saint James;" on which Biscioni remarks: "The common people formerly considered the milky way as a sign by night to pilgrims, who were going to Saint James of Galicia; and this perhaps arose from the resemblance of the word galaxy to Galicia. I have often," he adds, "heard women and peasants call it the Roman road," "la strada di Roma."

Lo there (quod he) cast up thine eye,

Se yondir, lo! the Galaxie,

The whiche men clepe the milky way,

For it is white, and some perfay,

Yeallin it han Watlynge Strete.

Chaucer, The House of Fame, b. ii.

d) One, of the other.] Saint Peter and Saint James.

e) Who.] The Epistle of St. James is here attributed to the elder apostle of that name, whose shrine was at Compostella, in Galicia. Which of the two was the author of it, is yet doubtful. The learned and candid Michaelis contends very forcibly for it's having been written by James the Elder. Lardner rejects that opinion as absurd: while Benson argues against it, but is well answered by Michaelis, who, after all, is obliged to leave the question undecided. See his Introduction to the New Testament, translated by Dr. Marsh, ed. Cambridge, 1793, vol. iv. cap. xxvi. § 1, 2, 3. Mr. Horne supposes, that as the elder James "was put to death by Herod Agrippa, A. D. 44, (Acts xii.) it is evident that he was not the author of the epistle which bears the name of James, because it contains passages which refer to a later period, viz. v. 1—8, which intimates the then immediately approaching destruction of Jerusalem, and the subversion of the Jewish polity." Introduction to the Critical Study and Knowledge of the Holy Scriptures, Ed. 1818, vol. ii. p. 600.

f) Largess.] He appears to allude to the Epistle of James, chap. i. v. 5. "If any of you lack wisdom, let him ask of God, that giveth to all men liberally, and upbraideth not; and it shall be given him." Or, to v. 17: "Every good gift and every perfect gift is from above, and cometh down from the Father of lights." Some editions, however, read "l'allegrezza," "joy," instead of "la larghezza."

g) As oft.] Landino and Venturi, who read "Quanto," explain this, that the frequency with which James had commended the virtue of hope, was in proportion to the brightness in which Jesus had appeared at his transfiguration. Vellutello, who reads "Quante," supposes that James three times recommends patient hope in the last chapter of his Epistle; and that Jesus, as many times, showed his brightness to the three disciples; once when he cleansed the lepers (Luke v.); again when he raised the daughter of Jairus (Mark v.); and a third time when he was transfigured. As to Lombardi, who also reads “Quante,” his construction of the passage seems to me scarcely intelligible.

h) The second flame.] St. James.

i) I lifted up.] “I looked up to the Apostles.” “I will lift up mine eyes unto the hills, from whence cometh my help.” Psalm cxxi. 1.

j) From Egypt to Jerusalem.] From the lower world to heaven.

k) Both which.] One point Beatrice has herself answered; “how that hope flourishes in him.” The other two remain for Dante to resolve.

l) Hope.] This is from the Sentences of Petrus Lombardus. “Est autem spes virtus, quâ spiritualia et æterna bona sperantur id est cum fiduciâ expectantur. Est enim spes certa expectatio futuræ beatitudinis, veniens ex dei gratiâ et ex meritis preecedentibus vel ipsam spem, quam naturâ præit charitas ut rem speratam, id est beatitudinem æternam. Sine meritis enim aliquid sperare non spes, sed præsumptio dici potest.” Pet. Lomb. Sent. lib. iii. dist. 26. Ed. Bas. 1486. fol.

m) His anthem.] “They that know thy name will put their trust in thee.” Psalm ix. 10.

n) That mighty sheen.] The spirit of Saint James.

o) Isaias.] “He hath clothed me with the garments of salvation, he hath covered me with the robe of righteousness.” Chap. lxi. 10.

p) Thy brother.] St. John in the Revelation, vii. 9.

q) Winter's month.] “If a luminary, like that which now appeared, were to shine throughout the month following the winter solstice, during which the constellation Cancer appears in the east at the setting of the sun, there would be no interruption to the light, but the whole month would be as a single day.”

r) Like as a virgin.] There is a pretty counterpart to this simile in the Quadriregio of Frezzi.

Poi come donna, che fa reverenza
Lassando il ballo, tal' atto fè ella.

Then as a lady, when she leaves the dance,
Maketh obeisance, even so did she.

The same writer has another more like that in the text.

Come donzella, c'ha a guidar la danza,
Che a chi l'invita reverenzia face,
E po' incomincia vergognosa e manza,
Così colei, &c.

Lib. iv. cap. ii.

s) This.] St. John, who reclined on the bosom of our Saviour, and to whose charge Jesus recommended his mother.

t) So I.] He looked so earnestly, to descry whether St. John were present there in body, or in spirit only ; having had his doubts raised by that saying of our Saviour's: "If I will, that he tarry till I come, what is that to thee ? "

u) The two.] Christ and Mary, whom he has described, in the last Canto but one, as rising above his sight.

CANTO XXVI.

a) The beamy flame.] St. John.

b) Ananias' hand.] Who, by putting his hand on St. Paul, restored his sight. Acts ix. 17.

c) From him.] Some suppose that Plato is here meant, who, in his Banquet, makes Phædrus say: διολογεῖται δὲ Ἐρως ἐν τοῖς πρεσβύτεροι εἶναι, πρεσβύτερος δὲ ὁν, μεγίστων ἀγαθῶν ἡμῖν αἵτιος ἔστιν. "Love is confessedly amongst the eldest of beings; and being the eldest, is the cause to us of the greatest goods." Plat. Op. tom. x. p. 177. Bip. ed. Others have understood it of Aristotle; and others, of the writer who goes by the name of Dionysius the Areopagite, referred to in the twenty-eighth canto.

d) I will make.] Exodus xxxiii. 19.

e) At the outset.] John i. 1, &c.

f) The eagle of our Lord.] St. John.

g) The leaves.] Created beings.

h) The first living soul.] Adam.

i) Cov'ring.] Lombardi's explanation of this passage is somewhat ludicrous. By "un animal coverto," he understands, not an animal in its natural covering of fur or hair, but one drest up with clothes, as a dog, for instance, so clad for sport; "un cane per trastullo coperto."

Chaucer describes, as one of the tokens of pleasure in a dog, "the smoothing down of his hairs."

It came and crept to me as low,
Right as it had me yknow,
Held down his head, and joyned his eares,
And leſſ all smooth downe his heares.

The Dreame of Chaucer, or Book of the Duchesse, Ed. 1602, fol. 229.

j) Parhelion.] Who enlightens and comprehends all things; but is himself enlightened and comprehended by none.

k) Not that I tasted.] So Frezzi:

— per colpa ſi l' uom messo in bando,
Non ſolaniente per gustar del pomo;
Ma perch' e' trapassò di Dio il comando.

Il Quadrir. lib. iv. cap. 1.

l) Whence.] That is, from Limbo. See Hell, canto ii. 53. Adam says that 5232 years elapsed from his creation to the time of his deliverance, which followed the death of Christ.

m) The language.] Hac forma locutionis locutus est Adam, hac forma locuti sunt omnes posteri ejus usque ad ædificationem turris Babel. De Vulg. Eloq. lib. i. cap. vi. "This form of speech Adam used; this, all his posterity until the building of the tower of Babel."

n) For nought.] There is a similar passage in the De Vulg. Eloq. lib. i. cap. ix. "Since, therefore, all our language, except that which was created together with the first man by God, has been repaired according to our own will and pleasure, after that confusion, which was nothing else than a forgetfulness of the former; and since man is a being most unstable and variable; our language can neither be lasting nor continuous, but, like other things which belong to us, as customs and dress, must be varied by distances of places and times."

o) El.] Some read Uh, "One," instead of El: but the latter of these readings is confirmed by a passage from Dante's Treatise de Vulg. Eloq. lib. i. cap. iv. "Quod prius vox primi loquentis sonaverit, viro sanæ mentis in promptu esse non dubito ipsum fuisse quod Deus est, videlicet El." St. Isidore in the Origines, lib. vii. cap. i. had said, "Primum apud Hebræos dei nomen El dicitur."

p) Use.] From Horace, Ars Poet. 62.

q) All my life.] "I remained in the terrestrial Paradise only to the seventh hour." In the Historia Scolastica of Petrus Comestor, it is said of our first parents: "Quidam tradunt eos fuisse in Paradiso septem horas." f. 9. ed. Par. 1513, 4to.

CANTO XXVII.

a) One universal smile.]

Ivi ogni cosa intorno m'assembrava
Un' allegrezza di giocondo riso.

Frezz, Il Quadrir, lib. iv. cap. ii.
— all things smil'd.

Milton, P. L. b. viii. 265.

b) Four torches.] St. Peter, St. James, St. John, and Adam.

c) That.] St. Peter, who looked as the planet Jupiter would, if it assumed the sanguine appearance of Mars.

d) He.] Boniface VIII.

e) Such colour.]

Qui color infectis adversi solis ab ictu
Nubibus esse solet; aut purpureæ Auroraæ.

Ovid, Met. lib. iii. 184.

f) Of Linus, and of Cletus.] Bishops of Rome in the first century.

g) Did Sextus, Pius, and Callixtus bleed,
And Urban.] The former two, bishops of the same see, in the second ; and the others, in the fourth century.

h) No purpose was of our's.] “ We did not intend that our successors should take any part in the political divisions among Christians ; or that my figure (the seal of St. Peter) should serve as a mark to authorise iniquitous grants and privileges.”

i) Wolves.] Wolves shall succeed to teachers, grievous wolves.
Milton, P. L. b. xii. 508.

j) Cahorsines and Gascons.] He alludes to Jacques d’Ossa, a native of Cahors, who filled the papal chair in 1316, after it had been two years vacant, and assumed the name of John XXII. and to Clement V. a Gascon, of whom see Hell, canto xix. 86, and note.

k) Thou, son.] Beatus Petrus—multaque locutus est; et docuit me de veteri testamento, de hominibus etiam adhuc in seculo adhuc viventibus plura peccata intonuit mihi, precepitque, ut ea quæ de illis andieram eis referrem. Alberici Visio, § 45.

l) The she-goat.] When the sun is in Capricorn.

m) From the hour.] Since he had last looked (see Canto xxii.) he perceived that he had passed from the meridian circle to the eastern horizon; the half of our hemisphere, and a quarter of the heaven.

n) From Gades.] See Hell, canto xxvi. 106.

o) The shore.] Phœnicia, where Europa, the daughter of Agenor, mounted on the back of Jupiter, in his shape of a bull.

p) The sun.] Dante was in the constellation of Gemini, and the sun in Aries. There was, therefore, part of those two constellations, and the whole of Taurus, between them.

q) The fair nest of Leda.] “ From the Gemini ;” thus called, because Leda was the mother of the twins, Castor and Pollux.

r) Time's roots.] “ Here,” says Beatrice, “ are the roots, from whence time springs : for the parts, into which it is divided, the other heavens must be considered.” And she then breaks out into an exclamation on the degeneracy of human nature, which does not lift itself to the contemplation of divine things. Thus in the Quadriregio, lib. ii. cap. vi.

Il tempo, e'l ciel, che sopra noi è volto,
E una cosa, e non voltando il cielo,
Ciò che da tempo pende saria tolto.

Time, and the heav'n that turneth o'er our heads,
Are but as one; and if the heav'n turn'd not,
That, which depends on time, were done away.

s) The fair child of him.] There is something very similar in our Author's Treatise de Monarchiâ, lib. i. p. 104. "Humanum genus filius est cœli quod est perfectissimum in omni opere suo. Generat enim homo hominem et sol juxta secundum in Naturali Auditu." This, therefore, is intended for a philosophical truth, and not for a figure, as when Pindar calls "the day" "child of the sun:"

'Αμέραν
— παιδ' Ἀλίον. Ol. ii. 59.

t) Nonc.] Because, as has been before said, the shepherds are become wolves.

u) Before the date.] "Before many ages are past; before those fractions, which are dropt in the reckoning of every year, shall amount to so large a portion of time, that January shall be no more a winter month." By this periphrasis is meant "in a short time;" as we say familiarly, such a thing will happen before a thousand years are over, when we mean, it will happen soon. Thus Petrarch:—

Ben sa ch'il prova, e fiat cosa piana Anzi mill' anni. Trionfo d'Amore, cap. i.

v) Fortune shall be fain.] The commentators, in general, suppose, that our Poet here augurs that great reform, which he vainly hoped would follow on the arrival of the Emperor Henry VII. in Italy. Lombardi refers the prognostication to Can Grande della Scala: and when we consider that this Canto was not finished till after the death of Henry, as appears from the mention that is made of John XXII. it cannot be denied but the conjecture is probable.

CANTO XXVIII.

a) That volume.] The ninth heaven; as Vellutello, I think, rightly interprets it.

b) Heav'n, and all nature, hangs upon that point.] ἐκ τοι-αὐτῆς ἡρα ἀρχῆς ἡρηγρατε δούρανδες καλη φύσις. Aristot. Metaph. lib. xii. c. 7: "From that beginning depend heaven and nature."

c) Such diff'rence.] The material world and the intelligential (the copy and the pattern) appear to Dante to differ in this respect, that the orbits of the latter are more swift, the nearer they are to the centre, whereas the contrary is the case with the orbits of the former. The seeming contradiction is thus accounted for by Beatrice. In the material world, the more ample the body is, the greater is the good, of which it is capable; supposing all the parts to be equally perfect. But in the intelligential world, the circles are more excellent and powerful, the more they approximate to the central point, which is God. Thus the first circle, that of the seraphim, corresponds to the ninth sphere, or primum mobile; the second, that of the cherubim, to the eighth sphere, or heaven of fixed stars; the third, or circle of thrones, to the seventh sphere, or planet of Saturn; and in like manner throughout the two other triunes of circles and spheres.

— In orbs

Of circuit inexpressible they stood,
Orb within orb.

Milton, P. L. b. v. 596.

d) The north.] By "ond' è più leno," some understand that point from whence "the wind is mildest;" others, that "in which there is most force." The former interpretation is probably right.

e) In number.] The sparkles exceeded the number which would be produced by the sixty-four squares of a chess-board, if for the first we reckoned one; for the next, two; for the third, four; and so went on doubling to the end of the account.

f) Fearless of bruising from the nightly ram.] Not injured, like the productions of our spring, by the influence of autumn, when the constellation Aries rises at sunset.

g) Dominations.]

Hear all ye angels, progeny of light,
Thrones, dominations, princedoms, virtues, powers.

Milton, P. L. b. v. 601.

h) Dionysius.] The Areopagite, in his book De Cœlesti Hierarchia.

i) Gregory.] Gregory the Great. “Novem vero angelorum ordines diximus; quia videlicet esse, testante sacro eloquio, scimus: Angelos, archangelos, virtutes, potestates, principatus, dominationes, thronos, cherubin atque seraphin.” Divi Gregorii, Hom. xxxiv. f. 125, ed. Par. 1518, fol.

j) He had learnt.] Dionysius, he says, had learnt from St. Paul. It is almost unnecessary to add, that the book, above referred to, which goes under his name, was the production of a later age. In Bishop Bull’s seventh sermon, which treats of the different degrees of beatitude in heaven, there is much that resembles what is said on the same subject by our Poet. The learned prelate, however, appears a little inconsistent, when, after having blamed Dionysius the Areopagite, “for reckoning up exactly the several orders of the angelical hierarchy, as if he had seen a muster of the heavenly host before his eyes,” (v. 1, p. 313,) he himself then speaks rather more particularly of the several orders in the celestial hierarchy, than he is warranted in doing by holy Scripture.

CANTO XXIX.

a) No longer.] As short a space as the sun and moon are in changing hemispheres, when they are opposite to one another, the one under the sign of Aries, and the other under that of Libra, and both hang, for a moment, poised as it were in the hand of the zenith.

b) For, not in process of before or aft.] There was neither “before nor after,” no distinction, that is, of time, till the creation of the world.

c) Simple and mix'd, both form and substance.] Simple and unmixed form answers to “pure intelligence,” v. 33, (puro atto) the highest of created being; simple and unmixed substance, to “mere power,” v. 33. (pura potenzia) the lowest; and form mixed with substance, to intelligence and power, v. 35, (potenzia con atto) that which holds the middle place between the other two. This, which appears sufficiently plain, Lombard has contrived to perplex; not being aware of the high sense in which our poet here and elsewhere uses the word “forma,” as the Greek writers employed the term μορφή, and particularly Saint Paul, Philippians ii. 6.

d) His threefold operation.] He means that spiritual beings, brute matter, and the intermediate part of the creation, which participates both of spirit and matter, were produced at once.

e) On Jerome's pages.] St. Jerome had described the angels as created long before the rest of the universe: an opinion which Thomas Aquinas controverted; and the latter, as Dante thinks, had Scripture on his side.

“ Sex millia nondum nostri orbis impletur anni; et quantas prius æternitates, quanta tempora, quantas sæculorum origines suisse arbitrandum est, in quibus Angeli, Throni, Dominationes, ceteræque Virtutes servierint Deo; et absque temporum vicibus atque mensuris Deo jubente substiterint.” Hieronym. In Epist. ad Titum. 1. Paris edit. 1706. tom. iv. part i. p. 411.

“ Dicendum, quod supra hoc invenitur duplex sanctorum doctorum sententia, illa tamen probabilior videtur, quod angeli simul cum creatura corporea sunt creati. Angeli enim sunt quædam pars universi. Non enim constituant per se unum universum, sed tam ipsi quam creatura corporea in constitutionem unius universi convenient. Quod appareat ex ordine unius creaturæ ad aliam. Ordo enim rerum adinvicem est bonum universi. Nulla autem pars perfecta est a suo toto separata. Non est igitur probabile, ut Deus cujus perfecta sunt opera, ut dicitur Deuteronomio 32, creaturam angelicam seorsum ante alias creaturas creaverit. Quamvis contrarium non sit reputandum erroneous, præcipue propter sententiam Greg. Nazian. cujus tanta est in doctrina Christiana authoritas, ut nullus unquam ejus dictis calumniam inferre præsumperit sicut nec Athanasii Documentis, ut Hieron. dicit." Thomas Aquinas, Summa Theolog. P. 1.^{ma} Quæst. LXI. art. iii.

f) Those penmen.] As in Genesis, i. 1, and Ecclesiasticus, xviii. 1.

g) Reason.] The heavenly ministers (motori) would have existed to no purpose if they had been created before the corporeal world, which they were to govern.

h) The triple question.] He had wished to know where, when, and how the angels had been created, and these three questions had been resolved.

i) Pent.] See Hell, canto xxxiv. 105.

j) Meritorious.] The collator of the Monte Casino MS. boasts of that being the only text which has "meritorio," "concistorio," and "adjutorio." The reading is probably right, but I find it is in Landino's edition of 1484, and Vellutello's of 1544; and it may, perhaps, be in many others.

k) Of Bindi and of Lapi.] Common names of men at Florence.

l) The sheep.] So Milton, Lycidas.

The hungry sheep look up and are not fed,
But swoln with wind and the rank mist they draw, Rot inwardly.

m) Gave them truth.] "Go ye into all the world, and preach the Gospel to every creature." Mark xvi. 15.

n) The preacher.] Thus Cowper, Task. b. ii.

— 'T is pitiful

To court a grin, when you should woo a soul, &c.

o) Saint Anthony

Fattens with this his swine.] On the sale of these blessings, the brothers of St. Anthony supported themselves and their paramours. From behind the swine of St. Anthony, our Poet levels a blow at the object of his inveterate enmity, Boniface VIII. from whom, "in 1297, they obtained the dignity and privileges of an independent congregation." See Mosheim's Eccles. Hist. in Dr. Maclaine's Translation, v. ii. cent. xi. p. 2. § 28.

p) With unstamp'd metal.] With false indulgences.

q) Daniel.] "Thousand thousands ministered unto him, and ten thousand times ten thousand stood before him." Daniel, vii. 10.

CANTO XXX.

a) Six thousand miles.] He compares the vanishing of the vision to the fading away of the stars at dawn, when it is noon-day six thousand miles off, and the shadow, formed by the earth over the part of it inhabited by the Poet, is about to disappear.

b) Engirt.] "Appearing to be encompassed by these angelic bands, which are in reality encompassed by it."

c) This turn.] Questa vice.

Hence perhaps Milton, P. L. b. viii. 491.

This turn hath made amends.

d) Forth.] From the ninth sphere to the empyrean, which is mere light.

e) Either mighty host.] Of angels, that remained faithful, and of beatified souls; the latter in that form which they will have at the last day.

f) For it's own flame.] Thus disposing the spirits to receive it's own beatific light.

g) Light flowing.] "And he shewed me a pure river of water of life, clear as crystal, proceeding out of the throne of God and of the Lamb." Rev. xxii. 1.

Underneath a bright sea flow'd
Of jasper or of liquid pearl.

Milton, P. L. b. iii. 518.

h) Shadowy of the truth.]

Son di lor vero ombriferi prefazi.

So Mr. Coleridge, in his Religious Musings, v. 406.

Life is a vision shadowy of truth.

i) —— the eaves

Of mine eye-lids.] Thus Shakspeare calls the eyelids “ pent-house lids.” Macbeth, act i. sc. 3.

j) Either court.] See note to v. 44.

k) As some cliff.]

— A lake,

That to the fringed bank with myrtle crown'd,
Her crystal mirror holds.

Milton, P. L. b. iv. 263.

l) My view with ease.]

— Far and wide his eye commands;
For sight no obstacle found here, nor shade,
But all sun-shine.

Milton, P. L. b. iii. 616.

m) In that proud stall.] “ Ostenditque mihi circa Paradisum lectum claris et splendidissimis operimentis adornatum—in quo lecto quendam jacere conspexi cuius nomen ab Apostolo audivi, sed prohibuit ne cui illud dicerem.” Alberici Vizio, § 31.

n) Of the great Harry.] The Emperor Henry VII. who died in 1313. “ Henry, Count of Luxemburgh, held the imperial power three years, seven months, and eighteen days, from his first coronation to his death. He was a man wise, and just, and gracious; braye and intrepid in arms; a man of honour and a good catholic; and although by his lineage he was of no great condition, yet he was of a magnanimous heart, much feared and held in awe; and if he had lived longer, would have done the greatest things.” G. Villani, lib. ix. cap. 1. Compare Dino Compagni. Muratori. Rer. Ital. Script. tom. ix. lib. iii. p. 524.

o) He.] Pope Clement V. See Canto xxvii. 53.

p) Alagna's priest.] Pope Boniface VIII. Hell; canto xix.
79.

CANTO XXXI.

a) The saintly multitude.] Human souls, advanced to this state of glory through the mediation of Christ.

b) That other host.] The angels.

c) Bees.] Compare Homer, Iliad, ii. 87, Virg. AEn. i. 430, and Milton, P. L. b. i. 768.

d) Wings of gold.]

— the middle pair

Skirted his loins and thighs with downy gold.

Milton, P. L. b. v. 282.

e) To gild our storm below.] To guide us through the dangers to which we are exposed in this tempestuous life.

f) If the grim brood.] The northern hordes who invaded Rome. Landino justly observes, that “this is a most excellent comparison to show how great his astonishment was at beholding the realms of the blest.”

g) Helice.] Callisto, and her son Arcas, changed into the constellations of the Greater Bear and Arctophylax or Boötes. See Ovid, Met. lib. ii. fab. v. vi.

h) The Lateran arose.]

— quando Laterano

Alle cose mortali andò di sopra.

This reminds us of the celebrated passage in Akenside:

Mark how the dread Pantheon stands,
Amid the domes of modern hands.

Ode xviii. b. i.

It is remarkable that Dante has no allusion to the magnificence of Gothic architecture, which was then in so much perfection, and which, as Tiraboschi endeavours to show, by a passage in Cassiodorus, describing its peculiar character of slender columns and lanceated arches, was introduced into Italy so early as the end of the fifth century. See Stor. della Lett. Ital. tom. iii. lib. i.

i) Bernard.] St. Bernard, the venerable abbot of Clairvaux, and the great promoter of the second crusade, who died A. D. 1153, in his sixty-third year. His sermons are called by Henault, "chefs d'œuvres de sentiment et de force." Abrégé Chron. de l'Hist. de Fr. 1145. They have even been preferred to all the productions of the ancients, and the author has been termed the last of the fathers of the church. It is uncertain whether they were not delivered originally in the French tongue. Ibid.

That the part he acts in the present poem should be assigned to him, appears somewhat remarkable, when we consider that he severely censured the new festival established in honour of the Immaculate Conception of the Virgin, and "opposed the doctrine itself with the greatest vigour, as it supposed her being honoured with a privilege which belonged to Christ alone." Dr. Mac-laine's Mosheim, vol. iii. cent. xii. part ii. c. iii. § 19.

j) Our Veronica.]

A vernicle had he sewed upon his cappe.

Chaucer, Prolog. to the Canterbury Tales.

"Vernicle, diminutive of Veronike, Fr. A copy in miniature of the picture of Christ, which is supposed to have been miraculously imprinted upon a handkerchief preserved in the church of Saint Peter at Rome. Du Cange in v. Veronica. Madox, Form. Angl. 1. p. 428. Testam. Joh. de Nevill. an. 1386. Item Domino Archiepiscopo Eborum fratri meo, vestimentum rubeum de velvet cum le verouike (r. Veronike) in granis rosarum de super Brondata (r. broudata.) It was usual for persons returning from pilgrimages, to bring with them certain tokens of the several places which they had visited; and therefore the Pardoner, who is just arrived from Rome, is represented with a vernicle sewed upon his cappe. See Pierce Plowman, 28, b." Tyrwhitt's Glossary to Chaucer. Our Poet alludes to this custom in his Vita Nuova, p. 275. "Avvenne in quel tempo, &c." "It happened, at that time, that many people were going to see that blessed image, which Jesus Christ left to us for a pattern of his most beautiful form, which my lady now beholds in glory."

k) Him.] St. Bernard.

l) The queen.] The Virgin Mary.
 m) Oriflamb.] Menage on this word quotes the Roman des Royaux Lignages of Guillaume Ghycart.
 Oriflamme est une banniere
 De cendal roujoyant et simple
 Sans pourtraiure d'autre affaire.

CANTO XXXII.

a) She.] Eve.
 b) Ancestress.] Ruth, the ancestress of David.
 c) Two years.] The time that elapsed between the death of the Baptist and his redemption by the death of Christ.
 d) Augustin.] Bishop of Hippo, in the fourth century; the celebrated writer who has been mentioned before, Canto x. 117.
 e) Francis.] See Canto xi.
 f) Benedict.] See Canto xxii.
 g) Variously.] There can be no doubt but that "Intra se," and not "Entrassi," is the right reading at v. 60, of the original. The former seems to have been found in only a few MSS.; but it appears from Landino's notes, that he had intended to adopt it; although Lombardi has been, as far as I know, the first to admit it into the text.
 h) In holy scripture.] "And the children struggled together within her." Gen. xxv. 22. "When Rebekah also had conceived by one, even by our father Isaac; (for the children being not yet born, neither having done any good or evil, that the promise of God according to election might stand, not of works, but of him that calleth;) it was said unto her, The elder shall serve the younger." Rom. ix. 10, 11, 12. Care must be taken that the doctrine of election is not pushed further than St. Paul appears to have intended by this text, which regards the preference of the Jews to the Gentiles, and not merely the choice of individuals, without any respect to merit.

i) Lucia.] See Hell, canto ii. 97.

CANTO XXXIII.

a) O virgin mother.]

Thou maide and mother daughter of thy son
 Thou wel of mercy, sinful soules cure,
 In whom that God of bountee checs to won ;
 Thou humble and high over every creature,
 Thou nobledest so far forth our nature,
 That no disdaine the maker had of kinde
 His son in blood and flesh to clothe and winde.

Within the cloistre blisful of thy sides
 Toke mannes shape the eternal love and pees,
 That of the trine compas Lord and guide is,
 Whom erthe, and sea, and heven out of rellees
 Ay herien ; and thou virgin wemmeles
 Bare of thy body (and dweltest maiden pure)
 The Creatour of every creature.

Assembled in thee magnificence
 With mercy goodness, and with such pitee,
 That thou that art the sunne of excellence
 Not only helpest hem that praisen thee,
 But oftentime of thy benignitee
 Ful freely, or that men thin helpe beseche,
 Thou goest beforne, and art hir lives leche.

Chaucer, The Second Nonnes Tale.

In the stanza preceding these, Chaucer alludes to St. Bernard's writings.

And thou that art floure of virgins all,
 Of whom that Bernard list so well to write,

b) Non si sdegnò di farsi sua fattura.

I had translated this line,

“ Himself, in his own work enclos’d to dwell,” and have corrected it at the suggestion of my friend, the Rev. William Digby.

c) Desire.]

Lo his desire woll flie withouten winges.

Chaucer, Troilus and Cresseide, lib. iii.

Che 'l desiderio sempre move l'ale

Dietro all' oggetto della mente appreso.

Frezzoli, Il Quadrir. lib. iii. cap. 3.

d) Here again I am indebted to Mr. Digby for noticing the omission of “ co’ prieghi tuoi” in my former translation of the passage, which stood thus:

That on the sovran pleasure he may gaze.

This also I intreat of thee, O queen!

e) The Sybil's sentence.] Virg. Aen. iii. 445.

f) Such keenness.]

— th’ air

No where so clear, sharpen’d his visual ray,

To objects distant far.

Milton, P. L. b. iii. 621.

g) One moment.] “ A moment seems to me more tedious, than five-and-twenty ages would have appeared to the Argonauts, when they had resolved on their expedition.” Lombardi proposes a new interpretation of this difficult passage, and would understand our author to say that “ one moment elapsed after the vision, occasioned a greater forgetfulness of what he had seen, than the five-and-twenty centuries, which past between the Argonautic expedition and the time of his writing this poem, had caused oblivion of the circumstances attendant on that event.”

h) Argo's shadow.]

Quæ simul ac rostro ventosum proscidit æquor,

Tortaque remigio spumis incanduit unda,

Emerserit feri candenti e gurgite vultus,

Æquoreæ monstrum Nereides admirantes.

Catullus, De Nupt. Pel. et Thet. 15.

The wondred Argo, which in wondrous piece
First through the Euxine seas bore all the flow'r of Greece.

Spenser, Faery Queen, b. ii. c. 12, st. 44.

i) Three orbs of triple hue, clipt in one bound.] The Trinity:

j) Thou smiledst.] Some MSS. and editions, instead of “intendente te a me arridi,” have “intendente te ami ed arridi,” “who, understanding thyself, lovest and enjoyest thyself;” which Lombardi thinks much preferable.

k) That circling.] The second of the circles, “Light of Light,” in which he dimly beheld the mystery of the incarnation.
